Mules and Men.
Car Passes Train.
Scrambling Children.
Automobile on Rails.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CAMDEN, S. C., March 31.

THIS IS written on the way from Florida, via the Seaboard Air Line, that takes you "through the heart of the South," including Florida, both Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia.

At this moment, in South Carolina, you see through the car window, individual colored men driving individual mules, preparing ground for cotton.

Wise men in New York and Washington tell the South:

"You should plant no cotton, or very little, and thus increase the price."

But the ground is there, the cotton seed, the mule, and the Negro to drive him, are there. They must be used. Tourists will say:

"Vary your crops and get rich that way."

They underestimate the difficulty in selling variegated crops.

THE BRITISH expert pointing to ducks swimming around on a little pond asked the Irish farmer:

"Have you any idea what those ducks would be worth in the London market?"

Said the Irish farmer:

"I have. And do you see that pond? Have you any idea what that water would be worth in hell, if I could get it there?"

Prohibitive costs of transportation and defective methods of distribution are among our various troubles.

Millions of oranges and grapefruit are rotting on the ground in Florida. Millions of children and adults in the North need the fruit. You can buy grapefruit in Florida for a cent apiece and less, all the oranges you can put in the back of your automobile for seventy-five cents.

Perhaps automobile light transportation, utilizing the railroads' uninterrupted rights of way, will some day help settle the problem of distribution.

Just now, a little north of Fairfax, S. C., a small Chevrolet sedan car, raising a cloud of dust on the road, passes this fast train. It slows down, going through a village, falls behind, then passes the train once more and is lost to sight in the distances.

HARVEY S. FIRESTONE has created a pneumatic rubber tire built with steel flanges to run at high speed on railroad tracks that ought to interest railroad men.

Recently a twelve-cylinder Lincoln car, equipped with these pneumatic wheels, ran over the Seaboard Railway tracks from Miami to Jacksonville, four hundred and six miles, in three hundred and forty-eight minutes, not deducting thirty-one minutes for stopping time. The average running speed of seventy miles an hour went as high as eighty-seven miles.

WITH THE perfecting of special tires and engines designed for this work, perhaps without use of rubber tires, the speed could easily be raised to one hundred or one hundred and fifty miles an hour in stream line cars carrying 50 passengers. This would mean traveling from New York to San Francisco in twenty or thirty hours, New York to Chicago in from six to nine hours.

This will be accomplished, while waiting for development of the airplane to fool-proof and weather-proof perfection.

RAILROADS IN their rights of way possess property that will give them absolute control of transportation on the ground, when they get ready to use those rights of way in modern fashion.

After Mr. Firestone accomplished his demonstration with a high-powered car using railroad tracks and pneumatic tires, Henry Ford telegraphed to Mr. Firestone:

"Your record marks a new era in practical high speed land transportation. My hearty congratulations on your accomplishment."

Henry Ford, who put ten million American families on wheels in a few years, knows something about transportation.

IT IS TRUE, as Mr. Firestone telegraphed Henry Ford, that:

"This is a new development for faster, more comfortable and economical rail travel, which will reclaim thousands of miles of railroad trackage, little used today on account of other more efficient forms of transportation."

ON A RAILROAD siding, just out of Columbia, S. C., Negro children, boys and girls from six to twelve years old are scrambling for coins thrown by passengers.

Two small girls dance energetically, until they are breathless, stimulating the white man's generous throwing of coins.

When the coins are thrown the children all scramble and the boys get them. Such is the fate of woman. The pitiful earnestness on the faces of the ragged black children, and the smiling condescension of the white men that throw them money, is interesting.

A DELEGATION to investigate labor conditions in the Kentucky coal mines is on its way from an institution called the "Commonwealth College" of Mena, Ark. It is the only college of its kind, perhaps.

Students must satisfactorily answer questions such as:

"What do you think of Lenin, Mussolini, Hoover, Woodrow Wilson?" and "What is your opinion of Communism, Anarchism, Imperialism, Capitalism, Ameri-

Lindy Crime Laid to Dry Law by Kin

MRS. AGNES M. SCANDRETT

Gang Reign Due to Prohibition, Says Ex-Pittsburgher

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 31. —(INS.)—The kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby was laid squarely on prohibition and accompanying lawlessness today by Mrs. Agnes Morrow Scandrett, great-aunt of the missing child. She is a sister of the late Senator Dwight Morrow and the widow of Richard Scandrett, Pittsburgh attorney.

Mrs. Scandrett returned from Turkey aboard the liner Exarch. She said:

"The kidnaping convinces me that as long as we have prohibition no home in this country is safe. We are at the mercy of gangs. They are thriving on the general disregard for law."

"And the pity of it is that so many of our finest citizens are blind to it all. They are down there in the trenches with the bootleggers.

"Such a thing as the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby couldn't happen in the old countries. They might kidnap there for revenge or hate. But it is only here that the organized gangs have their way."

RECORD PROFIT FOR UTILITY

The Duquesne Light Company, which recently answered demands for rate reductions with an offer of a cut amounting to only 10 cents a month for most domestic consumers, showed the greatest net earnings in its history in 1931, according to the annual report sent to stockholders today.

The gain was shown in spite of a reduction in gross earnings and a decline in the number of customers.

TOPS OLD RECORD

After deducting all expenses and charges, including reserves for depreciation, net income for the year was $14,135,700. This topped the previous record of $14,024,981 in 1930, and was substantially in excess of $12,917,522 reported in 1929. A gain in earnings has been reported in every year since 1925, when profit was $6,643,010, less than half the figure for 1931.

Gross income totaled $27,805,-

Coolidge Pays, Apologizes; Insurance Suit Off

ST. LOUIS, March 31.—(AP.)—Former President Calvin Coolidge has written Lewis B. Tebbetts, St. Louis insurance man, explaining he meant no offense when in a radio speech last October he cautioned against insurance agents who "offer to save money for you by replacing your policy in another company."

Mr. Coolidge enclosed a check for $2,500. Tebbetts said his reputation as the "leading advocate in the United States of the so-called term life insurance policies" was injured by Coolidge's address.

The former President was served with a summons last month at the instance of Tebbetts, who also instituted similar action against the New York Life Insurance Company, of which Coolidge was a director. Tebbetts said the summons against Coolidge would be dismissed April 7, but that a damage suit against the insurance company would be filed then.

TURN IN HUNT FOR LINDY BABY SEEN

Parents Confident, Princeton Head Says, Predicting Hopeful Development

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., March 31.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today are unwavering in their faith that their kidnaped baby will be restored to them safely and soon.

This revelation was made to friends by Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, friend of the "Lone Eagle" and a frequent caller at the white house atop Sourland Mountain, from which the infant was abducted March 1.

EXPECTS TURN IN CASE

Hibben added that he expected a turn in the case today.

Whether such expectation was based on developments in Norfolk, Va., where Lindbergh's three prominent emissaries believed their efforts to communicate with the kidnapers were near a climax, or the renewed official investigations by federal forces in the Hopewell, N. J., area, was not disclosed.

With Department of Justice men arriving on the scene early this week, special significance was seen in the concentration of a number of investigators for the Department of Labor in the same area.

Murray Garsson, assistant to the Secretary of Labor, in charge of this latter contingent, refused to admit or deny whether special work in the Lindbergh case was carried on.

But his quest for deportable aliens was interpreted by many as a suspicion some members of a vast alien smuggling ring may have been involved in the stealing of 21-month-old Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Several foreigners were sent to Ellis Island for possible deportation as a result of the Labor Department squad activities.

MOUNTAIN TIP FAILS

Futile investigation of a tip that the Lindbergh baby was held at a camp in the Catskill Mountains and "vigorous" continuance of the search for Samuel Fleischer and Abe Wagner were reported in today's bulletin issued here by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey State Police.

Of the police interest in the Detroit gangsters, Schwarzkopf said:

"The search for Fleischer and Wagner is being continued. Reports concerning the probable

Hang-nail Infection Fatal to Teacher

Funeral services for Miss Helen Louise Troy, 22, Mifflin Township school teacher, who died in Homestead Hospital yesterday from an infection resulting from a hang-nail, will be held at the home, 327 Tenth avenue, Homestead, at 2 p. m. Saturday. She was taken to the hospital three weeks ago when the infection developed in the small finger of her left hand after she had removed the hang-nail. Four blood transfusions were made during the past two weeks.

Doctor Who Operated On Self Stricken

KANE, Pa., March 31.—(AP.)—Dr. Evan O'Neil Kane, noted surgeon who performed an operation on himself for hernia recently, is critically ill in Kane Summit Hospital with pneumonia.

Radium Poison Caused Death Of E. M. Byers

Water treated with radium contributed largely to the death today of Eben M. Byers, 51, long prominent in Pittsburgh's industrial and society worlds, it was disclosed by Thomas McMahon, executive secretary of the United States Golf Association and a close personal friends of Byers.

The hospital first announced pneumonia as the direct cause of his death. He had been ill for nearly two years.

Byers, for many years chairman of the board of the A. M. Byers Company, which his father founded, was a prime mover in amateur golf during the early days of the sport.

Byers, it was disclosed, was in the New York hospital for a month under the care of some of the most competent radiologists and radium poisoning experts in the country, endeavoring to check the effects of the poison.

Among the group of physicians attending Byers here was Dr. Harrison S. Martland, medical examiner of Essex County, New Jersey, who led the fight against painting watch dials with radium solutions. Dr. Martland discovered that small particles of the paint falling between the teeth of girl workers in a plant at East Orange had resulted in the death of several of the girls.

Others in attendance of Byers were Dr. Frederick Flynn, of the department of internal medicines at Columbia University, and Dr. Joseph S. Wheelwright. They said pneumonia was the immediate cause of his death.

In 1902 and 1903 Byers was runner-up in the national amateur golf championship, and in 1906 won the championship by defeating G. S. Lyon.

In recent years he had been especially devoted to his stable of blooded horses.

A member of the Pittsburgh, Duquesne, Pittsburgh Athletic, Allegheny Country, University, Oakmont and Fox Chapel clubs, he maintained homes at 905 Ridge avenue, Pittsburgh; in Southampton, Long Island, and Aiken, S. C. His winters usually were divided betweeen the South Carolina home and Palm Beach.

Byers was unmarried. He was a brother of J. Frederic Byers, vice president of the Byers Company and president of the United State Golf Association in 1922-23, and of Mrs. J. Dennison Lyon, of New York.

Funeral services will be held in his brother's Sewickley Heights home at a time to be announced later. Interment will be private.

Baby Pinned In Mine Boring

PICHER, Okla., March 31.—(AP.)—Miners were making desperate efforts today to rescue a 3-year-old boy imprisoned in a narrow drill hole at a lead and zinc mine near here.

The child, the son of Paul Collins, mine worker, fell down the hole while playing.

He was believed to be stunned, but still alive.

A force of experienced miners, with a steam shovel, began sinking a shaft parallel to the hole, which was too small to permit rescue workers to be lowered.

Rain Swells Rivers, Cold Spell on Way

A secondary rise of the rivers set in today as a result of rain last night and today, carrying the stage from 19.5 feet at 8 a. m. to 19.8 feet at 2 p. m. at the Point, 5.2 feet below flood mark. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said there was little likelihood of a flood here unless the rainfall at headwaters was much heavier than here. Fair and colder weather was predicted for tomorrow, following snow flurries which arrived with a drop in temperature late today.

Wales to Attend Dinner for Mellon

LONDON, March 31.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales will attend a dinner given by the Pilgrim Society to Andrew W. Mellon, new United States ambassador to Great Britain, on April 14, it was announced today.

STOCK SALES TAX VOTED BY HOUSE

Levies on Bond Transfers And Sale of Produce on Exchanges Suggested

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A tax of 5 cents a $100 on sales of produce on exchanges, including grain and cotton, was voted into the new revenue bill today by the House. It is estimated to return $6,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—The House today stretched a revenue-raising hand toward Wall street.

Over the opposition of the Tammany delegation, it voted a tax of one-fourth of 1 per cent on the transfer value of stock sales, and then took up other proposals to put levies on bond transfers and the sale of produce on exchanges. The stock sales tax was estimated to produce $75,000,000.

Another vote on it will be had tomorrow before the final action on the bill. The amendment does not apply on original issues.

SUPPORTS COMMITTEE

In accepting it, the House again followed the course mapped out for it by the Ways and Means Committee, but the original proposal was altered by the adoption of an amendment by Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, under which the tax bill will be imposed on all orders placed by persons in this country for buying and selling stocks on foreign exchanges. He said it was designed to meet the threat that traders would transfer their operations to Canada.

The House rejected an amendment to put a 1 per cent tax on stock transfer.

The amendment was adopted while the committee awaited a new estimate from the Treasury of the income that might be expected from the revisions of the new revenue bill. Secretary Mills was called upon to submit the estimates of yields of all levies in the bill to determine whether they will be sufficient to balance the 1933 budget.

GLASS BRANDS BURKE 'LIAR'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS.)—Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, peppery author of the pending bill to amend Federal Reserve system legislation, today called James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, "a liar."

Glass and Burke, who appeared in opposition to the bill, had a spectacular clash before the Senate Banking Committee yesterday, when the Senator charged Burke with having voted against the original Federal Reserve act while a member of Congress from Pennsylvania. Burke said he had not voted against it.

Today Glass dug up the record, which revealed Burke having voted in the negative.

The Burke development came after Glass had been successful in getting the Senate Banking Committee to agree to investigate his charges of a bankers' conspiracy to defeat the Glass bill. The investigation will begin early next week.

Although granting Glass an investigation, the committee decided to refer the bill back to a subcommittee with instructions to consider proposed modifications to the bill sponsored by the Federal Reserve Board, which would strip the measure of its provisions prohibiting the use of federal credits for speculative purposes and limiting the character of loans made by member banks.

6,000 Anthracite Miners End Strike

MT. CARMEL, Pa., March 31.—(AP.)—Six thousand striking miners went back to work in several collieries in the Mt. Carmel region today.

Government by Hooey

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

CONGRESSIONAL OUTBURSTS against orderly taxation have discouraged those who have been seeking to stimulate business recovery. Congress soon will have to face indisputable facts.

The insincerity of the "soak the rich" bloc led by Representative LaGuardia is apparent in the maneuver to let in DISGUISED SALES TAXES BY THE BACK DOOR.

Instead of a scientifically devised, widely diffused, moderate manufacturers' sales tax, such as has been successfully administered in Canada, Congress is now considering imposts that will lay burdens unevenly on special commodities, thus disturbing established channels of distribution.

LaGuardia, himself, kingpin in the virtual revival of the KNOW NOTHING movement, while assailing the manufacturers' sales tax, advocates an excise tax on beer.

THOSE WHO FAVOR excise taxes on liquors, provided they could be legalized, and on cigarets, while opposing the sales tax principle, accept the substance while purporting to disapprove the appearance of the sales tax.

Taxes on cigarets and beer, though entirely proper and desirable imposts, would not fall primarily on the rich, but on the masses of consumers. Likewise, proposals of taxes on radios would scarcely be consistent with the "soak the rich" doctrine.

Even taxes on automobiles and refrigerators, which have been proposed as alternatives for a soundly-conceived selected sales tax, attempt to do in a round-about manner what the sub-committee of the House Ways and Means Committee sought vainly to do in the spirit of law and order.

It is highly dangerous to attune taxation programs to the UNSOUND EMOTIONAL CLAMOR OF DEMAGOGUES.

THE PROPOSAL for confiscatory surtaxes is unworkable, for the wealthy have legal avenues for evading the tax.

And, if the proposed confiscation could be enforced, the results would be CALAMITOUS to American prosperity. The British experiment in bleeding industry white with excessive taxation resulted in making depression chronic on the British Isles, and in transforming large numbers of British workers into permanent boarders at the bureau which dispenses enervating doles.

Organized wealth in the United States, which admittedly committed blunders of commission and omission, has already been drastically soaked by a virtual capital levy in the form of deflation of prices of securities and real estate.

Even before the House of Representatives embarked on an orgy to destroy initiative and enterprise, American business was choked by the discouraged state of mind of would-be profit-makers.

UNDER OUR BICAMERAL system in Washington, the Senate has a magnificent opportunity to align itself on the side of orderly government and sound economics by drawing up a tax plan, similar to the original proposal of the House committee, which is consonant with national needs under existing emergency conditions.

The social cost of an ill-considered and punitive tax scheme, which would further shrink business activity, would be colossal, and, as American voters analyze this tangled economic subject, they will strongly rebuke the Representatives who sought popularity by running counter to sound economic principles.

Perhaps by the November election the American public will be able to gauge the effect of the threatened tax follies on the timing of economic recuperation. If so, voters will doubtless drive from public life the ignorant emotionalists who have "PLAYED POLITICS WITH HUMAN MISERY."

Hundreds of Swans Swept Over Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 31.—(AP.)—Caught in the swift currents of the upper Niagara River late last night, hundreds of wild swan were swept over the Horseshoe and American falls, many being killed.

The lower river today was filled with dead and wounded swans, and rivermen were preparing to rescue the wounded birds if possible.

Cicero Radio Studio Damaged by Bomb

CHICAGO, March 31.—(INS.)—Terrorists today hurled a black powder bomb through a transom into the studio of Radio Station WHFC in Cicero.

The studio is on the third floor of a business building. No one was injured, but about $1,200 damage was caused. R. W. Hoffman, owner of the station, attributed the attack to enemies of political candidates who have been speaking over WHFC.

GRAND JURY MAY GET CHARGES

Indictments to Be Sought If Disclosures in County Hauling Inquiry Warrant

District Attorney A. T. Park today said he was ready to act if the County Controller's probe of county truck hire developed anything to justify indictments.

The prosecutor made known his readiness as the investigation neared a climax with the calling of Watson G. Bowser, Kittanning contractor, to explain payments to him by the county last year amounting to $200,000 for truck hire and rental of equipment.

LEGAL BATTLE POSSIBLE

Park said:

"I am sitting back as a quiet observer, ready to act if the investigation turns up anything of a criminal nature. The Controller has just as much authority as I have to subpena and examine witnesses. The County Solicitor is in charge, and I am looking to him to turn over anything which would warrant grand jury action."

Should Bowser refuse to produce his books, he will be formally committed in contempt, and after his release on habeas corpus proceedings the question of the legal right of the Controller to audit will be argued in Common Pleas Court.

HUGE PROFIT HINTED

Members of the firm of Lafferty Brothers, 7440 Finance street, who hauled slag for the county airport at 12½ cents a ton, today said they thought they were the only Allegheny County trucks on the job, the rest being from out of the county. They were engaged by Bowser, according to testimony, who received 60 cents a ton for the hauling.

James Lafferty said:

"We were instructed by Bowser's representative not to have our name on the trucks. We could have taken the contract at 20 cents a ton and made a fair profit, but couldn't make out at 12½ cents so we finally withdrew."

A feature of the hearing yesterday was the testimony of John J. Dean, Bloomfield political leader and close associate of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley. At the completion of his testimony Dean volunteered his opinion of the audit in an impassioned speech. He declared, addressing his remarks to Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank:

"You nor no person living can show that I ever got a dime I was not entitled to from Allegheny County. This is a political audit. You got it up for political purposes. You haven't got anything on me. If you have, indict Johnny Dean. He can always stand on his own feet. This is all politics."

Dean testified he had as many as 10 or 12 trucks working at different times last year for the county, that he paid $1.75 an hour for them and was paid by check from the Controller's office at the rate of $3 an hour.

IDENTIFIES CHECKS

Asked about his bank accounts he said he had three last year in three different banks, but has none this year. He identified 25 checks which he said he was given last year for truck hire.

E. W. Schallenberger, who drove a truck that he owns and hired to Dean, testified he was paid $17.50 a day whether he worked a full day or not. After hauling men to work one day in May he took a moving from the Mt. Lebanon home of William H. Ziefel, former chief County Commissioners' clerk, to his summer home at Buckeye Lake, later hauling a load back from there, for which he was paid his usual rate by Dean.

M. C. Conick, chief auditor for Main & Co., conducting the County Commissioners' audit, testified the records ofthe county show $7,710 paid to Dean during 1931 for Schallenberger's truck, and that Schallenberger's books show $4,725 paid to him by Dean for use of the truck. On this basis, Schallenberger received $17.50 a day while it cost the county $12.50 a day for Dean's services in getting Schallenberger's truck to do the work.

80 RUSS PLANES CONCENTRATED NEAR MANCHURIAN BORDER

TOKIO REPORTS MASSING OF TROOPS

Fresh Troops Arrive to Aid In Defending Changchun; Rebels Surround Town

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service

HARBIN, March 31.—Eighty Soviet airplanes have arrived at Spaskk, 100 miles from the Manchurian frontier on the Kharbarovsk branch of the Ussuri Railway, according to word received here today.

Concentration of Soviet aircraft was regarded as significant in view of the frequent clashes between Japanese soldiers and Chinese insurrectionaries near the frontier.

Troops under Gen. Chang Hai-Peng, who fought with the Japanese in the original invasion of Manchuria, arrived at Changchun today to aid in defense of the new Manchurian capital.

TWO JAPANESE KILLED

Two Japanese were killed and three wounded in a skirmish near Hailin, where Chinese insurgents have been active. Japanese military claimed 40 Chinese were killed and 50 wounded.

The town of Taolaicho, between Changchun and Nungan, was surrounded today by rebels and bandits. Japanese troops from Kirin were hard pressed by the insurrectionaries in this region. The seizure of 200,000 rounds of rifle bullets and 5,000 trench mortar shells by rebels near Nungan in a clash in which 100 Japanese were reported killed or captured encouraged the Chinese resistance.

TROOPS MASSED

TOKIO, March 31.—(AP.)—The War Office published today an official report from Harbin which told of concentration of 30,000 Soviet Russian troops at Vladivostok and said the number has been increased steadily since last January by arrival of reinforcements from Europe.

Since the end of January, the report said, Soviet authorities have been confiscating the property of inhabitants of the Siberian maritime provinces whom they suspected of "white" tendencies. About 20,000 of these suspected "whites" have been deported to Central Siberia, it said.

Mrs. Short to Sail For Rites in China

SEATTLE, Wash., March 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Short, of Tacoma, mother of Robert Short, killed in China February 23, when the plane he was flying for Chinese forces was shot down in combat with Japanese fliers, will sail from here Saturday aboard the President Taft to attend her son's funeral services. She will be a guest of the Chinese government. The services were delayed pending her arrival.

Japan Launches New 10,000-Ton Cruiser

TOKIO, March 31.—(AP.)—The 10,000-ton cruiser Atago was completed at the naval dockyard at Kure today and incorporated into the navy. It is the sixth of Japan's group of eight 10,000-ton ships. The seventh, the Maya, is now undergoing trial runs, and is expected to be commissioned soon, while the eighth, the Chokai, will be completed within two months.

U. S. Wheat Feeding 'Americans' Captors

SHANGHAI, March 31.—(INS.)—Part of the population of the Kienli "Communist Republic" up the River Yangtze which is holding captive the Rev. Bert Nelson and Charles Baker, Americans, is being fed with American flood relief wheat while working on the Yangtze dikes, it was learned today.

Friends of the two prisoners are urging that the food supplies be withheld until they are released.

Ward Politician Jailed for Rum

James Harris, 45, said to be a North Side ward politician, was sentenced to serve three months in jail after he pleaded guilty to a liquor charge in Federal Court today. He pleaded when he was brought in for violation of his parole on a similar charge. He also was ordered by Judge R. M. Gibson to pay $500 fine and costs on his previous prosecution.

billion dollar revenue bill and prepared for separate votes tomorrow on levies on automobiles, wartime surtaxes and estate taxes and coal and oil import levies to be substituted for the defeated sales tax. Acting Chairman Crisp said indications were that five separate votes would be demanded when the bill comes to the stage for final passage.

The amendments drafted by the committee for submission today were calculated to produce $241,000,000 of revenue and bring the bill's total to $984,500,000. Another proposal considered in addition to these calls for a revision of the depreciation allowances of corporations, so as to bring in $12,000,000 more.

Savings of $273,000,000 in appropriations and postoffice expenses are expected to round out the program to meet a prospective $1,241,000,000 Treasury deficit in 1933.

Representative Clancy (Rep.), of Michigan, served notice he would demand a separate vote on the 3 per cent tax on automobiles, the 2 per cent levy on trucks and the 1 per cent assessment on accessories, which are expected to yield $57,000,000.

SEES DISCRIMINATION

He charged the levy was discriminatory and that "the automobile industry has done more to bring about prosperity by its courage than has any other industry."

Majority Leader Rainey said:

"We certainly will have a separate vote on the Swing amendment re-establishing the surtax rates on incomes in excess of $100,000."

The amendment, sponsored by Representative Swing (Rep.), of California, imposes rates graduated up to a maximum 65 per cent surtax on incomes in excess of $10,000,000 in addition to the normal income tax rate.

The levy of 10 cents a hundred pounds on imported coal carried in the amendment by Representative Boland (Dem.), of Pennsylvania, also is opposed and an effort will be made for a seperate vote that might strike it out of the bill.

Representative Schafer (Rep.), of Wisconsin, said he would ask for a separate vote on malt, malt syrup and wort, which is used in making home brew.

Secretary Mills conferred at length today with President Hoover and said afterward he had discussed "the general situation," including taxes.

He declined, however, to discuss the tax bill.

POLICE GASSED IN MOCK WAR

An unexpected brush fire and a whiff of gas that partly blinded city and county police officials injected a bit of reality into the competitive demonstration of methods of waging chemical warfare against criminals held yesterday at District Attorney Andrew T. Park's farm in Glenshaw.

The fire caused grass in a huge field where the demonstration was being held to blaze up after a liquid fire and gas bomb had been exploded. Many of the hundred state, county, city and industrial police watching the display helped extinguish the blaze.

District Attorney Park, Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety Department; Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and County Detective Chief George W. Murren got a taste of tear gas when the wind shifted during the demonstration and were forced to cover their faces with their handkerchiefs.

The demonstration, which was held by the Lake Erie Chemical Company and the Federal Laboratories, consisted of the firing of new long-range gas-projectile guns, the exploding of various kinds of tear-gas and smoke bombs, and the laying of a huge smoke screen.

PRICE REDUCED ON FORD 4'S

Prices of the new four-cylinder cars will be $50 less than those quoted on the corresponding eight-cylinder body types, the announcement said.

The prices of the new eight-cylinder car average about $10 more in each class than the corresponding type of the 1931 four-cylinder cars, making the new fours some $40 cheaper than the 1931 models.

The prices of the eight, all f. o. b. Detroit, were announced as follows: Roadster, $460; de luxe roadster, $500; phaeton, $495; de luxe phaeton, $545; coupe, $490; de luxe coupe, $575; sport coupe, $535; cabriolet, $610; Victoria, $600; tudor sedan, $500; de luxe tudor sedan, $550; fordor sedan, $590; de luxe fordor sedan, $645; convertible sedan, $650; chassis, $370.

It also was announced that safety glass throughout will be standard equipment on all de luxe models and on the sport coupe, cabriolet, Victoria and convertible sedan, and available at a slight extra cost on standard types.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Representative Albert H. Vestal, of Indiana, was in the Naval Hospital here today as the result of a heart attack. Capt. Percival Rossiter, of the hospital, declared his condition was "very good."

Vestal, Republican whip in the House, had been active in his duties during consideration of the tax bill.

FIGHT ON BONUS LEGISLATION PUSHED

Fish Warns Veterans on Peril of Alienating Public Through Unwise Demands

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Efforts to head off veterans' bonus legislation were progressing today by administration supporters in the House.

In the face of President Hoover's promise to veto any bill for full payment of the bonus, involving a drain of $2,000,000,000 on the Treasury, Representatives Patman (Dem.), of Texas, and Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, were consolidating their forces in an attempt to assure sufficient votes to override a presidential veto.

APPEAL TO VETS

An appeal to the veterans to halt their drive for full payment until the budget is balanced was made by Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York. He said:

"I appeal to all groups, and the veterans in particular, to demonstrate again that same spirit of patriotism and personal sacrifice that prevailed in the World War in defense of our nation, and put aside, at least temporarily, all demands for additional payments to able-bodied veterans during this industrial crisis and national emergency."

Fish called at the White House today and said he had informed President Hoover he believed the possibilities of the adoption of the new bonus legislation had been killed by the chief executive's recent statement opposing it.

PROPOSALS 'ABSURD'

He said the proposals by Patman and Rankin to issue new currency to make new bonus payments were "too absurd to discuss." He added:

"I understand the Secretary of the Treasury has suggested that if such notes are issued they carry the picture of Representative Patman on one side. My amendment would be that they place Rankin's picture on the other side.

"Rankin's suggestion is inconceivable. If it were sound, the same principle would apply to balancing the budget."

A student might seek a long time the correct definitions for those names and words, remembering Voltaire's:

They all wear gray flannel shirts and overalls, and there are no degrees for students.

The people and the Governor of Kentucky who feel that they have a right to run their own affairs, including coal mines, probably have opinions of Lenin, Mussolini, Hoover and Wilson, unlike those of the Mena college.

MAINE'S G. O. P. FACES DRY ROW

PORTLAND, Me., March 31.—(AP.)—Republicans, moving in today for their state convention on the heels of the outgoing Democrats, heard rumbling of discord in the party on the prohibition question.

The Democrats, concluding their state convention yesterday, disposed of the liquor issue in a platform plank demanding submission of the question of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the people by direct vote or through special conventions.

Indications that an effort would be made today to include some sort of "wet" plank in the G. O. P. platform, bone dry for years, came as the delegates met last night for an informal discussion of party policies.

It was not expected that the convention today would send a slate of delegates to the national convention pledged to President Hoover. In contrast, the Democrats yesterday voted 286 to 245 for an instructed delegation of 12, subject to unit rule, for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

RECORD PROFIT FOR UTILITY

534, a decrease of $870,168, or 3.05 per cent from the record year of 1930, but it was the greatest of any year in the company's history with the exceptions of 1929 and 1930.

DOMESTIC USE GROWS

The report attributed the reduction in gross income to lower industrial and commercial sales. Residential consumers, who have been demanding lower rates, showed increases in consumption and partially offset the lower industrial and commercial sales.

The report says:

"The average use of electric service by residential customers increased from 723 kilowatt hours in 1930 to 757 kilowatt hours in 1931, a gain of 34 kilowatt hours, or 4.07 per cent, reflecting the increased use of domestic electric appliances and lighting."

F. R. Phillips, president, declared in the report that new construction expenditures for 1931 totaled $1,899,092. While there were no major additions to property during the year, he said that a number of minor additions and improvements were made, all looking toward greater reliability of service and more economical operation.

T. R. Jr., Nicknamed 'One Shot Teddy'

MANILA, P. I., March 31.—(AP.)—Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt came back to Manila today from a nine-day tour of Northern Luzon Island with a new nickname, reminiscent of his famous father's reputation as a big game hunter.

The Governor was dubbed "One Shot Teddy" by members of his party when he killed a wild carabao (a water buffalo noted for its viciousness when aroused) with a single shot from 150 yards.

ROOSEVELT'S HOME STATE UNPLEDGED

Tammany Chief Undecided Whether Delegates Will Be for Governor or Smith

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt may be picking up convention delegates all the way from Maine to North Dakota—but he is going to have to wait until June to find out whether his own state of New York is for or against him.

Take the word of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, for that. Curry assured Washington newpapermen today that he was "perfectly sincere" when he stated that New York does not yet know what it is going to do as between Roosevelt and Ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

CITY IN CONTROL

New York's 94 delegates, he said, will repair to Chicago in June, hold a caucus, and there decide where they are going. And the city delegation, he emphasized, will be in control and make the decision under the unit rule. He explained:

"There are a number of strong candidates in the field. We believe that any strong candidate can carry New York this year."

In point of fact, Tammany has not a great deal of love for either Roosevelt or Smith. The relations between "Al" and the Hall have not been cordial for some years, especially since Curry succeeded to the leadership. As for Roosevelt, he never was Tammany's candidate. He was "wished" on the organization by Smith in 1928 and some of his acts as Governor have not been calculated to endear him to the organization.

PENNSYLVANIA WATCHED

In the opinion of many observers, April 26 will be the turning point in the Roosevelt candidacy—and quite probably for Tammany, too. On that date Pennsylvania and Massachusetts hold their primaries. Both Roosevelt and Smith are entered in these states. If Roosevelt captures these delegations the hope of stopping him will be scant. If he fails to do so, the encouragement to the "stop Roosevelt" forces will be mighty, indeed.

Texas Solid for Garner, Publisher Declares

NEW YORK, March 31.—(INS.)—Amon G. Carter, publisher, of Fort Worth, Tex., brought into New York today the flat declaration that Texas was solid for John N. Garner as Democratic standard-bearer for the presidency.

A "Garner-for-President" button adorned his lapel. Carter, refreshed by a sleep after his trip here in 11 hours 35 minutes, in an airplane piloted by Frank Hawks, through storms, said Texans were for Garner "on his merits."

It was no mere "favorite son" movement, he said. Texas would be for him were he from Maine or any other state, said Carter.

STATE CONTROL OF TRADE SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS.)—Government control of trade is inevitable unless small manufacturers are permitted to combine against ruinous competition, Charles F. Abbott, director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, told a Senate committee today. He urged enactment of the Nye bills to prevent price discrimination and enforce trade agreements. He testified:

"State control is the only alternative left to us if the present intolerable conditions, prohibiting us from legally entering trade agreements, are not removed.

"That businessmen are opposed to the anti-trust laws is a popular fallacy. But there has grown up in this country a system of law enforcement which leaves the statutes at the mercy of the prejudices and policies of individuals who happen to be holding political office."

Jail Library Grows Under Direction of Engelsberg

When Joseph Engelsberg, Mayor Charles H. Kline's Republican leader in the Hill district, leaves the county jail April 15 or May 15—the date depending on a fine settlement—he will leave behind him one of the finest small libraries in the country, Warden John McNeil said today.

A few weeks after Engelsberg was jailed, November 16, for a federal liquor law violation, Warden McNeil appointed him as librarian.

Since then Engelsberg has added hundreds of volumes to the jail library, most of them gifts by his friends.

A donation of 400 books, mostly of the better type of fiction, was received today from the Carnegie Library.

McNeil said today that Engelsberg has installed a modern library system and that his records show each of the books, except the recent additions, have been read at least 10 times since he became librarian. Interest in fiction and the more serious writings seem equally divided, the warden added.

Actor-Author Dies Amid Roars of Audience

CLEVELAND, March 31.—(AP.)—A stage comedy turned to tragedy last night when the principal actor, who was also author of the play, died during a performance in the Lorain Avenue Masonic Temple.

The author-actor was Sam J. George, 66, justice of the peace and prominent citizen of Elyria.

The comedy, "Smythe vs. Smith," was being presented before the Lake Erie Masonic Lodge, with George and other members of the Elyria Commandery as actors.

George was playing the role of a lawyer. For 15 minutes he and the "opposing counsel" had engaged in repartee. Then came the time for the latter to address the jury. It was the cue for George to lean back and pretend to go to sleep.

The audience roared as George, looking very droll in a red wig and comedy nose, followed the script.

Suddenly, George's hand dropped off the table, and fellow players saw that something was wrong. The curtain was rung down, and a physician pronounced the author-actor dead of heart disease.

WIFE WITHOUT CLUES IN 'RIDE' KILLING OF WIRE TAPPER

EX-CHAUFFEUR OF MAX HOFF PUT ON SPOT

Penn Twp. Constable Hears Shots, Finds Man Dead; Fled From Philadelphia

Chief George Murren, of the county detective bureau, said today the wife of Joe (Woogles) Jacobs, riddled with revolver bullets as he sat behind the steering wheel of his automobile in Homestead road, Penn Township, was unable to furnish any clue as to his slayers.

Mrs. Bella Jacobs, the wife, was questioned for more than an hour. Though she had been married to Jacobs for 11 years, she knew nothing of his friends or his activities beyond the fact that he "gambled a little," according to Murren.

Found in a rooming house at 2033 Wylie avenue, she was taken to the morgue, where she screamed, then collapsed after identifying the body of her husband, who, to police, was an ex-convict and wire-tapper. She shouted:

"Why would anyone do this? He was a good man."

WIRES TAPPED

From Mrs. Jacobs detectives had sought to obtain facts which would support their theory that Jacobs was put on the spot because he had "tapped" a wire into a local horse-race betting shop, then placed a bet on the winner.

From Philadelphia today came the revelation that Jacobs was the former chauffeur for Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff, well-known Philadelphia figure. Both were questioned in a racket investigation in 1928.

Mrs. Jacobs told James L. Davidson, Coroner's chief clerk, she had followed her husband here from Philadelphia two months ago. She said he went out almost every night, never took her along and never told her of his associates or activities.

City detectives quoted the wife as saying Jacobs had left Philadelphia because that city became "too hot" for him.

Police today were seeking two confederates of Jacobs in his wire-tapping activities.

ADMIT BOOKIE RAID

Four weeks ago in a Galveston avenue rooming house the three were arrested and in Police Court admitted they had installed three telephones in the room to help them "tap" a wire into the bookie shop. The others were listed as Louis Coster, Galveston avenue, and Jack Woodrow, 26, of Miller street.

Jacobs' body was found by Constable Samuel Bickerstaff, of Penn Township, in a deserted road off Sandy Creek road. Bickerstaff said he heard shots, then saw three men pull away in an auto parked near Jacobs'. Circumstances indicated Jacobs had been shot from inside his car and apparently had driven the killers to the scene himself.

Detectives said Jacobs, 39, had been arrested in Trenton, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., and had once served an 18-months' prison term. Philadelphia reports described him as a pickpocket and small-time racketeer.

In his pockets was $1.50.

SUSPECTS HELD IN TITO ATTACK

City detectives left for Cleveland today to question two suspects under arrest there as the men, who having failed in their attempt to "muscle in" on the beer racket here by trying to kidnap Joseph Tito, political leader of 1817 Fifth avenue, escaped after robbing Tito and his wife.

Cleveland police said the suspects are Arthur Miller, 25, and Alexander Birns, 25, both of Cleveland. They were arrested on information furnished by Tito, it was said. Inspector Frank R. Boyd said an attempt would be made to bring the men here.

Police expressed the belief that the men, who stopped Tito outside his home and tried to force him into their machine, came here in an effort to "muscle in" on the beer racket.

The men forced him to take them into his home where they robbed him and his wife of $600 in cash and jewelry valued at $2,000, he said.

Mutual 'Love and Respect' May Bar Harding Divorce

By CAROL CROSS

International News Service.

RENO, Nev., March 31.—This haven of the mismated wondered today if the "love and respect" Ann Harding and Harry Bannister have for each other may rise as a barrier to the divorce they are seeking as a way to "complete happiness."

No legal authority was willing to predict that Nevada courts would ban their divorce on grounds of collusion. It appeared possible, however, that statements of the blonde screen star and her actor husband in announcing the parting of their ways might make it difficult to establish grounds which would not constitute collusion even under the liberal laws of Nevada.

In announcing their determination to seek divorce both spoke of their "love and respect" for each other.

It was reported that decision was reached for Bannister to seek the decree of marital dissolution in Nevada rather than California because of the strict laws on collusion in the latter state.

Bannister, now living on the Mayberry dude ranch to establish a residence in Nevada, would not discuss the grounds on which he plans to seek a divorce.

NEWSIE TO SCAN SUSPECT

Joe Shelehida, a Sun-Telegraph newsboy, released from the hospital yesterday, where he had been since March 19, when shot by a bandit during an attempted hold-up of an Ambridge real estate office, tonight will visit Beaver Police Station to try to identify a suspect. W. M. Lewis, manager of the real estate office, shot in the hand by a second bullet, will also accompany the Ambridge police.

Sepack, police said, also admitted holding up Charles Van Kirk in New Brighton, March 19, and an hour later, L. Sullivan in Beaver Falls. The total loot for the three jobs was $7, police said. When captured, Sepack was armed, police reported.

Organized strike mobilization here will be withheld until May Day, for which large demonstrations are being planned by the union, according to Borich.

CABINET BALKS DE VALERA ON NOTE

Free State Head Meets New Setback in Attempt to Iron Out Divergent Views

By LINTON WELLS

International News Service.

DUBLIN, March 31.—President Eamonn De Valera is encountering unexpected difficulties in compromising the divergent views of members of the executive council over the note to be sent to London on abolition of the oath of allegiance and retention of the land annuities.

International News Service learned from a reliable source that following several conferences with his legal advisers yesterday, De Valera last night held a private meeting with recalcitrants in his cabinet and asked their opinion of a revised draft of the note.

This was rejected also, because of its uncompromising tone, and as a consequence a special cabinet meeting scheduled for today to consider the reply has been postponed.

Gerald Boland, De Valera's parliamentary secretary and official government spokesman, said:

"There will be no meeting of the council today."

He deprecated reports of a cabinet breach and attributed the delay in drawing up the note to "the pressure of heavy business," but reports from reliable sources indicated otherwise.

Boland indicated the reply would be considered at the regular Friday cabinet meeting and, after approval, would be despatched to London in the regular diplomatic pouch for transmission to Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas.

The Irish Press, De Valera's official organ, today condemned reports that Ottawa may ban the Irish Free State from the coming imperial conference and characterized the check-up by Britain of Irishmen in civil service as "deliberate efforts to becloud the real issue."

MINÉ MURDER JURY IN SNAG

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 31.—The jury deciding the fate of the nine defendants charged with murder in the Arnold City mine riot case, renewed deliberations today after a night in which they were so hopelessly deadlocked they discontinued consideration of the case and retired.

Possibility of the jury reporting to the court that it was unable to reach a verdict loomed today.

The defendants, all former employes of the Pittsburgh Coal Company are charged with the murder of Mike Philopovich at Arnold City last June during a battle between strikers and company representatives.

"We are satisfied that most of Miss Windsor's friends and admirers will withhold judgment until such time as the case is heard on its merits, and she has the opportunity to disprove the alleged charges."

death of Wagner persist. However, no definite proof of this has been received as yet. Fleischer is reported to have been seen approximately a week ago, and this angle of the investigation is being vigorously pushed."

Regarding the report of the child being kept under "very suspicious circumstances" at a camp in the Catskill Mountains near Kingston, N. Y., the bulletin said the child never had been seen in the vicinity before March 1 and investigation indicated the child was very much younger than the Lindbergh baby. The bulletin concluded:

"All other children investigated yesterday lacked the necessary identifying marks and were in no way connected with this case."

Norfolk Go-Betweens Still Evasive on Quiz

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service.

NORFOLK, Va., March 31.—Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, acting as "spokesman" for the three prominent Norfolk men negotiating for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, today answered in an evasive manner the barrage of questions designed to draw from him the latest developments.

His interview with 40 newspaper reporters served to accentuate the mystery shrouding the Norfolk stage of the drama.

Such questions as: "Is the Lindbergh baby well?" "What assurance have the supposed kidnapers given that they are taking care of the baby?"—he answered by saying:

"We cannot answer."

MOVES KEPT SECRET

Admiral Burrage said that neither he nor his colleagues, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock and John Hughes Curtis, local shipbuilder, had seen the kidnapers or their representatives in the last 24 hours.

He declined to reveal what new moves, if any, are being made.

Admiral Burrage was asked if it was not a fact that Curtis, who established the original contact with the supposed kidnapers, had in the last day or two been in communication in person, by telephone, by radio, or in some other manner with a responsible lieutenant of the leaders of the kidnapers. He replied:

"Nothing can be accomplished without contact with the kidnapers."

Asked if it were not true that the delay in bringing the negotiations to a quick conclusion was due to the wariness of the kidnapers or the go-between on possible charges of conspiracy, the admiral replied:

"Common sense will answer—Yes."

He said he "could not answer" the question of whether or not a woman or perhaps two women are taking part in establishing the resumption of contact with the kidnapers.

Lindy Clue of Woman Probed by Phila. Police

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Walter C. Hancock, prominent club woman, who says she was visited by a woman who believed she had a good clue to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, said today an investigation being conducted by Philadelphia police might take a week or two.

Mrs. Hancock, the wife of a coal dealer, said she was not at liberty to give the name of the woman, adding:

"She is not sensational and has no desire to capitalize in any way on what she knows of the case.

"She is certain from the action of certain people she knows that the baby is in Philadelphia, or nearby, at least."

Mrs. Hancock would not say why the woman selected her for the purpose of telling the story, but added it was "very interesting," and might be divulged later.

Director Kern Dodge, of the Department of Public Safety, said he did not care to discuss information which the woman gave Mrs. Hancock.

ROBBERS CAUSE KIDNAP SCARE

CHICAGO, March 31.—(INS.)—What appeared to be a plot to kidnap 2-year-old Helen Betty Baer, daughter of Arthur J. Baer, wealthy banker, was said by police today to have been merely an attempt to burglarize the Baer apartment.

A maid entered the child's room last night and heard a rustling of a locked screen on one of the windows. She reported hearing a man say:

"This must be the baby's room."

Screaming, the maid hustled Betty into another part of the apartment. The prowlers, frightened, abandoned their plans. After investigation, police declared there was no proof that kidnaping was intended.

BRIDGE MATCH 'LEAK' STIRS FURORE

Copies of Hands Disclosed Before Olympics Start; Culbertson Undismayed

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—A leak blamed on some unknown ''black sheep'' caused a furore today as 50,000 contract bridge fiends all over the world prepared to play in the ''world bridge olympic.''

The ''world bridge olmypic'' is sponsored by the National Bridge Association, an Ely Culbertson organization. At exactly 8:01 p. m. tomorrow, the 50,000 are to sit down and play 16 hands, most of them trick hands. Gold and silver trophies to the number of 350 are the rewards.

The hands were sent out by Ely Culbertson's organization to 1,000 game captains sworn not to reveal them until a few minutes before the "Olympics."

Yesterday, the New York Times received a neat white folder presenting the layout of the hands. Other copies were reported to have drifted into other hands. Louis Joseph Vance, long a bridge foe of Mr. Culbertson, said you could obtain copies from Broadway speculators at $10 up.

But Mr. Culbertson was undismayed. He said most bridge players would study the documents for a week and still not know the right way to bid and play the hands.

Mr. Vance said a leisurely study of the hands by players who got advance copies would give them an advantage and make a farce of the tournament. Mr. Culbertson said he'd bet $1,000 to $1 Mr. Vance and Mrs. Madeline Kerwin, another bridge enemy of Mr. Culbertson's, couldn't come within 60 per cent of "par" even by bidding and playing the hands fully exposed. "Par" is the score Mr. Culbertson considers the best result obtainable through sound bidding and play.

SENATORS HEAR HARLAN CHARGE

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS.)—A group of weary college students from New York universities today told an informal Senate Committee hearing that their lives had been threatened when they attempted to enter Kentucky to study conditions in mine fields of Harlan and Bell counties.

They protested against the treatment they received from the Kentucky officials before Democratic Senators Costigan, of Colorado, Copeland, of New York, and Logan, of Kentucky.

Bob F. Hall, leader of the party, said their group of 60 students were met outside the state line near Cumberland Gap by an armed mob and escorted into Kentucky. He said:

"The mob was led by William B. Smith, county attorney. I was asked if we believed in God. I said I could not answer for all of the party. We were taken to a courthouse within the Kentucky state line and were accused of being the rah-rah element of Communism. We protested that we were not Communists, but were told we could not go on.

"Smith said the rivers would run red with blood before Communism was allowed in the state."

COUNTY BOARD HIRES, FIRES IN HOSPITAL

Commissioners Meet at McGovern Bedside; Many Employes Get Furloughs

Business of the county was transacted today in the Valley Hospital, Sewickley, where Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the County Commissioners, is recovering from a broken ankle.

With McGovern's injured foot very much in evidence in a room filled with cigar smoke, Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr, and a corps of clerks, hired and fired and passed on other business.

John W. Vickerman, of the Bureau of Elections, was granted permission to hire eight custodians to set up vote machines in the Seventh and Ninth Legislative districts. Two of these were designated as Jack Gray and Paul Angelo, former Poole Engineering & Machine Co. employes. One hundred and 60 vote machines will be in use at the coming primaries, it was stated.

TIRED OF HOSPITAL

At one time Commissioner Barr suggested that the meeting be adjourned, because it was tiring Commissioner McGovern, to which he replied:

"I'm only tired of being in here."

The board hired George S. Edwards, West View, as a clerk in the maintenance of roads department at $1,800. It furloughed James Priddy, utility man, Bureau of Bridges; W. J. Subsaro, bookkeep; J. J. Mogan, clerk; R. Gentile, clerk; William S. Keller, messenger; W. C. Stitzell, clerk; Giusuno Pattella, transitman; James Brumbar, timekeeper; F. J. Puisck, clerk, and E. F. Moriarity, assistant superintendent in the Bureau of Roads, to effect a savings of $19,430.

FUND FOR RIIS

Robert Van Tassel, of Crafton, was hired as a utility man in the Bureau of Bridges, and Director Paul V. Riis was allowed $1,935 for labor to put the South Park golf course in condition. Then these were dismissed from the Bureau of Parks: Albert J. Succop, engineer; H. W. Damon, architect; Victor Beucher, landscape gardener; W. L. Denis, assistant forester, and Ewalt McRoberts, foreman.

Just before the meeting adjourned the concessions in the parks were discussed, but no action was taken. McGovern said he was interested in getting the people to the parks. He said:

"We probably will have to get a certificate of public convenience to get people out to the parks for less than 75 cents, the rate charged now."

SON OF BUTLER SPEAKS AGAIN AT SOMERSET

Ex-Marine Still Suffering From Laryngitis; Stadtfeld Scores Phila. 'Slate'

SOMERSET, Pa., March 31.—(AP)—The Independent Republican banner was carried into Somerset County today with another blast at the Philadelphia Republican organization.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, at the head of the Independent ticket as candidate for the United States Senate, was forced to sit mute in the main court room of the Somerset County Courthouse while his son, Smedley D. Jr., served as his mouthpiece.

The general is suffering from laryngitis and was unable to address the crowd that overflowed the room into the corridor.

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, candidate for the Superior Court, made the principal speech. He said litigants of Western Pennsylvania would have "difficulties" imposed upon them if he, a Pittsburgh judge, is removed from the Superior bench. Judge Stadtfeld is not included on the slate indorsed by the Philadelphia Republicans.

BEDFORD NEXT STOP

A delegation from Bedford County came here to accompany the party to Bedford.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 31.—(AP.)—Suffering from a mild attack of laryngitis, Gen. Smedley Butler was examined by a physician on his arrival in Greensburg last night and was advised to refrain from speech-making for several days. Later a nurse was sent to the hotel to attend Gen. Butler.

His voice began to fail shortly after he addressed a meeting in Connellsville. He got through the speech with difficulty.

Butler grinned broadly last night as he stepped forward on the platform. He whispered:

"I've lost my voice, and I'll have to take care of it. I'm going to need it to chew up that Philadelphia gang."

VARE ATTACKED

His prepared address, read by his son, urged the voters to help "save this commonwealth from the control of Vareism and the Philadelphia crowd."

He reiterated that he stands for strict enforcement of prohibition. He stressed the need for unemployment relief and urged rigid control of public utilities.

Other speakers included Ralph E. Flinn, of Pittsburgh, candidate for Auditor General; Judge Joseph D. Stadtfeld, of Pittsburgh, candidate for Superior Court, and Benjamin H. Thompson, candidate for State Senator in Westmoreland County.

DRY STAND LAUDED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 31.—Gen. Smedley D. Butler, candidate for the United States Senate, opened his campaign in the southwestern tour of counties here by declaring himself as strongly in favor of a bonus for ex-service men, stating that if it had not been for the service of our former soldiers we would have no country today.

Speaking before a large audience, the former Marine general gained loud applause by declaring himself a dry now and forever, whether elected or defeated in his present race. Greene County was one of the first counties in Pennsylvania to go dry by local option.

SOPHIE TUCKER TO MAKE FILMS

Happy and peppy as ever, Sophie Tucker, of vaudeville fame, who has found a new joy through radio, arrived in Pittsburgh today with a new contract for six movie-shorts tucked away and the happy prospect of broadcasting tonight with Rudy Vallee over a national hookup.

The songbird of jazz songs made the trip especially for tonight's broadcast, which will be staged in Station WCAE, "Voice of the Sun-Telegraph." She was accompanied by Ray Perkins, her accompanist, Ted Shapiro, and her composer and continuity writer, Jack Yellen. A hurried stop at the William Penn Hotel and the party rushed to WCAE for rehearsal with Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees.

Concerning movies she said:

"I haven't deserted movies. Signed a new contract yesterday for six short films and start work on them in 10 days. Negotiations are now going on for a radio contract for weekly broadcasts. I haven't deserted vaudeville for these, however, but pick my engagements.

"You know, my first broadcast was with Rudy, and it is great to make the quick jump here to broadcast with him."

BASIL BANGHART

JAIL BREAKER ESCAPED HERE

Basil Banghart, 32, described as a member of the Detroit Purple gang, who escaped Sunday from jail at South Bend, Ind., by shooting and wounding a guard and throwing red pepper into the eyes of aonther, is the man who fled from a deputy United States marshal in Pittsburgh, October 16, 1928, federal officials say.

He was recaptured two weeks later in Philadelphia and taken to the Atlanta Penitentiary, from where he had also escaped two years before, with three other prisoners. His escape in South Bend was like that of Paul Jaworski in Pittsburgh a few years ago.

The day Banghart escaped here he had been brought from Bedford, where he was arrested for transporting a stolen automobile in interstate commerce. In a corridor of the Federal Building he broke away from his guard, ran down two flights of stairs to the street and disappeared.

CLERGY URGED TO AID BUTLER

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—A campaign to enlist Pennsylvania clergymen in support of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler's senatorial candidacy against Senator James J. Davis was launched today by the Anti-Saloon League.

On the ground that Gen. Butler "is dry without apology or equivocation," Bishop Ernest G. Richardson, president of the Anti-Saloon League of America and resident head of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Philadelphia area, wrote to all Methodist ministers in the state indorsing Gen. Butler's campaign.

Dr. Homer W. Tope, head of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, wrote a letter in similar trend.

STATE WORKERS FREE TO GIVE IN CAMPAIGN

Pinchot Permits Employes To Make Contributions; Assessments Outlawed

HARRISBURG, March 31.—State employes are free to contribute to primary election campaign funds, Gov. Pinchot said today. He declared that no state worker was being assessed a percentage of their pay for campaign purposes. He said:

"They are absolutely free to contribute as they please. They are being asked for voluntary contributions and are not being assessed."

State employes have been designated to solicit campaign funds from workers in the various departments. This is especially true of Dauphin County workers.

The Pinchot administration is supporting a ticket here at the Republican primary next month for convention delegate, Republican state committee, State Senate and House of Representatives. The administration also has numerous candidates in the precincts for city and county committee.

Funds collected locally from Harrisburg and Dauphin County workers will be used to finance the campaign of the ticket put into the field by the administration.

During his first administration Gov. Pinchot prohibited solicitation among Capitol Hill workers for campaign funds. During his campaign for a second term he gave his permission for voluntary contributions.

Solicitations are also being made in other counties, it is reported here.

BUTLER TICKET BOOSTED

Candidacies of Gen. Smedley D. Butler for the United States Senate, Ralph E. Flinn for Auditor General and Judge Joseph Stadtfeld for the Superior Court were boosted at a meeting of 250 Independent Republicans in Edenmiller Hall, Shaler Township, last night. Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, candidate for delegate to the Republican convention from the Thirtieth District, spoke in her own behalf and that of her brother, Ralph Flinn.

Majority of speakers for the state ticket, including James O. Corbett, A. D. Brandon and John W. Lawrence, attacked the Philadelphia Republican organization for refusing to support Stadtfeld.

John W. Cost and William A. Walker, both of Avalon, and candidates for the Legislature from the Thirteenth district, asked support from the Independents. Walker, it is understood, will receive an Independent indorsement.

Samuel H. Howard presided at the meeting.

In regular Republican headquarters in William Penn Hotel last night organization adherents from the Thirteenth district met to discuss legislative candidates. Thomas W. Neely, Sewickley, incumbent, is considered certain of organization indorsement.

Welsh Quits Race In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—Congressman George A. Welsh has retired as a candidate for re-election in the Sixth Philadelphia District in favor of his Republican organization backed opponent, Congressman Edward L. Stokes, now serving from the Second District.

Republican leaders said today that Welsh's withdrawal makes virtually certain Stokes' nomination. He is opposed by Albert H. Ladner.

ATTACK UTILITY HOLDING FIRMS

A proposed federal tax levy on holding companies, sufficient to discourage the maintenance of such organizations, was among the resolutions passed by the Allied Boards of Trade last night.

Discussing the resolution, Attorney W. G. Negley said holding companies own and control many of Pennsylvania's utilities and receive large amounts in dividends from them.

An industrial relief plan providing for the use of government credit in the form of a new issue of emergency credit bonds to be distributed through banks, which is soon to be presented to Congress, was indorsed.

A special committee, headed by Clarence V. Tiers, which presented the relief plan, reported it was opposed to large expenditures for public works which would not produce revenue in return or for which no provision has been made to repay the cost of construction.

ESTEP ASSAILED BY ELLENBOGEN

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen, candidate for Congress in the Thirty-third District, addressed a citizens' meeting last night in 4 Gregory street, Seventeenth Ward, and acknowledged indorsements from labor organizations. He said:

"The unanimous indorsement of labor organizations in Pittsburgh is proof that workers have faith in my candidacy, in my sincerity in their cause and in my ability to work indefatigably for their interests.

"They did not fail to note, nor will they soon forget the failure of my only opponent, Congressman Harry A. Estep, to register a vote when the 'yellow dog' bill came up for action in Congress recently."

AIR MAIL PILOT DIES IN CRASH

CLEVELAND, March 31.—(INS.)—Forrest Mallick, 24, night mail pilot for the United Airlines, was found dead today in the cockpit of his plane which crashed in a field between Bedford and Northfield.

A blinding fog during a driving rain was believed to have caused the plane to crash.

Farmers in the vicinity who heard the drone of the plane's motor overhead and then the sound of the crash found the flier's body strapped in the pilot's seat. Mallick was believed to have died instantly.

Headed toward Cleveland from New York, Mallick apparently struck the fog and rain and lost control of the plane, officials at the United Airlines office said.

2 MT. LEBANON POLICE FACE ARREST

Bridgeville Men Accuse Officers Following Row Of Department Heads

Lieut. Ted Carrington and Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Hasley, of Mt. Lebanon, faced arrest today on warrants issued last night by Justice of the Peace James Koch, of Bridgeville, in connection with the Mt. Lebanon and Bridgeville police department row.

The two Mt. Lebanon officers charged that John Maioli, a Bridgeville policeman, had abetted a mob when they tried to arrest Pete Cherry, 24, of 453 Railroad street, and Nario Dalzuffo, 25, of 621 Baldwin street, Bridgeville, in Bridgeville Thursday night.

Cherry and Dalzuffo riding in an automobile suspected of being rum runners, were pursued to Bridgeville by Hasley. Maioli was charged with refusing to assist Hasley in arresting the men.

Cherry and Dalzuffo were scheduled for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Eugene B. Bishop, of Mt. Lebanon, Friday night, on charges of resisting arrest, inciting to riot, failing to stop and disorderly conduct.

The two Bridgeville men retaliated by charging Carrington and Hasley with assault and battery for the beating they alleged the officers administered after their arrest and another charge of felonious shooting against Hasley for the bullet, it is alleged, he fired through the windshield of their automobile during the chase.

RIIS UNDER FIRE ON BID LAXITY

Commissioner C. M. Barr intends to defend the competitive bidding law he made clear at yesterday's meeting of the County Commissioners at which he reprimanded County Director of Parks Paul B. Riis for a repair bill totaling $585 for which no bids were asked.

Agreeing to pay the bill for repairs to a mowing machine, Barr warned:

"If this thing happens again on the part of any director, it's going to be too bad as far as my vote is concerned."

Riis explained the work was such as to prevent an estimate of the cost until it had been completed.

Through the department of hygiene the public schools will be supplied with information. Social workers and public health nurses will also receive material on the subject. The general public will be informed of the campaign by posters and health talks during April.

FIGHT BUS LINK IN MT. LEBANON

Counsel for the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company announced yesterday they would oppose, on the ground of unjust competition, the application of the Oriole Motor Coach Company now before the Public Service Commission for the right to extend its bus service from Atlanta drive to Miami avenue and the new school in Mount Lebanon.

The extension the Pittsburgh company maintains, would bring the Oriole line within two squares of Washington road, over which thoroughfare the Pittsburgh company has rights. The Oriole company would carry children within the township for a 5-cent fare.

The Oriole line is the pioneer line operating in Mount Lebanon Township and carries passengers to Pittsburgh for 15 cents as against a fare of 25 cents collected by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, owned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The Oriole company has withdrawn its application for an extension from Banksville road to points in Dormont and Mount Lebanon.

BOOM KEY SEEN IN ADVERTISING

CHICAGO, March 31.—(AP.)—The hoarded advertising dollar should be the first to be put back to work, according to Melvin L. Straus, vice president of the Straus National Bank.

Straus said firms doing business with the bank would be urged to maintain advertising appropriations at normal levels. Daily newspaper advertising was recommended by Straus as the best medium with which to stimulate buying. He said:

"Hoarding of advertising money is one of the most disturbing factors in business today. If business lacks confidence in itself, how can the public be expected to have any? What business needs is self-confidence and public confidence, and advertising by the printed word can bring it."

Straus said that more than 100 national concerns made sales and profit gains in 1931 by increased advertising, while many other firms helped to establish losses for themselves in the same year by reducing advertising appropriations.

Harold M. Brake, 34, of 402 Rochelle street, the driver, was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office today. Brake told police he did not see the victim because the bright lights of another car blinded him.

Two rows of perfect teeth

AT TWENTY? ORDINARY
AT THIRTY? PROBABLE
OVER FORTY ? ? ? ? ?

Start protection against pyorrhea RIGHT NOW

There is no "telling" about teeth. A perfect set today! And tomorrow? Perhaps a space that held two—or three or six—for the dentist's skill to bridge.

That is the way pyorrhea works. It may start when you are twenty or thirty and it may be ten years or longer before it begins to take your teeth. But in the end, pyorrhea takes actually half the adult teeth which are lost!

The trouble with pyorrhea is that it seems a distant danger. It may happen to somebody else—but you never think it will happen to you. The fact remains that four out of five people past the age of forty have pyorrhea—and they probably had it for several years before they knew.

It's up to you to take two steps to prevent "lost teeth." First, be sure not to forget the address of your dentist. Visit him twice a year, anyway. He is a real friend in need. Second, pick out a toothpaste that does more than polish your teeth. Forhan's Toothpaste is a thoroughly good cleanser—none better. But it takes care of the gums too, and that is mighty important, because you cannot have healthy teeth in unhealthy gums. Dr. R. J. Forhan worked 26 years as a pyorrhea specialist, and his exclusive formula cannot be obtained by the public except in Forhan's Toothpaste. Get ahead of pyorrhea. Prevention is the only way. Take it seriously and you will not be sorry. Start today with Forhan's. All druggists.

SOPHIE TUCKER, RUDY VALLEE ON AIR :-: Mills Brothers End Series :-: AL SMITH SPEAKS

LISTENING IN

With the Radio Editor

SOPHIE TUCKER, the last of the redhot mamas, and Ray Perkins, that master of masters of ceremonies, help Rudy Vallee broadcast his regular Sunshine Hour Program at 8 o'clock tonight from the WCAE studios. Because Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees are appearing here in George White's Scandals, Sophie and Ray journeyed to Pittsburgh especially for the program. Several quick shifts from the WCAE studio to WEAF permit announcements as usual by Graham McNamee. The program, while originating here, does not reach Pittsburgh listeners until it is first relayed to WEAF in New York and then sent back to WCAE over the regular NBC network.

Miss Tucker

Arrangements have been made with Inspector Dorsey of the traffic squad of the Pittsburgh Police Department for an escort of two motorcycle policemen to clear a "right of way" through downtown traffic for a four-car caravan to transport Rudy and his band from the WCAE studio to the Alvin Theater.

In a program exclusively for Pittsburghers Rudy will be heard singing some of his most popular songs in a special WCAE feature from 6 to 6:15 o'clock tomorrow night. It will be his third broadcast from the WCAE studios this week. Also on the program will be Walter Gross, Rudy's pianist, and Frank Staffa, his guitarist.

B. C. Forbes, financial authority whose articles appear daily and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph, presents an up-to-the-minute picture of present economic conditions and answers the foremost economic question of the day—"What Lies Ahead?"—in a broadcast to be heard over KDKA Saturday at 7:45 p. m. Preparing for his broadcast, Mr. Forbes has made special surveys of key industries and financial structures, and interviewed outstanding financial and business leaders.

Program Pointers

JACK DENNY'S music and Al Smith's political broadside help Walter Winchell make a night of it on WCAE at 10 o'clock tonight. The former New York governor speaks under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee. Denny, who made his debut on Winchell's "magic carpet" from the Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal 17 weeks ago, is heard from the Empire Room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, where his orchestra has just opened an indefinite engagement.

Mr. Denny

Countess Olga Albani makes her last appearance and the coffee-hour ensemble fades into history with tonight's program on KDKA at 9:30. Next week the same sponsors present George Frame Brown's "Real Folks" on KDKA.

"The Fortune Teller," described as an uproarious comedy, is the presentation of the KQV Players at 9. Edna Louise Conn, Tom Miller, Harry McGlinchey, Marie Stutzman and A. R. Cooper are in the cast.

Mrs. Philip Kip Rhinelander, distinguished New York society leader, is Margaret Santry's guest on the WJAS "Bath Club" program at 8.

With the poetry of Burns and other Scottish singers as an accompaniment, members of the American Iona Society make the first of three "Visits to Scotland" over WCAE at 7. Richard M. Montgomery, president of the society, is the speaker.

Frank Crumit tells what happens "When the Right Girl Comes Along"—meaning Julia Sanderson, of course—on KDKA at 9.

The Pittsburgh Musical Society presents Charles Pasetti's Amerita Orchestra on WWSW at 11:15.

Those Mills Brothers give the last of their present series on WJAS at 9, but return soon with a new sponsor.

Question Box

Are Riggs and Moke broadcasting from Cleveland? Were they in Pittsburgh for the radio show?—A Reader.

Riggs and Moke, "the crazy pair," broadcast regularly from the studios of WCAE in Pittsburgh. They gave one program from Cleveland as guest artists last winter. They made personal appearances at the last radio show here.

* * *

Fan Fare

LUPE VELEZ, the magnetic little Mexican star of the screen, is one of the headliners for the opening broadcast of Ziegfeld's Radio Follies on WJAS Sunday night. Lupe, you will recall, flew to Pittsburgh from the California film colony to join Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha" when it opened here. . . . James Melton makes his bow as a concert artist when he gives a recital at Town Hall in New York the last of April. . . . He's 27 and has been a radio headliner four years. . . . Margaret West, WLW's "Rio Grande Girl," kidded John Garner, Speaker of the House, on a recent program—and he liked it.

Miss Velez

Arthur Bagley, the human alarm clock, who slides out of bed every weekday at 5:30 a. m. to direct the world's largest gym class, celebrates his eighth year on the air today. . . . No other broadcaster is even close to his record of 2,000 hours. . . . He's slender and effervescent, never gets more than six hours sleep a night, and says "It's great to be up and doing at 5:30." . . . Bill Mahoney, his pianist, has been on the job for six years, during which time he's played 1,800 solos and used more than 2,500 different musical selections.

George Olson's idea of a big evening is to trim Eddie Cantor at pinochle. . . . Jane Froman's favorite dish is clams on the half-shell—and she can fix them herself too. . . . You'll soon be seeing June Pursell's picture on the cover of a magazine. . . . The most superstitious men in the world, observes David Ross, are telephonists. . . . They're always knocking on wood.

When he was only 14, Louis Silver was playing a violin in a burlesque show weekdays and in a sacred service on Sundays. . . . Paul E. Musgrave, director of the Blue Mountaineers on WJAS, is a radio service man, too. . . . Here's a coincidence—four members of WCAE's personnel have surnames starting with the letter "M" and containing double "L's" . . . Ford Miller, Cliff Marshall, Marian Mallisee and Frank Mulloy.

That new series starting today on WCAE, "Martha By the Day," is based on Julie Lippman's stories of Martha, the lovable old Irish scrubwoman introduced to magazine readers of 1912 and later published in book form. . . . Martha has also been seen on the stage and in the movies.

Uncle Bob and Betty Read Comics Tonight

Reading the comics is a real adventure—when you read them with Uncle Bob and Betty. They are on the air, reading the Sun-Telegraph funnies over WCAE at 6 o'clock tonight.

A gay little chat, sprinkled with household tips, fashion news and beauty pointers is given by Madelon during her "Reflections of Madelon's Mirror" broadcast over WCAE at 10:30 a. m.

Ann Zimet and Paul Gannon are featured with the WCAE orchestra directed by David Levin during the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air at 11. Herb McGee is master of ceremonies.

Direct from the wires, through the microphone, into your home. That is the system which brings news of world doings to WCAE listeners first. Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, is on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. with the latest news.

BOY ARRESTED IN FATAL FIGHT

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 31.—Taken from his hiding place in a hollow tree trunk, Melie Blanish, 17, a high school boy of Keystone No. 4 Mine, was in jail today charged with the killing of a school mate, who died from a broken neck following a grudge fight with their fists.

The boys met on top of a slate dump to settle a quarrel that started during school hours. A blow from Blanish's fist is said to have toppled John Vacko, 15, of the same neighborhood, over the 35-foot dump. When he saw that his antagonist was unconscious, Blanish ran to the foot of the dump, and bathed Vaco's face with water from a sulphur stream.

When Vacko failed to respond Blanish fled into the woods where police found him several hours later hidden in a hollow tree trunk.

Brothers of both contestants were witnesses to the fight.

According to Coroner H. A. McMurray, witnesses said Vacko promised to "get Blanish after school." They were picking coal when they met.

PACKARD GIVEN AVIATION PRIZE

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—In the presence of a gathering of aviation leaders, President Hoover today presented the huge bronze Collier trophy to the Packard Motor Car Company for its development of the Diesel aircraft engine.

Sheltered from a steady rain by a side porch of the White House, the President declared the Diesel engine development "a notable aviation achievement."

The trophy, given annually as the highest award in American aviation, was presented to Alvan McCauley, president of the Packard Company. With one hand resting upon a full size Diesel engine with propeller attached, McCauley said to the Chief Executive its development had "only well started us on our way, much still remains to be done."

The new engine, employed in breaking the previous world non-refueling endurance record, is an oil-burning machine.

Walker Rule Sought On Damage Claim

Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker has been asked to fix the damages that should be awarded to several property owners in the vicinity of Coraopolis, because of the abolition of the Ivanhoe road grade crossing of the Montour Railroad, owned by the Pittsburgh Coal Company. The county is to pay the cost.

The claimants are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Soucek and Dr. W. H. Guy, who are demanding about $2,000 each and the estate of Mrs. Mary Shulin. The persons seeking damages say the abolition of the crossing gives access to the properties in only one direction.

Ring Found Near Slain Girl Traced

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—William Brown, 16-year-old Negro, today was identified by two young Negro women as the owner of a signet ring found beneath the body of 7-year-old Dorothy Lutz, for whose murder he is on trial.

Although Brown admitted ownership of the ring in alleged confessions read to a jury yesterday, the commonwealth, apparently anticipating a move on the defense's part to repudiate the confessions, produced the corroborative witnesses.

  But when the rain comes tapping at your sill—
When there are neither stars nor moon—
  You'll hear me still!
Not in the sigh of Spring or Summer's glow;
  But when an Autumn wind passes you by—
Stinging and sharp . . . 'tis then you'll know
  That will be I!
Not where laughter is gay and lights are bright;
  But deep, deep in your heart's most secret place—
In the long silence of the night
  You'll see my face!

Of All Alibis!

One of the better Fred Allen quips concerns two Westphalians who were talking shop at 47th St. yesterday. Said the first:

"What's the matter, chump? You look glum."

"Oh, it's been frightful lately," said the other, "we had eight weeks booked up in New England playin' the open air theatres."

"Why that's great!"

"Great nothing! We had to cancel after the second week—the woodpeckers ate up my straight man's cane!"

In Fewer Words

A Broadwayite reminds U. Shafer is a person who changes his opinion every day—except the one of himself.

Uncommon Sense

Movie executives, desperate for an idea to fill their amusement temples, called on Billy Rose, the "Crazy Quilt" and "Sweet and Low" revusical impresario.

"Mr. Rose," the chairman began, "please help us fill our theaters. What would you suggest, sir?"

"Pool," replied Rose, "at 60 cents an hour."

Shakespeare's Slang

M. Fisher forwards a clip of slanguage coined by Shakespeare as collected by Anderson M. Baten, viz: Dead as a door-nail . . . Done me wrong . . . Beat it . . . And keep their teeth clean . . . She falls for it . . . Not so hot . . . Go hang yourself . . . I hope to frame thee . . . How you do talk . . . Go rot.

His most famous bit of slang, however, revived in the last decade, is in "Merry Wives of Windsor," and is the expression: "Be yourself!"

Gosh, Yes!

Take it from the wall of an E. 49th St. speakeasy: It's always Sunday afternoon on the road to success.

Merciless Truths

In the R. C. O'Brien manner: The bigger the lobby, the stiffer the usher. The darker the theater, the narrower the aisles. The more effective the refrigeration, the more certain the pneumonia. The taller the doorman, the more elaborate the uniform—and the larger the signs, the punker the moovie.

Heheheh

And since the amazing weight reduction of Paul Whiteman became the talk of the towners, one wag presumes that his old suit must have been given to two other fellows.

By Way of Report

Among other startling things one learns along the Broadway Scene, is that so grand an entertainment as the flicker version of "Front Page" was only a local success.

Louis Milestone, director of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "Front Page," will tell you that he spurned the offer of Howard Hughes, the producer of the newspaper movie, who offered $150,000 for his 50 per cent interest in the profits, and that he now regrets it.

For "Front Page," a cine-mighty among films, ran for seven weeks on Broadway, but failed to excite the outlanders . . . and to date Milestone hasn't received a quarter for his end.

Things That Burn Be Up And Knock Me Cold

The Seattle critics who libeled the "Crazy Quilt" show for thefting the songs, ideas and scenes from a Fanchon and Marco show, when as a matter of fact it was the other way around! . . . People who take the last piece of French pastry you hoped you'd get . . . Persons who hope you don't mind if they try on your hat . . . Contributors who submit gags that have appeared elsewhere, and when you caution them about it, use the timeworn argument: "Didn't you ever hear of mental telepathy?" . . . and delicatessens who name sandwiches after celebrities who are celebrated for getting into trouble.

How to Start Arguments

The expression "Hot-Cha," some say, comes from the Harlem sector. Others insist that Jimmy Durante coined it—when he concluded a song and did his strut off-stage that he fingered his bow tie, shook his head high and as he gave the auditors "that look," Jimmy would chirp "ha-cha!"

Perhaps. At any rate the Italians will argue that "cha-cha" is an Italian slang term for "meat" and that "hot-cha-cha" means "hot meat." Durante is an Italian, by the way.

Sotto Voce

B. N. N., Los Angeles: You have me confused with one of the other boys . . . Sarah E., Fairmont, W. Va.: Thanx, but your rhymes don't.

For the Records

A dramatic critic cannot counsel a reader to refrain from seeing a show. It appears that a reviewer is secure in his right to say that a play is a bad play and that he did not enjoy it, and that in his opinion others might find it a bore.

But he must not make a direct or implied statement that people should not attend the performance, for he might be held on an attempt to injure the business or property of the sponsor, who therefore has a cause for action.

But what we started out to report was that a bandit held up a Longacre box-office the other matinee day and got away with a tidy sum. And one hopes that the managers got a rough idea how it feels—for a change.

For Peggy Fears, Et Al

And Walter Pritchard Eaton says we may dismiss at once the oft-heard sneer of actors, painters and writers, who say that the critics are those who tried to paint, write or act, and failed. Painters, actors and writers seldom make good critics because they are too interested in the technical process and too narrow in their viewpoint.

The critic reacts to the finished product. It isn't his job to teach the craft!

'Flush' Is the Real Hero of Katharine Cornell's Browning Play

By GEORGE SEIBEL

No actor in the fine company supporting Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," coming to the Alvin Theater next week, gets more publicity than Flush, the little pet dog of Elizabeth Barrett. He now figures in a book of sketches, "Your Dog and Mine," by Diana Thorne, a book of famous dogs. Flush is a cocker spaniel, and plays an important role in the play. If I am not mistaken, Elizabeth Barrett's dog tried to bite Robert Browning the first time the poet called on her. That dog had no idea that he was going to be immortalized. Maybe he resented being the dog that Robert would try his poetry and tragedies upon.

Mr. Seibel

It may interest people also to know that Flush has a son who is his understudy for the part. Flush did not create this role—the first performer, Bella, met a tragic end, being run over by a heavy truck.

The dresses in the play have been worn better than the dogs—Miss Cornell had played Elizabeth Barrett 312 times before she had to have a new dress. Which speaks well for Victorian fashions—and is another incentive for people to go Victorian next week with Katharine Cornell, Rudolf Besier, Robert and Elizabeth Browning and Flush, the barker of the Alvin.

DOG SAVES THE PLAY

Indeed, the dog is the most important character in the whole play. The courtship of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett began by correspondence, moved along slowly to personal acquaintance, and London was dumbfounded when they eloped.

Just think of it—if that little pet dog had barked as they stole out of the house in Wimpole street, they would have been stopped and there would have been no play.

But the little dog did not bark—he knew how much depended on him—and soon the Brownings turned up in Paris. Later they went to the village where Petrarch had poured out his soul in deathless sonnets to Mrs. Laura, who was married to another man and had 11 children.

They finally settled in Florence, where Mrs. Browning lies buried. It was long years after the elopement that the end came.

CALLING ON THE BROWNINGS

A few years ago I stood in front of the Pitti Palace in Florence, and looked across at the house where the Brownings lived. I decided to prove the words of a friend who had said: "You Americans get everywhere," and walked over to the entrance.

The owner was away somewhere attending to business, and the caretaker looked like anything but a dragon. So I put a tremor of reverence into my voice, and asked her questions about the house where the great poets had lived.

In 10 minutes she was showing me through the place—and even allowed me to sit on the balcony opposite the little church where Browning used to write poetry.

I sighed in rapture at everything she told me and showed me—and gave her five lire when I left—so I'm sure she realizes that we Americans are devout disciples of Browning.

BROWNING NOW POPULAR

Perhaps we were not, but dramatist Rudolf Besier and Katharine Cornell, actress, have converted us. They have done more to make Browning popular than all the Browning clubs ever spawned in Boston.

The movement had a little start through Walter Hampden's performances of "Caponsacchi," the noble drama based on "The Ring and the Book." But now, if you show the average woman a picture of Katharine Cornell, she will tell you that's Mrs. Browning, and a picture of Brian Aherne will be identified at once as Robert Browning.

During the performances in New York a woman was heard to sob aloud, "Oh, I do hope she doesn't die before they are married." Of course, she stayed to the end of the play.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Green Mercedes

THE MACHINE bumped its way over the uneven road. The car was only a few miles from the heart of New York, but to one who didn't know it might easily be traveling through some mountain wilderness. There was a chilling stillness in the air as the car plunged on through the darkness. Suddenly, as though he had chosen the spot by instinct, the driver applied his brakes and snapped off his headlights. The machine came to a groaning halt.

In the rear sat three men. Two of them had eyes that were cold and terribly hard. The man in the middle was shaking as though he were in an advanced stage of palsy. Every few seconds he wet his lips. A great fear was stamped upon his face. There was a whine in his voice as the words tumbled forth.

"Honest, Joe, I never done it. I've always played square with you fellows. I done just what you told me with that package. You know I wouldn't double cross you. I swear."

The man on the right shifted in his seat.

"You're a liar," he said, deliberately. "You knew there was $25,000 in that package, and you thought you'd make yourself a little clean-up. You were wrong.

"We're not here to argue with you. You're going to tell us what you've done with that 25 grand or you'll be out in the road with six bullets in you. Which way do you want it?"

The frightened one clasped his trembling hands as though he were making a plea to heaven.

"Please, Joe," he groaned. "Please believe what I'm tellin' you. I didn't do nothin' except what I was told to do. When Harry gimme the dough, he told me to stand on the old spot on Long Island and to watch for the green Mercedes. He gimme my instructions and I done just what he told me.

"This car drives up. It didn't pull exactly into the spot, but stands maybe half a block away. So I walks down and do just what I am supposed to do. The first time I know anything is wrong is when you fellers pick me up tonight.

"Boys, please believe me. I ain't no rat. If I copped the dough, wouldn't I tell you now and have a little chance for my life? I swear on my eyes and my mother's life that—"

The man on the left spoke for the first time.

"Stop swearin', you cheap bum," he muttered. "You're a liar and a lousy liar at that. You know there's only one car like that green Mercedes around New York, and we know it, too. I'm gettin' sick of this. Get out of the car."

In front the driver's hand moved toward his pocket. The man on the right leaned forward and threw open the door. The man on the left pushed his revolver just a little harder into the side of the cringing victim.

"Step out," he cried.

The accused one stumbled to the running board.

"Mamma," he whined like a little child. "Mamma mine, I didn't mean—"

A shot rang out. Another. Three or four more. The victim crumpled by the side of the dirty road. The driver closed the door and drove off. The man on the left leaned back and lit a cigaret.

"Take me over to the Ramona Club, Charlie," he murmured to the driver. "I got a date with two of the cutest kids you ever saw." . . .

* * *

In a large city in the northern part of New York state, one of the wealthiest men in the town was closeted with his attorney.

"I tell you very frankly, Tom," he asserted, "that in all your experience you have never heard anything to top this.

"In the first place I didn't want to drive the car to New York. It's a terribly tiresome trip, and I never did fancy a 16-hour run under any conditions. But even though the chauffeur was sick, my wife insisted.

"On the second day in town we drove to Smithfield's estate, out on Long Island. It was the usual gathering, you know, and we didn't have a bad time at all. As a matter of fact, Smithfield and I got a little tight. And it was around midnight when we left.

"I was going along one of the main highways to New York at a pretty good clip when something suddenly happened to my lights. It was just a loose connection somewhere, but it was more than enough to beat me.

"Well, after getting myself properly excited and telling my wife a thing or two, I did the only thing possible under the circumstances. I hailed another machine and drove to the nearest garage in search of a mechanic. Meanwhile, my wife stepped to the rear of the car and made herself comfortable. In a minute she was dozing.

"Now get this, Tom. It couldn't have been more than a few moments later that she was awakened by someone opening the door of the car. She sat up rigidly, too frightened to move. Through the darkness she saw a man's face. He said nothing at all—never even looked at her. All he did was to toss in a package that hit her knee, slam the door and vanish into the darkness.

"I have to laugh when I think of it, but my wife never moved from that position until I returned. She pointed the package out to me and gasped out the story.

"I opened that package. I opened it a trifle gingerly, I will admit, but I did it just the same. And there, in my hands, was $25,000 in cold cash! I didn't know what to make of it then, and I'm just as much at a loss right now.

"You've known me for plenty of years, Tom, and you know that I never exaggerate. I've omitted some of the details, but I'll go over the thing with you completely before I leave. I have the money at home now, and I want your advice as to the best thing to do."

The attorney rubbed his chin.

"Most unusual," he mused. "Highly amazing. I'll have to have time to think this over. But, by the way, which car were you driving?"

"My green Mercedes," replied the millionaire client. "I wanted to take the Buick, because it was much lighter, but my wife insisted on the Mercedes. So that's the one I drove.

"And that's just another angle that makes it more mystifying, Tom. My car couldn't have been mistaken for any other, because I don't think there's another one like it in the state. I just can't understand it . . ."

* * *

Back in a New York cemetery, a body was lowered into a grave. A body with six bullet holes in it. A mother screamed. A sister wept. And in the background, two reporters talked it over.

"Guess he got what was coming to him," said one. "I hear he tried to clip his own mob of $25,000. What a fool"

"You said it," agreed the other. "I think—wait a minute." He wheeled rapidly and cried out to his photographer.

"Hey, Mac," he yelled. "Get that picture over there. It's swell. The mother just fainted." . . .

Impatient!

Mae Clarke has the title role in "Impatient Maiden," picture which will come to the Sheridan Square Saturday for three days.

Lady Sleuth Saves Her Hero

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Wiser Sex," a talkie based on Clyde Fitch's stage play, "Her Confessions," opened a three-day engagement in the Enright yesterday. The same film will come to the Davis tomorrow.

It is underworld stuff, masquerading under a sexy title. The romantic angle, is present, however.

Claudette Colbert has the star role. She imitates Sherlock Holmes and saves her sweetheart, who has been "framed" on a murder charge, from the electric chair.

Melvyn Douglas is the sweetheart. As a gentleman, who neglects his lady fair while he attempts to chase gangsters out of town, he's as exciting as a picture of Santa Claus after you're 21.

William (Stage) Boyd is the menace. He takes a shower bath early in the film, crawls under a bed in search of booze in the middle of it and is shot by the cops at the finale. Between times, he does a little murdering.

Lilyan Tashman is an ex-chorus girl, and, in the words of one of the characters, she "does everything but a Lady Macbeth." What amusement the picture has is due largely to her.

Princess!

Elizabeth Drake, of Howe street, will have the role of princess in "Aladdin," the first of nine productions in the Children's Playhouse series, opening in the Nixon Saturday morning.

Margalo Gillmore In Cornell Cast

Included in the support of Katharine Cornell, who will be seen in the Alvin next week in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," is an up and coming young actress, Margalo Gillmore, who will be starred next season. We first became acquainted with Miss Gillmore as the daughter of "The Famous Mrs. Fair," in which Blanche Bates and Henry Miller were co-starred a few years ago. 'Twas a flapper role, and was quite as charming as that of the English miss she portrayed last season opposite Leslie Howard in "Berkeley Square." She has been seen here, too, in several Theater Guild plays including "Marco Millions" and "Volpone." The matinees of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" will be limited to the customary days, Wednesday and Saturday.

Stock and Symphony Here Monday

Frederick Stock and his Chicago Symphony Orchestra of 100 players will give the closing concert in the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association series in Syria Mosque Monday evening. Mr. Stock's program will include Wagner's "Parsifal," Procession of the Knights of the Holy Grail, and Good Friday Spell, Transformation Scene and Glorification; also Dohnanyi's Suite for Orchestra, in four movements, and the Rachmaninoff Symphony No. 2, in E minor, opus 27.

Escudero to Present Spanish Dances

Vicente Escudera, Spanish gypsy dancer, will make his debut here in the Nixon Theater, Saturday evening. He will give a program of genuine Flamenco (Spanish gypsy) dances, including certain traditional dances commonly done on the Sacred Mountain in Granada. He will be assisted by his two feminine partners from Madrid, Carmita and Carmela.

Hard, Red Pimples Over Face and Neck. Healed by Cuticura.

"The trouble began with a breaking out of hard, red pimples that spread all over my face and neck. Some of the pimples festered and when I squeezed them they left sore eruptions. They itched and burned so badly that I could hardly sleep at bed time. They caused disfigurement while they lasted.

"I tried other remedies but got no relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in three days they stopped the itching and burning. I continued using them and in about five weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Charles Iliker, 703 S. Queen St., Lancaster, Pa.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

BARR RAPS ROAD WORK REFUSAL

The State Department of Highways was denounced by Commissioner C M Barr at yesterday's meeting of the County Commissioners as a result of a letter received from S S Lewis, secretary of the department, declaring the state could not stand the expense of relocating Route No. 396 as desired by the county. Barr said

"I think it's about time we have a showdown and see what we can get down there. I met a man last night (apparently referring to Gov. Pinchot) who seems very favorable to us. I move that the Board of County Commissioners stop off at Harrisburg and visit the Department of Highways on our trip to Washington next month."

BON AIR COACH PERMIT URGED

George P. Kountz, a director of the Allied Boards of Trade, yesterday urged Commissioner Samuel Walker, of the Public Service Commission, to grant the Brentwood Motor Coach Comany the right to transport passengers from Bon Air to downtown Pittsburgh for a 15-cent fare by token, or 20 cents cash.

A score of residents also appeared before the Commissioner to tell of the needs of such a service, because of the action of the Pittsburgh Railways Company reducing the service last January, giving no service between 9:07 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. and no service after 7:37 p. m.

The Brentwood company promises a 20-minute service throughout each weekday and a 30-minute service on Sunday. The Pittsburgh Railways Company is protesting, claiming the route proposed would parallel the car line. However, the route sought from Bon Air and Conniston avenue in Bon Air, does not follow the Knoxville car line. Buses would travel by way of Alice, Grimes, Suncrest, Arabella, Parklow, Redlyn, Mathews and Bausman streets to Sawmill Run boulevard, to downtown Pittsburgh by way of the Liberty tubes.

How Chiropodists Remove Corns In 3 Minutes

Cost Per Corn Under 5c

Everybody knows a good chiropodist can remove a painful corn in a few minutes and without causing the slightest pain. First they apply a simple solution which stops the pain and softens the corn; then they gently remove the corn. Druggists call this remarkable solution "Shur-Off" because with it anyone can positively and painlessly remove the worst corn in three minutes. Ask your druggist for Shur-Off—the quickest, easiest and safest corn remover known. Then remove your corn in 3 minutes—be your own chiropodist.

MUSIC
String Symphonic Ensemble
Carnegie Lecture Hall

PROGRAM

Omaha Indian Love Song	Busch
Divertimento No. 17 For Horns and Strings	Mozart
Cradle Song	MacDowell
Fuga in B Minor	DelBianco
Air from La Traviata	Verdi
Air from Marriage of Figaro	Mozart
Valzer Op. 48	Tschaikowsky

The String Symphonic Ensemble gave another of its delightful concerts in Carnegie Lecture Hall last night with Oscar DelBianco conducting. There was noticeably fuller tone in the ensemble and better rhythms.

Mr. Lissfelt

It is time to be wanting some assurance that this little group is to survive into next season for it has given us many a work this winter that would otherwise never be heard in Pittsburgh.

I have in mind such music as Mozart's suite which formed the foundation of last night's program: music from which our modern-minded students may learn so much in purity of melody and form.

Mrs. Sara Quisenberry, lyric soprano, sang two operatic airs. Nervousness forbade the singer giving her best. Earl Truxell played accompaniments.

WILKINS TAX QUIZ ORDERED

A request for a survey of alleged unfair tax assessments in Wilkins Township, in a petition presented to the County Commissioners yesterday, was referred to the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes with instructions to take immediate action.

The petitioners charged that small home owners are assessed 80 per cent of the actual value of their property, while large property holders are under-assessed and hold property for speculation.

POLITICS
Big Field of Candidates Handicaps Individual
—By MARK SHIELDS—

A letter has been received from a candidate for the Legislature which is worth considerable thought, and excerpts from which should receive some sympathetic, if helpless, comment. He says:

Mr. Shields

"I have often wondered why a newspaper such as you write for does not show more enthusiasm and zeal in helping to elect young candidates for office, especially those who have reputations and probably would do more for the public good than those in office. I know of numerous cases of young men who are running for office, who are sincere for a better administration of government but who have failed to get the support of the leaders.

"These young fellows probably cannot afford to wage a good campaign and therefore they have to trust to what result a little advertising on their part will bring them. I believe that this is where the papers could be of great help to these candidates."

The conditions outlined have aroused the attention of others than candidates for office. Men and women sincerely interested in getting good representation, particularly in the state and national legislative bodies, have themselves pondered how they should attain that end.

It is perfectly well known that some unfit men go to Harrisburg from all over the state, including Allegheny County. They lack zeal in the public service, they are subservient to bosses, and are too cowardly to plainly state their opinions on any controversial political question.

* * *

Best Men Not Elected In Some Districts

It is obvious in some districts that the best men are not elected and that more worthy citizens either remain in the background because of a distaste for encountering conditions natural to a campaign or become candidates and fail to attract voters who are of their thought but with whom they are unable to gain touch.

Newspapers are fully aware of this condition and have done their best to afford an opportunity for all candidates—good, bad, young, old—to set forth their claims to office. Furthermore, there has been an attempt to strip the mask of subterfuge from misrepresentatives. Indeed, if some candidates were as sincerely and disinterestedly valiant in their arraignment of opponents the story might be different.

But to return to the newspaper's problem. Merely to provide room for any candidate to state his position does not meet the question. There must be dispassionate comment from a source which has no selfish interest, a comment which can be furnished by a newspaper with no axes to grind.

Yet how could that be physically or mentally accomplished in a campaign such as this? Combining the candidates for Congress and the Legislature, there are today more than 300 before the people for 32 places.

Human limitations simply will not permit honest analysis and report of the worth of all of these candidates. There are too many of them for the good of the community, and a number have no right—except that constitutional guarantee to any man to make a nuisance of himself—to be in the campaign, and have no reason to advance why they should be elected, except that they want the job.

Honesty is a primary virtue. There is room for more of it in politics. But to honesty in politics, if that virtue is to be exerted for the benefit of the people, must be joined common sense—not a high culture or learning—and courage. There are some honest men in Harrisburg who lack the intestinal stamina to stand up for what they believe in, and who hunt the cloakrooms when embarrassing roll calls are up.

The English have a system which goes far to do away with the nuisance candidates, and which might be tried with advantage in this country, though criticism of it is easy. Each candidate there puts up a forfeit when he enters a contest. If he does not get a stipulated percentage of the total vote cast he loses his forfeit. If he reaches the level necessary, even though defeated, his money is returned.

Immediately the criticism will be raised that this prevents the poor man participating in elections, and that political machines would have an advantage through access to money. That objection might be circumvented by having the fee a modest one, and the vote required to secure its return a small percentage of the anticipated total.

We have something of this fee system in our present law governing the opening of ballot boxes in the event of suspicion of fraud. A bond, or cash, must be posted to bring about examination of the box, and if fraud or error are discovered the money is returned. That fee provision was inserted to guard against nuisance petitions, just as a candidate fee would guard against nuisance candidates.

Certainly any newspaper, which likes to discuss with clarity the issues and personalities of a campaign, would welcome the opportunity to speak intelligently about all candidates. It would be in the line of public service. But in a campaign such as this the situation is almost hopeless, which assists the designs of political machines in perpetuating their power through better organization behind their chosen men.

VETERAN LUCIEN VAN ZANERY, 39, AND BABY, 25 MONTHS

BELGIAN VET, BABY AIDED

An unemployed Belgian ex-soldier, with 15 war wounds, was on his was to Steubenville with his 25-month-old son today. He found food and a night's lodging after a weary march through Pittsburgh streets yesterday.

Wounded and gassed in battles, Lucien Van Zanery, 39, had been employed as a cook in a New York hotel. He had been in this country since the end of the war when he returned home to find his aged parents and his brothers and sisters dead, killed in the German invasion.

In New York Zanery married an American girl who died when the baby was born. Recently he was laid off and went to Williamsport to find friends. Unable to locate them he left for Steubenville with $2.50, the gift of hotel chefs in Williamsport.

Although motorists aided him, he was forced to walk more than 20 miles of the way to Pittsburgh, carrying the child and his battered suitcase.

Here Patrolman Sylvester Stoehr noticed his plight and took him to the Kilkeary Hotel, where he and the child were fed and given a room for the night. The hotel was to aid him in obtaining transportation to Steubenville.

Congress Votes Sales Tax Under 16 Other Labels
By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Well, Waashington has finally straightened out its light spring filibustering and adopted the sales tax under 16 other names.

The Democrats never exactly bolted their leadership. They were following the drum major all right. Some absconded. But you can always expect a man with sore feet to drop out of the parade.

The whole thing was like the lady who said to her husband:

"I'll go where you go. But I want to buy the tickets."

So they went where he wanted to go after she picked out the destination.

Now everything is as lovely as fresh paper flowers in June. The insurgents are back in the rumble seat. And legislators are rushing in hundreds of constructive bills to save the nation.

That's the way it goes. It always rains after you have washed the windows.

Increase Shown In Relief Demands

Considerable increase was noticed yesterday in the demand for direct relief from the six city centers. Approximately $4,000 was spent Tuesday, the first full day's operation, and yesterday's reports will be higher, S. E. Claney, relief director of the Emergency Association said.

The county relief agencies will swing into action tomorrow as a result of the $260,000 loan negotiated by the Poor Directors.

PASTORS RALLY TO AID RELIEF

EXPERTS MEET TO DISCUSS SUBWAY
Work for Thousands Seen With Prompt, Favorable Action on Loop Proposal

Plans for construction of a downtown street car subway, not only to relieve traffic congestion, but to alleviate the unemployment situation, went speedily ahead today as engineers familiar with the two plans now under consideration conferred in the office of Norman F. Brown, former director of the County Public Works Department.

Those attending were Winter Haydock, City Transit Commission engineer; Charles M. Reppert, city engineer and the designer of one subway plan, Edward Snodgrass, Jr., sponsor of a plan for which Brown prepared drawings which was submitted to City Council yesterday.

Council members, studying the plans, expressed themselves in favor of immediately starting construction.

As soon as engineers have reconciled their cost estimates and have decided on the method of construction, a definite proposition will be placed before Council and a public hearing arranged at which all interested persons may speak.

QUICK START URGED

Separate action was taken on the flood wall. The Snodgrass plan is to be submitted to the Department of Public Works, the planning bodies, the Law Department and United States government engineers.

A quick start on the subway and flood wall was urged by Snodgrass in his address to Council. He said:

"We assert that with coordinated favorable action work could be commenced on the subway in the next two months and thousands of men given employment for a year or more at least."

The Snodgrass subway plan includes two loops. The one would extend under Water street from Smithfield street to Grant street, to Seventh avenue, to Liberty avenue, to Ferry street and up Water street to Smithfield street. The other would extend from the widened Penn avenue in the neighborhood of Twelfth street under Grant street to Seventh street and back to Liberty avenue to intersect the inbound tube.

COST ESTIMATED

Such loops would be available later as a part of a rapid transit system when the need for one arises, Snodgrass declared. He estimated the cost of the subway at $5,500,000 including the removal of surface railway tracks.

Brown, in explaining details of the Snodgrass plan to Council, declared 75 per cent of the surface cars would be removed.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, said it would not take long to get started if some definite plan on the subway was worked out.

L. W. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission and member of the Transit Commission, declared for an immediate start on the subway.

E. N. Hunting, architect, voiced opposition, declaring demand for subways is past, and the job, to be done efficiently, would be almost entirely mechanical and benefit few workers.

BOND ISSUE VOTED

President Herron said Council is compelled by law to let the work to the lowest responsible bidder. He pointed out that the fact that the bonds have been voted by the Waiting—But For What?

Hunger of the spirit as well as bodily hunger is depicted by Sam Filner in lonely, shadowy figures in the fourth of a series of drawings by noted Pittsburgh artists.

Weary days have lengthened into weeks; weeks have become months; and the months are now years. Still 28,000 such Allegheny County families have groped on, hoping against hope that the break would come—some day.

The only silver-edged cloud on their black horizon is the Harris Family-Help-Family Association, now about to launch a campaign whereby those families who have been fortunate enough to maintain American standards of living will be asked to help those who are now approaching destitution.

LEADERS CITE GREAT NEED OF JOBLESS
Prominent Clergymen Urge Speedy Action to Assist Family-Help-Family Plan

Letters were in the mails today to every Protestant minister in Allegheny County, asking him to assist the family-help-family campaign of Senator Frank J. Harris by organizing workers in his church. The letters were sent out by an executive committee of 13 leading Protestant clergymen who had conferred with Senator Harris earlier in the week.

The campaign, declared to be the most vigorous peacetime move undertaken in the history of the local churches, will officially get under way April 7. An advance group of about 125 businessmen already are soliciting contributions from corporations and individuals.

PASTORS' AID ASKED

The letters to the local pastors were signed by Dr. A. R. Robinson, chairman of the committee. Serving with him on the committee are Bishop Herbert Welch, Bishop Alexander Mann, Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, Dr. Jacob S. Payton, Dr. Homer A. Flint, the Rev. P. W. Snyder, Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, the Rev. G. A. Fry, the Rev. Walter A. Schuette, Dr. C. A. Voss, Dr. C. W. Petty, Dr. Albert E. Day and the Rev. C. L. Daugherty.

The letter reads in part as follows:

"After full discussion we are convinced the funds of the Emergency Association are fully exhausted, and 28,000 families will be destitute within a few days unless other funds are made available, and these are families in addition to those being helped by local committees.

"We believe the time has come for the church as an organization to take its proper place among the leaders of this humane enterprise.

GREAT NEED CITED

"We therefore urge not only that you devote your sermon on April 3 to this need, but that you select from your congregation from five to 10 men to serve as volunteers in the appeal and that you personally serve as a contact point between the campaign organization and your church.

While plans have not yet been fully completed for the work of the Catholic and Jewish congregations, leaders of both denominations will meet today with Senator Harris. Bishop Boyle already has sent out an appeal to the priests of his diocese, saying:

"I heartily approve the campaign for funds for relief of the destitute in Allegheny County which has come to be known as the family-help-family campaign.

"I hope you will in every possible way support the movement. I suggest that you commend it to your people and that you will make its cause yours wherever you are."

DOWNTOWN LEADER

Within a few days the advance guard of the campaign, headed by Taylor Allderdice, will make a report. D. M. Craig, leader of the Central brigade, which will start work April 7, announced that he had appointed George Vang "colonel" of a group in the downtown solicitation. Aiding Vang are L. I. McQueen, H. V. Blaxter, V. L. P. Shriver, H. S. Davison, W. S. Giles and Charles Yon.

Senator Harris has issued a statement, hoping to clear up a false impression in the minds of many who have called campaign headquarters in effort to "adopt" a certain family. He said:

"The campaign leaders are reluctant to subject needy families to humiliation and this makes it impossible for an individual or a family to support another family by name. However all subscriptions will go intact to the support of one of the 28,000 families without a cent of expense to detract from its effectiveness."

Father of 8, Jobless, Needs Shoes, Rental
Family Previously Evicted; Wife Fails To Find Work

With eight hungry children as an impelling force, William Pike set out on foot for Ambridge, in search of a job. This was only a few weeks ago. He didn't get it—in fact, he hasn't got one yet—and so it was that a social worker met him as he stood before the fire, holding his torn shoes before the glowing coals in an effort to thaw them out.

It has been more than two years since William Pike had a job or his family any regular support. He has been getting several hours a week with a coal company—which accounts for the coal fire—but the company no longer has any use for his services. The only food the family has had has come through relief funds.

Every morning, William Pike has said goodbye sorrowfully to Willie, 16; Bessie, 14; Harry, 12; Thomas, 10; Joseph, 8; James, 6; Louise, 4, and Harriet, who is just 15 months old, and trudged off in search of work. Every night he has returned, empty-handed.

Mrs. Pike had heard that she might be able to get some work by the day, which would bring her possibly $1.50 for every day she worked. But, when she reached the address given her, the family had moved. She later told the visitor that she would be willing to work at anything if she could only get her husband some shoes and the children some clothes for school.

The family had lived at their present address only four months, having been evicted for non-payment of rent at former lodgings, poor as they were. Mr. Pike's first consideration is to get money for rent as the family is again faced with the problem of being evicted. He has no money.

While relief funds so far have assured his family food, rent has been out of the question. And now, with relief funds of the Emergency Association exhausted, it is a question what will happen to Pike, his wife and their "stepladder family."

SEEK JOBLESS GARDEN LAND

Property owners of Allegheny County were asked last night by William P. Witherow, chairman of the Thrift Garden Committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association to turn over vacant land for use as gardens by the jobless this summer. Witherow said:

"The Thrift Garden Committee has received donations of some properties, but unless we receive more land we will not be in a position to supply the demands of unemployed workers desirous of helping themselves by raising their own foodstuffs this summer. Speaking for the committee, I can promise any property owner, willing to donate land for garden use, that there will be strict supervision of his lots.

"We are anxious particularly to receive offers of land that may be divided into garden plots 50 by 100 feet."

Owners willing to donate land should communicate with K. P. Rafferty, chairman of the land acquirement committee, at the headquarters, 516 Grant street.

MAIL CARRIER 42 YEARS RETIRES
Associates to Honor South Side Route Veteran

Harry Dryden, 63-year-old mail carrier of the South Side, will walk for pleasure only, after today.

He loaded his mail bag for the last time today at the Carson substation, South Fifteenth and Bingham streets, and started out on the route over which he tramped for 28 of the 42 consecutive years he carried mail. Tonight he retires on pension, one of the oldest carriers, in point of service, in Pittsburgh.

In these 42 years Dryden walked more thousands of miles than he cares to compute. He knows every business man, office boy and urchin on Carson street between South Nineteenth and South Twenty-first streets—and they know him.

Tonight at the Arcade Theater, 1915 Carson street, his fellow employes will stage a celebration in the veteran carrier's honor. There will be speeches and a presentation by postoffice workers and business men of his route.

Dryden resides at 2008 Sarah street with his family and his mother, aged 90.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.,
March 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Wait a minute now—it's all right for Jack Garner's reformed Congress to pour it onto the rich with income taxes, to fine a man for dying, to put a tax on malt till they make it cost like beer even if it don't taste like it, to refuse to pass a sales tax then turn around and tax everything that is sold; to put a tax on matches, and drive the U. S. to the insane asylum trying to make cigar lighters work; all these fool things come under the heading of Congressional Employment. But, when they put a tax on chewing gum the only thing left for a poor man to chew, that's going too far.

General Motors Exhibit Opens Here Saturday

W. P. Witherow, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, will officially open the exhibit of General Motors products Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in Motor Square Garden. The doors will be open to the public at 2:30 p. m. The Pittsburgh display is one of 55 national exhibits being held simultaneously throughout the country by General Motors.

An extensive program for the opening has been prepared by J. . Kenyon, general chairman of the local committee, and his assistants. There have been 10 assistant chairmen working under Kenyon, each having charge of certain duties in preparation for the national exhibit. Each chairman has had a corps of assistants working with him for six weeks. Great preparations have been made to make this show both educational and interesting to the public at large.

Immediately after the doors are opened a patriotic selection will be given by Don Bestor and his orchestra, the official welcome being given by Witherow at 7:30 p. m. A musical program will feature the afternoon and evening entertainment. The welcome and music will be broadcast.

Decorations are now being installed that will transform the Motor Square Garden into a colorful show place, according to Kenyon. The center motif of the decorative scheme will be a gigantic figure of a worker 17 feet high, standing above a symbolic picture of industry and holding aloft an automobile. At either side of the doors will be two mammoth hands carrying the slogan of the exhibit, "Work for Many Hands."

The exhibit will include a representative line of all the new 1932 General Motors automobiles, electrical refrigeration units, automotive accessories, vacuum cleaners, electric fans and generators and a booth showing youthful members of the Fisher Body Craftsmans' Guild fabricating a miniature model Napoleonic Coach. The exhibit will be open from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. each day to and including Saturday, April 9.

Some Youngsters Try to Be 'Grown Up' Too Soon

How old are you? Sixteen? Seventeen?

So, of course, you feel you're "really grown up—not a kid any more!"

And you "want your freedom"—yes? Want to go in for heavy dates and grand crushes.

But Mom and Dad—how do they feel about it? Will they let you stay out as late as you want—go where and with whom you want?

Dollars to doughnuts they won't. Then you get mad, don't you? Feel you're abused? Tell them they're ruining your life? Sometimes you positively despise them, wish you were an orphan, even decide to run away—huh?

Yep. Girls do feel that way at 16. Mary felt that way too. And Mary got what she wished—all the freedom and fun you're yearning for now. And what did it buy her? Listen!

WAS ALWAYS GAY

"Dear Sally:

"I want to say a few words to Betty, the confused kid of 16 who feels that she's 'different' and out of things. I am only 17 myself, but I feel as if I'd lived a lifetime, and I wish I hadn't.

"I've felt just like she feels. I still do at times, and I sympathize with her. I have felt as if I were 'different,' too, and that there was something wrong with me. I guess we all do.

"But what I really want to say is this. I was always a rather moody child — temperamentally and subject to different moods. Also I was always a good deal older than my actual age. Maybe that is what is the matter with me now. I began keeping company with boys when I was only 12. That was five years ago.

"Since then I have met and liked a lot of boys, and even had some 'wild crushes' that I thought were love. I have gone with some of the best and some of the wildest crowds. I was always gay and full of pep, no matter how I felt, and I made lots of friends. I took their affections so lightly. I was once told that if I ever really 'fell' I'd fall hard.

LOST HER PEP

"Well, I did meet a young man for whom I cared very much and he in turn liked me. We went together all summer. We thought we were very much in love. He was very sweet at first, then we broke up—at his wish.

"I can't tell you what I went through. I was forced to see him every day, and that made it harder. Well, that is all over now, but it did something to me. I don't know just what. I'm not trying to be cynical. That would be foolish, I know.

"But there just isn't any pep left in me anywhere. I try to keep up appearances, but underneath I feel terrible.

"I wish I could get interested in someone or something. At present I'm nervous and fidgety, which might have something to do with the queer way I feel. What do you make of it all? What's wrong? And what shall I do? Please help me.

"MARY."

What's wrong? Just growing pains, youngster—growing pains that have turned into an ache because you tried to hit your stride too soon.

You see, Mary, parents aren't the only things that cramp a girl's style. Nature herself cramps it. Life has speeded up in 1932, but Nature hasn't speeded up. Nature is still making humans at the same old speed—finishing 'em off in the same old leisurely way. And though you may feel grown up at 16, you aren't grown up. You're still in the raw, and you are still needing most of your energy to complete your bodily machinery of nerves and bones and blood.

JUST A LITTLE GIRL

But you "don't want to wait." You want to plunge forthwith into this smashing, sparkling business of living, and you hurl your unfinished mind and body into every high-powered experience. Then what happens?

You have just seen what happens. You "fa' down 'n' go boom!" You can't stand the pace. You haven't enough control over your emotions. Your mind isn't able to take the jumps. Your body isn't fit to stand the gaff. You're just a little girl, biting off more than you can chew.

Why are you "nervous and fidgety," disgusted and discouraged now? That's why. You're tired. You've had too big a dose of living, and now you'll have to go back to resting and growing again before you'll be able to manage any more adventures.

I'm not preaching at you, kid. I'm just telling you. You can kid yourself. You can kid Mom and Dad. But you can't kid old Grandma Nature.

So wait until you're ready before you fairly start.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Party Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning a little birthday party for my 5-year-old daughter in a few weeks and in writing the invitations should I mention the fact that it is a birthday party? The families of some of her little friends haven't much money for giving presents and I wouldn't like to have them feel that they would have to give her gifts. Thank you if you will help me about this.

E.

I like your honest understanding about this and I urge you to do as your own understanding directs, that is, do not mention in the invitations the fact that the party is a birthday party. As a matter of fact it is so much wiser to train your daughter to have parties, even birthday parties, without the expectation of "having presents." I have always admired the parents in some households that I know who bring up their children to give on their birthdays presents to their brothers and sisters. This, too, is the custom in many homes in England, and it's a fine idea.

All the parents would bless you, I am sure, if you send your invitations simply as an invitation to a party, and then at the party have the only birthday feature the birthday cake and the cutting of this festive cake.

Open the Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary when a girl's boy friend brings her a box of candy that she open it while he is there and offer him some? I think that opening the candy while the giver is present makes one feel cheap, but my friends think that I am wrong in not having given the giver some of the candy.

R. A. E.

I agree heartily with your friends. To [illegible] unnatural and "hoarding" not to open the candy and share it with the giver. It's much more fun, too.

Showers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Three very good friends of mine are to be married shortly, and I would like to give each one a shower. I cannot afford three separate showers, and as each girl goes with a different set and they are strangers to one another, I don't know how to manage it.

Would it be good form to have a shower for the three at the same time, and what would be the minimum number of girls from each set that I could invite?

R.

I don't believe that this plan of combining the showers will work out well, and I think that you will be sorry if you do this. The fact that each girl goes with a different set would indicate that you'll run into difficulties in your guest lists. If you wish to give a shower for each, why not plan to have each shower very simple, with the minimum of expense, and keep your showers separate? You need have only the simplest of foods, and the other details take care of themselves in having the shower the "entertainment."

Or you might combine with other friends, or another friend, members of the group for that shower and thus share the expense.

THE MAN MARRIED TO A BIG WOMAN IS RARELY A HEN-PECKED HUSBAND
FAY KING
I WISH YOU'D GROW UP AND QUIT BEING SUCH A BABY!

By FAY KING

The other afternoon we pedestrians on a certain block suddenly thought that Athena or Diana herself has commuted from Olympus to attend the sales.

This tall graceful girl stepped along utterly oblivious to the spellbound people who were frank in their admiration of her.

It was as if one of our loveliest statues had suddenly taken a notion to gad about a bit in modern frills and furs.

She was lovely, and I do not think she minds in the least being so magnificently tall.

Tall girls can be strikingly lovely, if they will remain frilly and feminine. The tailored masculine looking clothes spoil them.

Big girls I have known excel in sweetness of disposition and a timid childlike charm.

End Play Problems

Below is the solution for Problem 3, appearing last week:

	♠ 8 ♥ 2 ♣ K Q ♦ 7
♠ 6 5 2 ♣ A J	Y A B Z	♥ A Q ♦ J 10 8
	♠ A ♥ K 3 ♦ Q 9

The declaration of the hand above is no-trump. Y is to lead. How many tricks can Y-Z make against the best play of A-B? Try to solve the problem before reading the explanation given below.

Lead the K of clubs. B must discard either his Q of hearts or his lowest diamond. First suppose that the diamond discard is made. Let go Z's Ace of spades, to avoid having that hand put in the lead. If A declines to win the trick, he will be obliged to win the second lead of clubs. If A wins the first club trick, he must lead back either a losing club or a losing spade, and in either case Y will win the second trick. B and Z must make a second discard. Presuming that B discarded his lowest diamond on the first lead, he now has to chose between letting go another diamond, thus making both of Z's diamonds good, or of letting go his Q of hearts. He must let go the Q of hearts, retaining his two diamonds. Let go Dummy's lowest heart.

For the third lead, Y will lay down his one remaining black card, obliging B to make his third discard. In case he lets go his Ace of hearts, dummy's K becomes good and Z's lower diamond can be discarded. If A lets go his lower diamond, Z's K of hearts will be discarded, leaving both of his diamonds good.

In case B discards his Q of hearts at first, he is no better off than he was discarding his lowest diamond. B must take three discards upon leads of black cards. He will hold only two red cards when Y is ready to lead a heart or a diamond for the fourth trick, and he will be unable to win a single trick in either red suit.

The answer to the question asked ("How many tricks can Y-Z make against the best play of A-B?") is four.

Problem No. 4

This is another five-card problem. Diamonds are trumps. Y is to lead. How many tricks can Y-Z make against the best play of A-B?

	♠ K 10 7 ♣ A K
♠ Q J 8 ♣ 5 4	Y A B Z	♠ 6 5 ♣ 9 ♦ 9 5
	♠ 9 4 ♦ A 7 6

The solution of the above problem will appear next week.

Household Hints

To prevent cheese going mouldy, wrap it in a cloth slightly moistened with vinegar.

A mixture of lard and margarine makes a very nice "shortening" for pastry. A teaspoon of lemon juice, too, makes it light and flaky.

Folding napkins every week in the same folds tends to wear them out in the creases. One week fold them quarterwise and the next week in three folds and see if they do not wear longer.

When putting away cut steel buttons or ornaments cover them with a coating of oil. They can be washed and polished with fine emery paper when wanted and they will have the same appearance as new trimming.

To keep the sink sweet and pure, put a few crystals of permanganate of potash in a pail of hot water, and pour down the drain; a large tablespoonful of common washing soda, dissolved in a pail of hot water and poured down the pipe, or a small quantity of paraffin in hot water poured down the same way, will be effective.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pale green powder for the complexion is staging a comeback, due to the fact that beige is again a smart color for frocks. The green skin surface and the beige robe have a tender feeling for each other, especially if eyes are grey or green.

No use going platinum unless the old bank account is holding out. The silver-gold costs a lot to get and it costs just as much to maintain. It isn't suitable for any but natural blondes, though some of the brunets have taken a crack at it, much to their sorrow. Also, it has to be kept in condition with oil treatments and egg shampoos.

Those new hats that have brims tilted up in the back offer an elegant chance to display a beautiful coiffure, all curly and puffy at the rear. As chapeaux tilt forward, sidewise or back it's up to the phrail sex to have its glory crown in perfect order, nicely undulated, neatly arranged, carrying as much chic and style as can be acquired.

The hairdressing profession is divided, some members ballyhooing for the short bob, others for the longer mop. But all agree that there's nothing to be gained by possessing hair longer than six or seven inches. Upturned curls at the back of the head are neat and nifty, no great bother if the hair has a natural curl or has been subjected to the permanent wave process. Our old friend, Kid Curler, has emerged from obscurity and acts as understudy to the iron.

It is time that backs were taken in hand. White satin evening frocks show 'em up, and not all of them meet the requirements of high-grade pulchritude. Beauty shops give backs grand attention, treatments that include bleaching, massage to put the upholstery on shoulder blades, applications of special creams to bring the quality of the cuticle up to beauty par. And the rear portions of necks aren't all they should be, what with coat collars producing redness, roughness and general havoc.

Value of Fresh Air Can't Be Over-Emphasized

For centuries night air was believed dangerous and harmful to health. Windows were barred, and children as well as adults rarely ventured out in the night air.

I am sorry to say that the ancient and barbaric custom of sleeping in a room with closed windows still prevails in many homes. Even now there are those who do not realize the importance of properly ventilated homes—the health value of fresh air.

When impure or stale air is breathed the resistance of the body against infections and disease is lowered. Headache, irritability, loss of appetite and even severe digestive disturbances are often due to impure air. A common cause of the ordinary cold is breathing the dry air of crowded places and of poorly ventilated rooms.

Lack of fresh air in packed trains, theaters, offices and schools often causes severe headache and dizziness. If you work in a crowded room, make sure that the windows are open from the top and bottom. This will supply the necessary moist air and replace the impure air.

During cold weather ventilation is an especially important problem in every home. Generally one member of the household prefers a warm room and shivers at the mention of an open window. Ideal room temperature is between 68 and 72 degrees fahrenheit and the air should not be dry, yet it should not contain too much moisture.

Dust, gas and smoke are three factors which must be avoided to insure pure air. Germ-laden dust is detrimental to health. It is a carrier of such diseases as influenza, pneumonia, whooping cough and tuberculosis.

Toxic gases when present in the air are poisonous and dangerous to health. Leaky gas jets, flues and coal stoves are frequent sources of this danger.

Smoke removes moisture from the air. It causes irritation of the nose and throat and this results in coughing and sneezing. Persons in a room where the air is filled with tobacco smoke "thick enough to cut with a knife" subject themselves to the dangers of ill health.

Continued lack of fresh air may result in an anemic condition called "chlorosis." This form of anemia is found in young girls who avoid fresh air and walking, confining themselves all day to close, dimly lighted and poorly ventilated rooms. The disease is rarely seen among country girls who enjoy the benefits of fresh air and sunlight. Fortunately, the treatment of this condition is simple and effective. It consists essentially of good food, rest, plenty of fresh air and sunlight.

Recent studies show that lack of fresh air may affect the body in several ways. Fresh air aids the body in maintaining a normal blood pressure, pulse, respiration and what the doctors call the "metabolism rates," as well as normal nervous reactions.

Do not be ashamed of being called a "fresh-air bug." Breathing fresh air is just as important as drinking pure water and eating clean food. You should be extremely careful about the air you breathe.

YET... No "Acid Headache"... No Upset Stomach This Morning
The Law of Good Health says: "Don't overindulge—don't smoke too much, eat too much, drink too much coffee or other stimulants."
Science says: "If you do, the QUICKEST, SIMPLEST and EASIEST way to avoid FEELING its results is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia taken this way:
"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water before bed.
"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water with the juice of a whole ORANGE when you get up."
Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia.
Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes the excess acids in your stomach and alkalinizes its contents, sweetens them; banishes headaches and sour stomach.
Demand genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; either the liquid form or the new, convenient tablets.
TWO FORMS NOW AT STORES
You can now get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in tablet form, as well as ordinary liquid form. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Milk of Magnesia. Carry the tablets with you wherever you go. They taste like mint candy.

A man is never whipped as long as he is physically fit—
If you don't feel your best when you awake in the morning... eager to eat... ready to go... you may be sure of one thing—the foundation of the "joy of living" is lacking. The reasonable answer is—
Build up your system - - gain new strength
"A FEW MONTHS AGO overwork and worry caused me to neglect regular and proper eating... then unfortunately I caught a cold. It was not long that with the least exertion I felt exhausted—some days I was barely able to work—it began to look as if some disease was getting a foothold—I realized the importance of taking prompt precautionary measures.
"I couldn't afford hospital treatment or to go off to a health resort—my position was at stake... my family was dependent upon my earnings.
"I had sense enough to know that a 'lowered' blood count was the cause of my weakness and lack of resistance. Several of my friends had been benefited by taking S.S.S., and had suggested that I try it, too. Fortunately I did.
"Look at me now—I feel fine... my complexion was never better... I sleep like a child... and as for my appetite, I really enjoy my food and digest it with ease."
The reasonable way to health
Of course, it isn't fair to expect one to like work or to enjoy play when handicapped by a "lowered" blood count.
Without plenty of rich, red-blood-cells there could be no strong, sturdy men and healthy, beautiful women. Unquestionably you appreciate the fact that red-blood-cells play a dominant role in maintaining health... and that dangerous consequences often follow the neglect of a lowered blood count.
It is very usual for a lowered red-blood-cell count to symptom itself in pallor of the skin, lessened vitality, boils, pimples, or other skin disorders, and in a general lack of bodily resistance to fatigue or disease.
In times like these you can't afford to be laid up... neither can you afford to be a "flop" at 4 o'clock.
S.S.S. gives New Strength
If you require a tonic you should by all means try S.S.S.—this long established medicine acts by stimulating the secretions of the stomach... reviving the appetite... aiding digestion... regenerating hemoglobin... restoring the red-blood-cells—and builds greater resistance against infection and disease.
S.S.S. helpfulness is illustrated by this fact—our records show that nearly one-half of those who have taken it, for the first time, do so upon the recommendation of some friend who has been benefited. Can there be any stronger recommendation for its merit and usefulness than this?
A distinctive thing about S.S.S. is that it is made from fresh roots, barks and herbs... it is readily absorbed by the system. Another thing is that its efficiency has been proved by scientific tests and by its use for more than 100 years. It is a safe Tonic to take.
S. S. S. is an economical way to health. Try it yourself. Get S.S.S. from any drug store. In two sizes: regular and double—the latter is more economical and is sufficient for a two weeks' treatment. It may be the means of bringing better health and happiness to you.

STRIKE CALLED IN 2 STATES

COLUMBUS, O., March 31 (INS.)—Dawn tomorrow was set as the "zero hour" by officials of the United Mine Workers of America for a strike of 25,000 coal miners blanketing every nonunion miner in Ohio and the West Virginia Panhandle.

Decision to call the two-state strike was reached after coal operators in the district ignored a conference called by union officials yesterday to discuss the wage problem that has already resulted in a strike of 12,000 miners since February 1.

Lee W. Hall, president of the Ohio district of the union, who issued the strike call, estimated today that approximately 13,000 miners will joint the strike of the 12,000 already idle in protest to a wage cut.

The strike as planned by union officials is expected to result in almost a complete shutdown of Ohio and Northern West Virginia mines.

COMIC STAMPS 'BID' TO PARTY

Sarita Harriet Silverman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Silverman, Midland, Pa., is celebrating her fifth birthday today and the Sunday Sun-Telegraph comic stamps have been employed in a unique way for this affair.

Mrs. Silverman wanted something unusual and novel for an invitation. So she secured very small-size stationery, clipped the comic stamps and pasted them on the upper corner of each invitation—boy comics for boys and girl comics for girls. She used pink stationery for the girls and blue for the boys and the comic stamps in colors gave them a touch of real novelty. Incidentally the "bids" were typewritten and read as follows:

I wished I could have a party
And my wish is coming true.
So now I make another wish,
I wish you would come—
Please do!

The party was held in the Seventh Street School kindergarten and, from all reports, was a great success.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of golden yellow lace having a pale green girdle, and a yellow braid hat trimmed in green. She carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses, lilies of the valley and sweetpeas tied with green tulle. Her sister, Miss Alverda Fye, maid of honor, wore rust colored chiffon and lace with a matching hat and carried jonquils. Names of 25,000 Needed for Congress

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

The women of Southwestern Pennsylvania—not only clubwomen, but also those who do not belong to any organization—will be asked to procure 25,000 signatures in Postal Telegraph books before June 1 of this year, on behalf of the international congress of women at the 1933 World's Fair, under auspices of the National Council of Women.

A meeting of the local signature-procuring committee under Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Woman, was held yesterday morning in the Woman's City Club. With Mrs. Chalfant met Mrs. John M. Phillips, first vice president of the Federation; Mrs. H. J. Fox, president of Allegheny County; Mrs. J. Charles Runk, district chairman of fine arts; Mrs. W. E. Brosius, president of the Crafton Woman's Club; Mrs. W. H. McCombs, of the Carrick Mothers' Club; Mrs. C. A. Rehtmeyer, president of the City Council P. T. A.; Mrs. Charles B. Buerger, Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of highway safety in the General Federation, and Miss May Hinchey, of the Nurses' Association.

The "guest books" will be placed immediately in the 18 city branch offices of the Postal Telegraph Company and any woman may sign without obligation, the signatures being merely a gesture of interest in and appreciation of the company's generous offer of $100,000 to finance the congress.

Guest Books

G. W. Grime, city superintendent of the company, who, by the way, will send a book to any club meeting upon request of the women, states that 900 signatures have already been received by him, the majority of these being from out-of-town organizations.

Those cities procuring their quotas within the given time will be made stop-stations in a cross-country flight by Ruth Nichols, the aviatrix. Should Pittsburgh reach her quota, and of course she will, the club women plan to have what one of them called "a big day," probably at Bettis Field, with Miss Nichols as guest of honor.

Mrs. Chalfant advises that each woman belonging to a national organization register from the national rather than a local group, for the Council of Women is offering to any national group making a substantial showing an award of one-half cent per name.

BUCS DROP MANY CRACK SHORTSTOPS

ONE OF THE striking features of major league baseball operations in recent years has been the number of crack shortstops let go by the Pittsburgh club. That's the hardest position on the field to fill in a way that will leave nothing to be desired, and many a club has to do years of experimenting before it finds a satisfactory man for the place. Yet the Bucs have picked up and dropped again more good shortstops than the average team is able to obtain in a generation. There are almost enough former Pirate shortfielders around the two main loops to supply an entire league.

Roger Peckinpaugh

Joe Cronin, of the Senators, is one good enough to be ranked as the most valuable player in his league. Glenn Wright, of the Dodgers, is another, expected to resume shining this year now that a trick ankle appears to be sound again. Rabbit Maranville, of the Braves, at 39 and after almost 20 years in the big show, can still show the kids a lot of stuff, and, though not scheduled at present for regular duty, may later prove Bill McKechnie's best bet for the job. Dick Bartell, of the Phillies, is a standout in the Quaker defense, and Hal Rhyne, of the Red Sox, has become one of the leaders in the American League.

SEEMINGLY, IF A shortstop has had any faults or weaknesses while playing for the Rovers he quickly overcomes them after being shifted to another club. Now comes Roger Peckinpaugh, Cleveland manager, to add another to the list. The latest is Eddie Montague.

Shortstop had threatened to be the only weak spot in the Indians' lineup this year. But Peckinpaugh, himself a former shortfielder, has obtained such good results in giving Montague a course of personal coaching that the boy once tried by the Corsairs is pronounced the most improved player on the Cleveland club.

[illegible] Montague [illegible] was [illegible] two fast-charging grounders that didn't call for charging. Instead of getting the ball on the right sort of hop Eddie was grabbing at it wherever he happened to meet it, often on the short, deceptive bounce that gives the best of shortstops trouble.

On some plays and on some runners, such haste is necessary, but Montague in many instances was booting the ball away through undue hurry on a short hop, when he could have taken his time, got a better bounce and nailed the runner with ease.

"THERE'S NO REASON why you should be giving yourself tough chances when, by slowing up half a step, you could make the chance easy and still get your man," Peck explained to Montague. "You've got a great arm, and that's all the more reason why you can afford to take a split second longer to make sure of a ground ball. Let's try it." Gordon Cobbledick reports that manager and player went to the shortfield together, daily, and that for 15 minutes at a time Howard Shanks, Monaco coach, hit grounders while Peck coached Montague on how to play the hops. After a couple of weeks, Monty began to get the hang of it, and today finds him so much improved that he is called the best shortstop Cleveland has had since the palmy days of Joe Sewell. Peck has ceased to worry about the shortfield position, the Indians' stock is going up, and one more cast-off Pirate shortstop is in a fair way to become a star in another town.*

ON THE STRENGTH of his staggering new world record of 46.4 seconds for the quarter mile, Ben Eastman is being picked to win the 400-meter dash in the Olympic games, but one rival who may give him some trouble if an entrant again for Canada as he was in 1928 is Alex Wilson, Notre Dame track star.

Alex Wilson

Wilson has been the season's indoor sensation at the same distances which Eastman is running outdoors in amazing fashion. In the Central Intercollegiate Conference meet at South Bend recently, the Canadian smashed the world indoor record for the quarter by doing the distance in 49.5 seconds. Tom Halpin's old mark of 49.6 had stood since 1913. Wilson also set a new Conference half-mile record of 1:57, two seconds faster than the previous record, held by himself.

THE REVISION OF the sport tax system under the provisions of the bill adopted by the House, whereby instead of the present levy of 10 per cent on $3 to $5 tickets and 25 per cent on all tickets costing more than $5 there will be a straight 10 per cent tax on all tickets costing more than 46 cents, shifts the burden to the shoulders of those who are least able to bear it.

It lightens the load of the ringsiders and fancy seat holders and puts it on the poorer patrons. It would appear that those able to pay more than $5 for a sport ticket could also better afford to pay a 25 per cent tax than those whose means limit them to the cheaper seats can afford to pay 10 per cent additional.

ONE OF THE best numbers coming out of the baseball training camps is a story from the Dodger front to the effect that Manager Max Carey is going to take Outfield Johnny Frederick in hand personally and show him how to overcome his weakness in the handling of ground balls. That surely will be a case of the blind leading the blind. With all due respect to Carey's rare playing qualities in other departments, if there ever was a big league outfielder weaker on ground balls than Max himself his name does not readily come back to Pittsburgh fans.

ONE YEAR AGO today the sport world was stunned by the shocking news that one of its most towering and beloved figures, Knute Kenneth Rockne, had been hurled to instant death in an airplane crash on a Kansas farm. There loomed a staggering loss, not only to Notre Dame, but to all football.

The passing of a twelvemonth has served to show that the extent of that loss was not overestimated. The void that the sudden taking of the gridiron wizard left in football is as great today as on the day he died. Football is still going on, but without Rockne it is not the same game.

NEW YORK DEVELOPMENTS lend color to the recent rumor that the Madison Square Garden Corporation will pass up the major league baseball parks there and build a stadium of its own for the Schmeling-Sharkey heavyweight championship fight on June 16 and later big fistic shows.

W. F. Carey

President W. F. Carey declines to discuss the report, but his statement that no deal is contemplated at the moment for the use of one of the ball parks is significant. Arrangements probably would have been made before now if the promoters planned to use the field of the Giants or Yankees.

WITH REAL ESTATE values and the cost of material and labor lower than in a long time, an arena can be built at present much more cheaply than in recent years, when construction engineers figured the cost of such a stadium at $12 to $13 per seat. These engineers also say that such an arena as is planned, seating 85,000 for fights and 70,000 for football games, could be completed in less than two months. In five years the Garden has paid the New York ball clubs more than $500,000 in rent and has spent another $100,000 for setting up benches and other work. It is figured that through this saving the proposed arena would pay for itself in five years.

TONY GAMBLE, MONAR COP FIGHTS

By JESS CARVER

Lightweight, middleweight and welterweight amateurs will trade wallops tonight in first round battles in the annual A. M. A. A. A. senior championships ring tournament which got under way last night in the gymnasium of the Keystone A. C. The tourney will be completed Saturday night when final bouts in all weight divisions will be staged.

In last night's inaugural scrapping, flyweights, bantamweights and feathers went into action, a classy brand of leather-slinging being offered. In the 112-pound class the defending champion, Tony Gamble, of the Duffy A. C., of Erie, proved his right to contest with the best of the little fellows by trimming Johnny Gillam, of the Boylestein A. C., of Kittanning, in three rounds. Gamble, a southpaw who hits hard and often with both mitts, punched Gillam to pieces, and while he failed to score a clean knockout, won when the referee put a stop to the mayhem in the first round. Gillam went down twice before the third man in the ring stepped in and put an end to the slaughter.

MONAR BEATS GOULD

Paul Monar, clever Homesteader, had too much class for Al Gould, of the Y. M. H. A., and carried off the verdict in the opening bout. Monar, who figures to make a serious bid for title honors at his weight, exhibited a nifty left mitt [illegible].

In a 118-pound class go, Ike George, of the Burke A. C., was awarded the verdict of the judges over Johnny Durso, Pittsburgh Lyceum scrapper. Durso, with a snake-like left and a hard right cross, appeared to have a distinct edge over George, who had only an edge in aggressiveness to boast. Durso rocked him repeatedly with his right hand.

Eddie Katkish, a brother of Jack and Joey Katkish, Strip professionals, rallied in the third round to sock out a decisive triumph over Bobby Kelly, of the Pittsburgh Boys' Club. The bout was another 118-pound affair. Katkish, with a staggering left to the body, always a favorite punch of the Katkish tribe, was no better than even until the advent of the final round, when he chased his opponent around the ring with a savage two-fisted attack.

FINALS SATURDAY

Tomorrow night the light-heavies and heavyweights will go into action, with final bouts in all classes on Saturday. Official seconds are being used in this year's tourney, a novelty for A. M. A. events. The official seconds are working in the corners with representatives of each boxer. Ralph Shinton and Oscar Carlson, popular Uniontown referee, who handled the recent Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference championship tournament in the Carnegie Tech Gymnasium, refereed last night's bouts. Carlson made a hit with his handling of the bouts. Last night's results follow:

112-pound class—Paul Monar, Homestead Library, defeated Al Gould, Y. M. H. A., 3 rounds; Frank Schrider, Boys Club, defeated Young Gibbons, McKeesport A. C., 3 rounds; Lee Sweeney, Boys Club, defeated Matt Gallagher, Y. M. H. A., 3 rounds; Tony Gamble, Duffy A. C., Erie, won on a technical knockout over John Gillam, Boylestein A. C., Kittanning, 1 round; Paul Monar, Homestead Library, won on a technical knockout over Matt [illegible], Emerald A. C., 1 round.

118-pound class—Johnny [illegible] A. C. [illegible] defeated [illegible], Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds; David [illegible], Duffy A. C., Erie, defeated Jack [illegible] A. C., St. Michael, 3 rounds; Eddie Katkish, Willow Club, defeated Bob Kelly, Boys Club, 3 rounds; Ike George, Burke A. C., defeated John Durso, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds; Frank [illegible], Willow Club, defeated Ed [illegible], Y. M. H. A., 3 rounds; John [illegible] Club, defeated John [illegible], Willow Club, 3 rounds; Tony [illegible], Willow Club, defeated Felix Camello, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: DENVER'S MAN OF MYSTERY—On a dark night in 1914, a gentleman, dressed in a frock coat, a tall silk hat and a gold-handled cane, was brought to the Denver General Hospital as a result of an automobile accident which paralyzed his limbs and deprived him of the power of speech. Only his name was found among his effects, but outside of that nothing is known about Louis Dionne, the mystery patient of Denver, whose personal appearance bespeaks a man of breeding and refinement. He can neither talk nor write. For the last 18 years he has been gazing with dimming eyes from his place in a wheel chair at the window at a blank wall opposite. Seventeen years ago a beautiful young woman was a daily visitor of Dionne's for a whole year. She left one day, never to appear again, leaving Dionne to an apparent fate of mystery and solitude. FIFTY-TWO YEARS ON A BOAT, BUT NEVER AT SEA—Marshall N. Damon, chief engineer of a ferryboat operated by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, has just retired after 52 years of service on river boats and ferries. It is figured that Damon has covered more than 900,000 miles of travel over the wet element in his professional capacity, but he never has been to sea.

SPORT VIGNETTES

You folks who read in the newspapers last Friday that Billy Petrolle had won by a technical knockout over Battling Battalino in the twelfth and scheduled last round of their bout in Madison Square Garden the night before were taken for a buggy ride, according to no less an authority than the New York Athletic Commission.

The N. Y. comish for the first time announces that it does not recognize technical knockouts and that the bout will be entered in its records as "stopped by referee."

This is line with a policy suggested here only recently in cases where a bout is stopped because of cut eyes or other accidental conditions, the idea being that it is unfair to charge a knockout or technical knockout defeat against a boxer who is anxious to continue and is prevented from doing so through no fault of his own.

However, in the case of the Petrolle-Battalino affair, the rule does not seem to apply. The Battler was taking a bad beating, and it was to save him from his opponent's punishment that the referee intervened. Here was a full-fledged and legitimate technical knockout.

The New York commission's rule is that it recognizes only one form of knockout and that is the full count of 10 over a prostrate boxer. Locally we have just got over a ridiculous state of affairs whereby knockouts were being transformed into "technical knockouts" because the count was stopped when seconds threw in towels with their men having no chance of getting up inside the count. The toll now goes on regardless of the towel or sponge, with the stricken boxer a knockout victim if he does not get up inside of 10 seconds and the loser by a technical knockout if he does.

The "Stopped—cut eye," "Stopped—fall from ring," etc., designation of the finish of a bout that ends accidentally is a good plan to keep the records straight, but it should not be abused. To deprive Petrolle of at least a technical knockout victory in his bout with Battalino is to rob him of due credit. If there are to be no such things as technical knockouts, then the "stopped by referee" should be elaborated upon to give the reason for the official's action.

At any rate, the New York commission has the germ of a good idea and is taking a needed step in the proper direction.—HARRY KECK.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 31.—The Pirates have another real opportunity to show their strength as they open a six-game series with the Chicago Cubs here today. The Bucs and Cubs are to tangle for four days in a row here, traveling on the fifth day—Monday—and playing single games at Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., before finding new opponents.

In a do-or-die frame of mind after losing, 6 to 5, in another prolonged encounter—this time 11 innings—at the hands of the Los Angeles Angels at Santa Barbara yesterday, the Men of Gibson hope to take the measure of the Bruins before all is said and done. Larry French went the route and was unfortunate in losing the verdict.

The aggregation that Manager Gibson will place on the field to represent the Pirates in the National League opening game at St. Louis in two weeks will be little changed from last year's club.

At least, this is as it appears at the present time. Gibson has been favoring the same aggregation that which finished last year's campaign with only one change.

VAUGHAN MAY PLAY

The strength or weakness of Tommy Thevenow's right ankle, which was broken toward the end of last season, may cause a shift in the lineup. Thevenow has been permitted to take things easy so far in the exhibition tour and has not appeared in any of the games.

His place has been taken by Floyd Vaughan, a recruit, who last season played with Wichita, and who has been playing sensational ball on the tour. Tommy has the edge in experience and smoothness of play, but Vaughan looks like the real goods, and it won't take long for the rough edges to wear off.

The remainder of the infield will consist of Traynor, Piet and Suhr, veterans who need no mention. The other departments will give Gibson little worry. The catchers, including Earl Grace, Hal Finney and Bill Brenzel, have been performing well, and leave little room for criticism.

OUTFIELD INTACT

The outfield has the two Waners and Comorosky, a trio which needs no introduction to Pirate followers—Woody Jensen, who was with the Buccos last year; Dave Barbee, a Coast phenom, and Gus Dugas, who batted .419 to lead the American Association.

The hurlers are giving Gibson no trouble at all. The moundsmen have rounded into almost perfect condition with the exception of Charley Wood and Remy Kremer. Wood has shown marked improvement in his condition since his appendicitis operation performed in Los Angeles last Monday. Kremer has been doctoring with a sore arm, which is rounding into shape.

Isaac Bernheim, who brought Barney Dreyfuss into this country as a boy from Germany, and who started Dreyfuss on his career, attended the games here and afterward visited with the Pirates.

BERNHEIM IN CAMP

Bernheim, during a fanning bee, told of Dreyfuss' early life, how he started in the liquor business in Louisville and then, when advised to give up that line due to his ill health, entered baseball as a part owner of the Louisville Colonels, later buying the franchise along with that of Pittsburgh, and transferring the club to Pittsburgh.

Josh Clark, a brother of Fred, who formerly managed the Buccos, and also was one of their earliest outfield stars, was also a visitor.

STEELTON FIVE HERE

The Steelton St. Mary's team plays Rankin C. A. C. tonight at Rankin. Steelton is said to be the best club in Dauphin County and claims the Central Pennsylvania championship. The contest begins at 8 p. m.

DUKES BEGIN PRELIMINARY TENNIS PRACTICE

PROMISING NET SQUAD TURNS OUT TO DRILL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Grant Siverd's Duquesne University net contingent has led the way for local racqueters to open outdoor activities of the district tennis campaign. Favored by springlike weather, the Bluff performers, numbering nearly a score, turned out for initial get-together on the Hill-top asphalt yesterday afternoon and, though most of the varsity and freshman aspirants who made up the troupe reported after the Easter holiday without equipment, a half-hour blackboard drill and a brief stroke demonstration period on the rectangles set the squad to the preliminary training business that will culminate for the upper class representatives on Saturday, April 23, when the crack Pitt array visits the Red and Blue to inaugurate the competitive season.

THREE LETTERMEN

Capt. Rege Bullion and Joe O'Neill, senior luminaries, and Frank Casey, junior veteran, are the lone lettermen remaining from the 1930 outfit. All three were on deck for the lid-lift session and appeared fit—though appearances at this stage of the proceedings are apt to be proven deceptive when the combatants are given their first taste of stiff drills.

Several promising sophomores, including Bill Purcell, Alex Iungerich, Bill Hill and Frank Lissig, will seek berths, while Cliff Soisson, junior from Bellevue, aims to land a regular post after serving a year with the reserve a twelvemonth ago. A quartet of senior contenders—Tom Murphy, Jack Harkins, Carothers Irvin and Larry Fisher—made their debut as monogram hunters after three seasons of inter-class racquet milling, and stand excellent chance of breaking into the line-up in time to land numerals prior to graduation a few weeks hence.

DRILLS CONTINUED

Practice will be continued daily on the Hill from now till the start of scheduled hostilities. Meanwhile, at Pitt and Carnegie Tech, net candidates have been ordered to light indoor conditioning work, pending the whipping into shape of the clay surfaces on the Panther and Skibo lots. The Duke roster to date: Joseph J. O'Neill, Thomas Murphy, Alexander Iungerich, Carothers Irvin, Cliff Soisson, Jack Harkins, Larry Fisher, Leonard Wingert, Robert Daugherty, William Hill, William J. Purcell, Frank R. Casey, Frank Lissig, Capt. Regis Bullion, Tom O'Connor and Roy G. Getty.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Little Lloyd Waner made more basehits than any other major leaguer last year and the achievement was given the playup it deserved. Nothing has been said, however, concerning another top accomplishment on the part of the midget star, i. e.: Lloyd was out in front of all major competitors in the important matter of handling chances in the field.

A perusal of the records of the big circuits discloses the midget marvel to be the cream of the crop of the pasture boys—he was the only ball hawk in the advanced school of baseball to reach the 500-mark in the point of chances. The appealing Pirate star is credited with a total of 515 chances and he slipped only 11 times.

In 1928, Taylor Douthit, the then centerfielder for the Cardinals, established a new record for the majors with a total of 557 chances. That performance may stand for many seasons to come. Nobody in the American League was close to Brother Lloyd in the point of chances, but Walter Berger, the galloping giant of the Braves, made the wee Bucco step on the gas. Berger totaled 484 chances for the season as he roamed the big range for Bill McKechnie. In view of the fact that Berger, in top condition, scales close to 200 pounds, his feat is an outstanding one.

Tom Oliver, sensational fly-chaser of the lowly Red Sox, turned in a fine card of consistency and brilliance in the past year. Tom led the American League ball hawks in his art as he turned up 451 chances. The most remarkable angle on Oliver's achievement lay in his surehandedness—he was charged with only three errors.

In connection with fleetfooted and surehanded centerfielders it is with considerable pleasure that this writer notes that the liveliest boy of all was a wonder athlete who left the major circuit years too soon. The reference is to Arnold Statz, a star of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League for many seasons past.

Statz hung up a total of 579 chances for the season, the Coast League having more than 180 games in its card. But Statz was one of the greatest as he flashed in the National League for several seasons. Moreover, he is a marvel on the golf links.

Bill Benswanger, the Pirate prexy, is all set to board the rattlers tonight for a long jaunt into Texas. Bill is due to reach St. Louis tomorrow, but so far no conference with Heinie Meine has been arranged. It develops that Benswanger is slated to be in St. Louis for only 30 minutes. Apparently there ahs been no attempt to arrange for a conference between the club president and the team's leading pitcher.

Benswanger will hurry on to San Antonio, where he expects to rest for a few days before retracing his steps to Fort Worth. The homebound band of Buccos is due to land at Fort Worth next Tuesday and Bill wants to be there to discuss many things with Manager George Gibson. It may that the Pirates may place one or two of their surplus players with Ted Robinson's Fort Worth club. Very friendly relations exist between the Pittsburgh team and Robinson's entry.

LAYDEN PLANS GRIDIRON CLINIC

Elmer Layden, football coach at Duquesne, announced yesterday at a banquet held by the Purdue University Alumni Association in the William Penn Hotel that he would conduct a football clinic to be staged following the close of spring practice at the Bluff school.

The Duquesne gridders will usher in spring practice on Monday and will be kept at the grind for five weeks.

Noble Kizer, coach at Purdue, was the principal speaker at the banquet. He expressed himself as elated over the renewal of relations with Carnegie Tech.

While the Purdue grads were listening to Kizer, alumni of Colgate were hearing Andy Kerr, football coach, speak in the University Club. Kerr announced that prospects for a winning team next fall were bright.

All athletic heads at Duquesne have been retained. Besides Layden, who will continue to coach the varsity, it was announced that John Holohan has been retained as graduate manager, Aldo (Buff) Donnelli as freshman coach and Joe Bach as line coach.

East Pittsburgh Honors High Five

East Pittsburgh will pay tribute to its high school basketball squad at a banquet to be held tonight in the Hebron Lutheran Church, East Pittsburgh. The team won the championship of Section XVII and was eliminated in the first round of the W. P. I. A. L. series by Swissvale, Section XI champion.

The banquet is being sponsored by the East Pittsburgh citizens' committee.

James A. Kennedy will be toastmaster. Among the speakers will be Buzz Hogan, Carnegie Tech coach; Chick Davies, Duquesne University coach; John Datton of the Boy Scouts of America, and Johnny Coleman, East Pittsburgh coach.

BILOXI, Miss., March 31.—I see McGraw will train his Giants in Southern California again next year. It's getting so you can see more of the world signing up with a ball club than joining the U. S. Marines.

The fact the Agua Caliente race track is just a taxi ride from Southern California probably does not have anything to do with Mac's decision. But I'll bet he'd take spring training to Labrador if there was a jockey club next door.

Well, the experts have decided our Washington club can't do better than third place this year. An expert is a guy that tells you in the spring where the world series will open, but doesn't dare buy a Pullman ticket there until the pennant races are over.

Lott Eliminated In Texas Tourney

HOUSTON, Tex., March 31.—(AP)—George Lott, of Chicago, yesterday was eliminated from the Houston invitation tennis tournament, by Karl Kamrath, of Texas University, 6-4, 7-5.

It was an upset almost as startling as when Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, was defeated by Martin Buxby, a Texas University sophomore.

Wilmer Allison, of Texas, seeded No. 3, Gilbert Hall, of New York, seeded No. 4, and Junior Coen, of Kansas City, seeded No. 5, remained in the tournament.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Willie Davies vs. Tony Marino, 10 rounds, and Young Joe Walcott vs. Joey Bazzone, Angelo Vergione vs. Karo Angeloff and Hal Finney vs. Johnny Lewis, 6 rounds each, McKeesport.

Preliminaries continued in Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. senior tournament, Keystone A. C.

Tommy Rios vs. Joe Smallwood, 10 rounds, Wilmington, Del.

Billy Angelo vs. Matt Rice, 10 rounds, Pottsville, Pa.

George Courtney vs. Battie Kichline, 10 rounds, Phillipsburg, N. J.

Benny Leonard vs. Mike Sarko, 10 rounds, Brooklyn.

Battling Gizzy vs. Wesley Ramey, 10 rounds, and Jack Dempsey vs. Babe Hunt (exhibition), 4 rounds, Detroit.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Just how good Tony Marino of Duquesne is as a boxer will be demonstrated tonight, when he meets the ol' school teacher of the little fellows around here, Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in the 10-round main bout in Jim McGirr's McKeesport arena.

Willie Davies

Tony has been looking swell in his bouts against the run-of-mine opponents he has met so far. He is a good boxer, fast on his feet and with his hands, a sharp puncher and a good ring general for a youngster. So far he hasn't been asked to match his skill against anything like a Willie Davies.

In a way, this bout almost could be advertised as being for the bantamweight championship of the district. Mose Butch, Jackie Wilson and Jimmy Thomas profess to be bantams, but they all have their troubles getting down to 118 pounds, the class limit, whereas both Davies and Marino are nothing more than heavy-flyweights. Davies has been giving away weight in his recent battles, and this accounts for the fact that he has had his hands full against younger, stronger foes.

Tonight's battle is the most attractive of the season in McKeesport and ought to draw a profitable house for the promoter and boxers. Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and Joe Wolcott, of Washington, Pa., welterweights, box the semi-final, Angelo Vergione and Karo Angeloff the second bout, and Hal Finney and Johnny Lewis the opener at 8:30.

Between Rounds

This is the night Battling Gizzy boxes Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids lightweight, in a 10-rounder in Detroit's Olympia arena, backing up an exhibition between Jack Dempsey and Babe Hunt.

Patsy Wallace, the Negro welterweight of New York, who has been training here, will be one of the principals in next week's show in the Kapphan Arena. He comes highly recommended by James (Red) Mason, dean of local managers, who saw him perform in Chicago.

Believe it or not, but the talk of the town is that double windup show at popular prices that Appie Meyers has tossed together for the Kapphan Arena tomorrow night with Guy Salerno meeting Joey La Grey in the main bout and Angel [illegible] opposing Tiger Joe West in another 10-rounder with the six round preliminaries. A delegation of fans is coming from Johnstown, LaGrey's former home town, to see him in action.

Frankie Wine and Harold Scaine will headline a card for the benefit of the Red Cross at Salem, O., April 15. [illegible] may be on the same [illegible].

Ray Kiser, Tulsa lightweight, who has boxed here several times, meets Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, in a non-title bout in New Orleans, Canzoneri's home town, next Monday night.

George Panka of Homestead and Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City, heavyweights, will meet in a return bout at the Moose Temple a week from next Wednesday night. Lee Page of Dubois and Jimmy Moore of the Hill, middleweights, will box the semi-final.

Ted Yarosz is training again and may be one of the principals in the main bout at the Garden's next show, one week from next Monday night.

SOCCER TEAMS IN NOCTURNAL ENGAGEMENT

By TOM BIRKS

With the cup committee pushing the Referees' Charity Cup games, a night game will take place at South Park tonight at 8 o'clock, featuring the Owls and Heidelberg.

On Saturday the fans likely will see two real battles. The Castle Shannon Juniors, after making a fine showing in the national amateur tourney, will clash with Union Switch and Signal at Swissvale.

At Lawrenceville, the Pittsburgh Rovers clash with Moon Run, and this junior outfit, after making a great showing in the Panhandle League, is likely to give the Leslie Park outfit plenty to worry over.

Hunter Improves; Not Out of Game

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., March 31.—(AP)—Francis T. Hunter will play tennis again despite the fracture of his right leg, shock and other injuries he suffered Monday night when his automobile got out of control, his physician said.

Examination of the tennis player revealed that he had also suffered a "green stick" fracture of one rib. He was reported "greatly improved," however.

SCHOOL SWIM TOMORROW

When the best high school swimmers and divers of the tri-state district gather at the Trees Gymnasium pool tomorrow night to begin the qualifying round of the University of Pittsburgh's eighteenth annual interscholastic swimming meet, the heaviest attack as yet unleashed upon the meet records is expected to get under way.

All the city high schools, with Carrick, Schenley and South High in the van, are sending in large lists of capable entries. Carrick took second place last year, but will find the going a lot rockier this season.

Erie is sending three teams, two of which are rated as having the best chances of winning. Academy High probably is the best, as it holds a victory over Strong Vincent, last year's winner.

Duquesne High, by virtue of its victory in the Tech relays, will be a strong contender. Another outsider with known strength is McKinley, of Canton, the same school that sent Jack Hanna, crack ace of the championship Panthers to Pitt.

Legion Bowlers Hold Tourney Saturday

The annual duckpin bowling tournament of five-men teams for posts of the American Legion located in Allegheny County will get under way at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, at the Penn Recreation alleys.

Bowling will continue throughout the afternoon and evening until the championship is decided.

TITLE HOCKEY SERIES PLAY IS RESUMED

LONDON SEXTET STILL RANKS FAVORITE

By CARL W. SHATTO

The second act of the annual hockey drama known as the International League championship series will be staged tonight for the entertainment of fans in London and Windsor. The Tecumsehs will be hosts to Detroit and the Bulldogs, defending champions, will attempt to repulse an attack by the Buffalo Bisons.

The opening games of the series Tuesday, when Windsor won at Detroit in an extra period 1-0 and London battled Buffalo to a 3-3 tie on the Bisons' home ice, ran true to form.

LONDON FAVORED

London, favored to win the crown, took a long stride in that direction by pulling out a deadlock at Buffalo where points were figured to be very scarce. London should defeat Buffalo at London and unless Windsor surprises all and sundry the Tecumsehs should come up with the championship.

The difficulty which Windsor experienced in defeating Detroit strengthened the general belief that the Bulldogs would surrender the title.

FIELD REDUCED

The title warfare in the National League has been greatly reduced as a result of the elimination of Montreal Les Canadiens, Chicago and Detroit.

Toronto will meet the Maroons in Montreal tonight in the first of a two-game series to determine which team shall oppose the New York Rangers for the Stanley Cup emblematic of the world championship.

Knute Kenneth Rockne: 1888–1931

By JESS CARVER

One year ago today an unfathomable Power struck from the rolls the name of Knute Kenneth Rockne, the outstanding figure in intercollegiate football, and one of the most dominating personalities in the world of sport.

An airship hurtling at dizzy speed, loaded with passengers, one of whom was the great coach, crashed to earth and removed at the very height of his power as truly regal and great an emperor as ever existed. From a broken and twisted body, however, soared a magnificent spirit, a spirit which is to live forever, its characteristics emblazoned in golden letters on the parchment of American sport.

DEATH TREMENDOUS BLOW

The death of Rockne came as a tremendous blow. It was a blow to collegiate football which the game has been, and will continue to be slow in shaking off. The passing of Rockne meant the departure of no small part of the color and pageantry of the sport. The force of the blow was not centered on one spot. It was felt throughout varied spheres. It dazed the University of Notre Dame and tore at a thousand heart strings.

The story of Rockne's rise to fame is well known, the most intimate details having become universally assimilated through the medium of the hundreds of thousands of words penned about the man after his tragic death. He was born in Voss, Norway, in 1888 on March 4. When Rockne was 5 the family emigrated to the United States and located in Chicago. In the public schools of the Mid-Western city Rockne discarded his Norwegian accoutrements and took on the habits and dress and adopted the tongue of his new country.

HARD RISE TO FAME

He played football and baseball and competed in track and field sports in high school. Upon graduation lacked the funds to enter college. He went to work for three years and in 1910 on a borrowed capital of some $40 matriculated at Notre Dame.

Rockne distinguished himself as an undergraduate in football, track and scholarship to the extent that he collected a magna cum laude with his diploma and all-Western mention as an end. He also established a Central Association A. A. U. pole vault record of 12 feet 4 inches that still stands. He captained the Notre Dame varsity eleven in 1913.

Rock became head coach of football at his alma mater in 1918 when Jess Harper stepped out of the position. Rockne had been serving as assistant grid mentor and assistant track coach and an instructor in the chemistry department. He was as thorough in the classroom as he was on the football field. His thoroughness is attested by the fact that he once flunked all but four members of a class of a score or more.

MEMORY LIVES ON

The success of Rockne's football teams from 1918 on is legendary. He employed no unorthodox tactics in perfecting his great gridiron machines, but it was the perfection of detail and precision timing and speed that enabled the eleven of the famed Four Horsemen and other equally powerful squads to sweep to their amazing and glorious triumphs.

Today, on the anniversary of his death, we pause to mourn again, to reopen the deep wound of a year ago. In the dreams of those who knew and loved him, who lived close to his embracing personality, he sails upon eternal sunlit seas among Aegean Isles where he above all others led the game of football. He is to be perceived on a shadowy strand in the enchanted harbor with the departed great of all manner of warriors ready to join the argosies seeking the Golden Fleece—to the memory of all forever a glowing figure, the greatest the game has known.

TYPICAL ROCKNE STORY

Many are the stories that have been told of Rockne, some true, others with a fictitious taint. Follows one of the best.

Shortly after completing his varsity career at Notre Dame, Rockne was signed to play professional ball for a Chicago eleven. In his first game Knute, who had won all-Western and all-America mention as an end, was pitted against a team the star of which was the great Indian halfback, Jim Thorpe.

Being still infected with the germ of collegiate fire and dash, Rockne crashed through on the first play and nailed Thorpe for a five-yard loss. On the next play he repeated the action, much to the discomfiture of the famous Redskin.

Passing Rockne as the teams were lining up, Thorpe growled:

"Hey, Rock! These folks are paying their dough to see me run. Don't be so tough in there."

OUTWITTED BY THORPE

The remark aroused Rockne's ire and he set himself for Big Jim on the next formation. It was an end run around Rockne's wing, and Rock, crashing through the flimsy interference, hit Thorpe with every ounce of his power. Thorpe was ready, however, and swinging his hip, sidestepped, and Rockne glanced off, shaken as though he'd struck the side of a house. Thorpe raced 70 yards for a touchdown.

As the teams prepared for the kick for the extra point, Thorpe patted Rock on the shoulder and said:

"Thanks, Rock, ol' kid. I knew you'd be a pal."

NOTRE DAME PAYS TRIBUTE

NOTRE DAME, Ind., March 31.—(INS)—Notre Dame University today paid tribute to the memory of Knute Rockne, who was killed a year ago when the airplane in which he was a passenger crashed in Kansas.

Services in Sacred Heart Church, on the campus, were held in memory of the great football coach. They were attended by the entire football squad and by officials and students of the university.

Coach Heartley Anderson, Rockne's successor, inaugurated spring football practice this afternoon.

SCHENLEY OPENER SET

April 15 has been chosen as the opening day at the Schenley Park municipal golf course. The course is reported in fine shape by the officials in charge.

FLOOR COACHES FIGHT STALLING

CHICAGO, March 31.—(AP)—Armed with mild to radical rule change proposals, designed to eliminate stalling and speed up the game, scores of the nation's master minds of amateur basketball gathered in Chicago last night for their annual meeting and rule clinic.

Almost to a man, the coaches, representing universities, colleges and high schools, were agreed that stalling must be stopped.

The most popular proposal would make life just a little more dangerous for the referee by allowing him to call for a "held" ball whenever he decided one team was not trying to score. One proposal would have him call a "held" ball whenever a player held the ball for five seconds in the back court, even though he might be closely guarded; another would jump the time limit from five to 30 seconds.

Dr. James Naismith, the man credited with originating the hardwood game, was strongly in favor of placing such authority in the hands of the referee with a 30-second limit.

The meeting will run today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Effort Made to Have Olympics Tax Free

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS)—An effort to have the Olympic games excepted from the new emergency amusement tax will be made when the tax bill reaches the Senate, Senator Shortridge (Rep.), of California, announced today.

Shortridge expressed keen disappointment that the House refused to exempt the games which will be held in Los Angeles this summer.

"I shall certainly endeavor to have the Olympic games exempted," said Shortridge. "For every reason in the world they should be."

Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, will support the drive, although Shortridge—as a member of the Senate Finance Committee—will take charge of the move.

Seasoned-in-cedar . . . protected by Cellophane flavor-guard

IS A BETTER SMOKE THAN EVER

THIS evening . . . make yourself comfortable—and light up a Marsh. Take your time to it. Smoke it slowly. Prepare to enjoy it from start to finish. Then you'll thoroughly appreciate the real goodness of this Seasoned-in-Cedar stogie.

It's not like any other stogie you ever smoked. It's milder—smoother—more like an expensive cigar.

In making Marsh Stogies the same precautions are taken as though it were one of the world's most costly cigars. The tobacco is aged for three years before it's "ripe" enough for a Marsh. The methods of manufacture are the most modern in America. That's why there's not a sign of harshness—that's why a Marsh is not only mellow but smooth—even-burning and always uniform.

And to top it all, every Marsh is now Seasoned-in-Cedar, before it is wrapped in its new Cellophane flavor-guard, thus insuring full protection to the fine old Marsh flavor—and enabling you to carry as many as you like in your pocket without danger of breaking or drying out.

Now for a real smoke

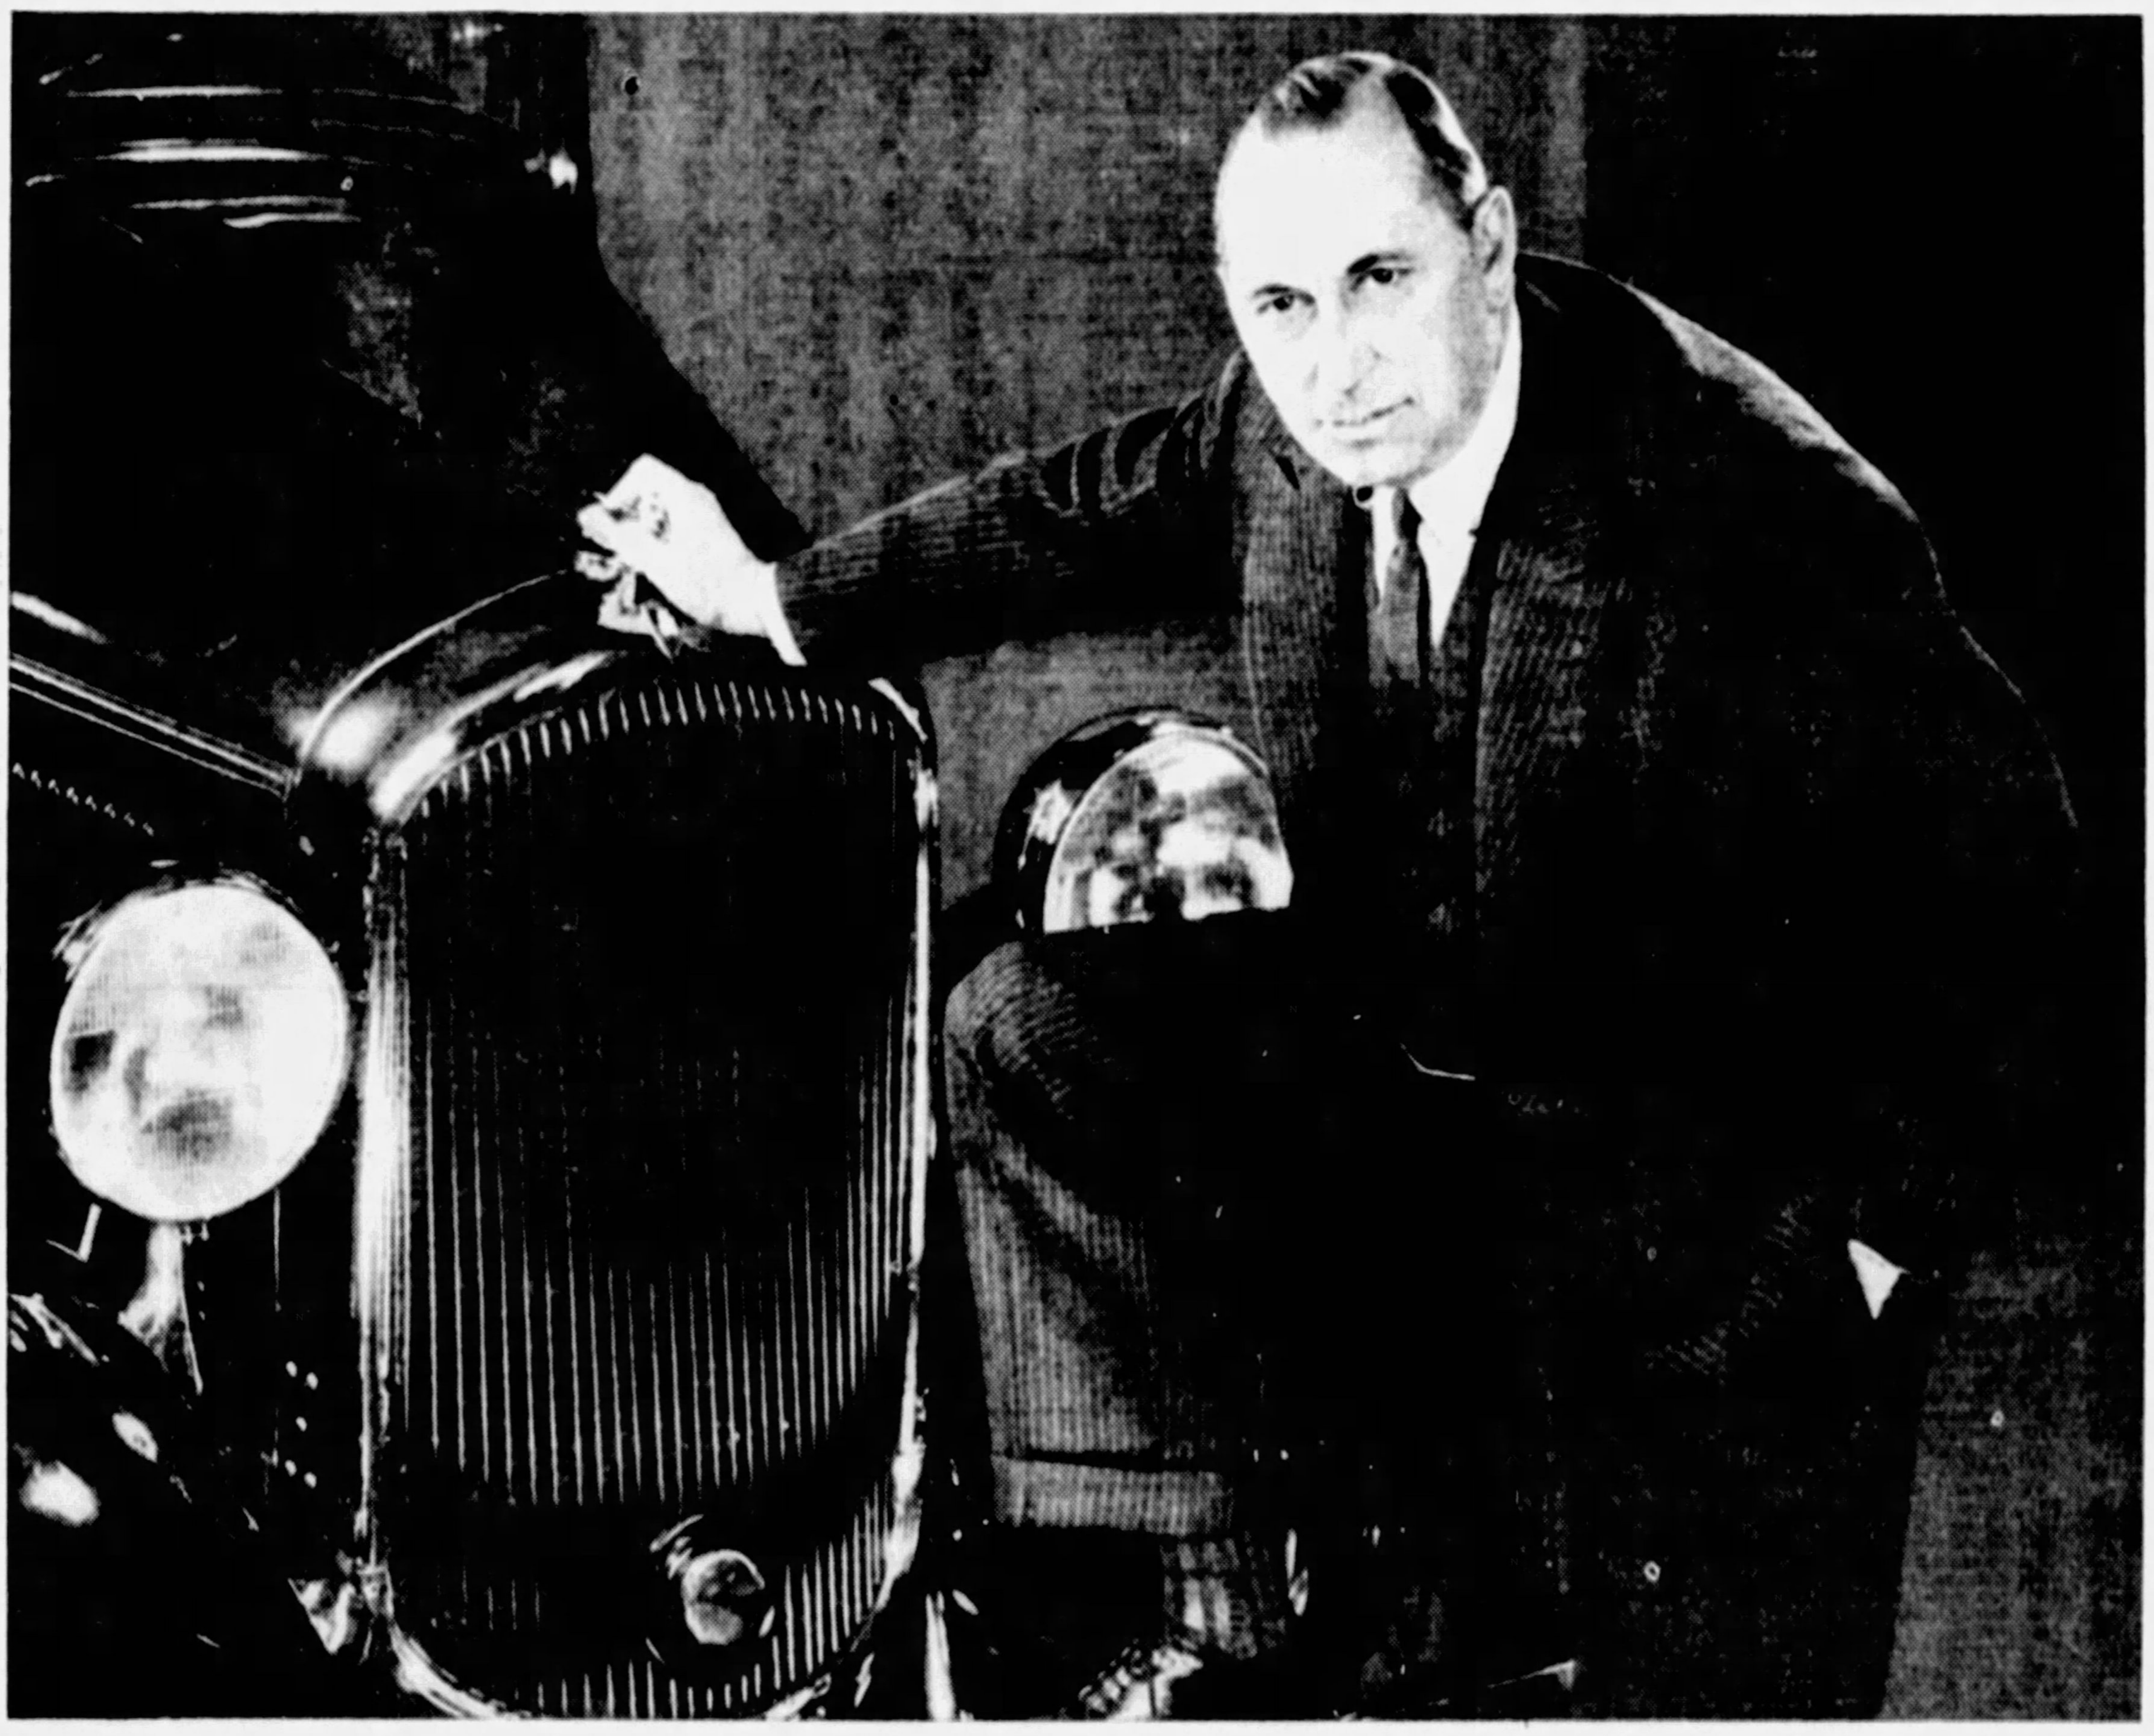
"Look at All THREE!

BUT DON'T BUY ANY LOW-PRICED CAR UNTIL YOU'VE DRIVEN THE NEW PLYMOUTH WITH FLOATING POWER"



"It is my opinion that any new car without Patented Floating Power is obsolete."

A STATEMENT BY WALTER P. CHRYSLER

THOUSANDS of people have been waiting expectantly until today before buying a new car. I hope that you are one of them.

Now that the new low-priced cars are here (including the new Plymouth which will be shown on Saturday) I urge you to carefully compare values.

This is the time for you to "shop" and buy wisely. Don't make a deposit on any automobile until you've actually had a demonstration.

It is my opinion that the automobile industry as a whole has never offered such values to the public.

In the new Plymouth we have achieved more than I had ever dared to hope for. If you had told me two years ago that such a big, powerful, beautiful automobile could be sold at the astonishing prices we will announce on Saturday . . . I'd have said it was absolutely impossible.

I have spent my life building fine cars. But no achievement in my career has given me the deep-down satisfaction that I derive from the value you get in this 1932 Plymouth. To me, its outstanding feature is Floating Power. We already know how the public feels about this. Last summer it was news, but today it is an established engineering achievement.

It is my opinion, and I think that of leading engineering authorities, that any new car without Floating Power is obsolete. Drive a Plymouth with Patented Floating Power, and note its utter lack of vibration . . . then drive a car with old-fashioned engine mountings and you will understand what I mean. There's absolutely no comparison.

We have made the Plymouth a much larger automobile. It is a BIG car. We have increased its power, lengthened the wheelbase and greatly improved its beauty.

In my opinion you will find the new Plymouth the easiest riding car you have ever driven. Yet with all these improvements we have been able to lower prices.

Again let me urge you, go and see the new Plymouth with Floating Power on Saturday. Be sure to look at all THREE low-priced cars and don't buy any until you do. That is the way to get the most for your money.

MARKET TAKES PRONOUNCED TUMBLE

Early Rally Short Lived When Support Vanishes; Dips of 1 to 4 Numerous

NEW YORK, March 31—(AP.)—The stock market went into a pronounced slump today, as the "short squeeze" expected in some quarters in connection with the new rules on loaning stocks failed to develop.

The list rushed up in the first hour, but when the demand apparently from nervous shorts was satisfied the market found itself almost completely without support, and by early afternoon losses of 1 to more than 4 points were numerous. Utilities were particularly weak and selling later engulfed the rails.

Santa Fe tumbled 7 points to the lowest since 1903. American Telephone dropped 4 points and issues off 2 or more included American Can, Union Pacific, New Haven, Missouri Pacific, Standard Gas, American Power and Light, Southern California Edison, Consolidated Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey and others. United States Steel sagged more than a point and similar losses were numerous throughout the industrials.

The approval by the House of Representatives of the proposal to levy federal tax on stock transfers found brokerage quarters in a rather gloomy frame of mind. Several professional traders maintained that their operations would be severely curtailed if the new taxes were imposed and that the market would be left a thin and erratic affair. It was calculated that with the additional federal tax proposed the cost of a round trip in and out of the market would be around ¼ point in stock selling around $50 a share, so that there would be little incentive to scalp for narrow fractional profits.

As a result of the new loaning regulations requiring brokers to have specific permission from customers before loaning stocks held on margin to short sellers, considerable calling of loans of stock was expected. Some substantial increases in costs of borrowing were expected, but in the main most brokers felt that the floating supply of stocks would not be seriously curtailed and would adequately care for the small short interest, although there might be some upsets in small issues.

Lone Star Gas Rallies, But Main List Is Dull; Westinghouse Narrow

Prices were irregular on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, the list here failing to respond to the improvement noted at the start of business on the "big board."

Lone Star Gas, which dropped to a new bear market low of 5½ in yesterday's session, improved slightly today, opening at 5¾ and holding steady around that figure. The other fuels were dull. Koppers Gas preferred sold again at 54, the record low, apparently ignoring the annual report which showed earnings of $12 a share on the issue. At 54 the stock is selling just 4½ times earnings per share for one of the worst years in American economic history.

The Westinghouse issues were quiet and steady. Electric opened with an overnight gain of a point but forfeited the advance. Air Brake was down a small fraction.

WHEAT PRICES TURN DOWN

CHICAGO, March 31.—Grain prices averaged lower early today, influenced by profit-taking sales on the part of yesterday's buyers of wheat. Traders were keeping close watch of developments regarding securities. Opening at ½ to ⅝c decline to ½c advance, wheat sagged all around. Corn started at a shade to ⅜c off, and subsequently receded further.

Rallies from setbacks in wheat prices accompanied renewed unfavorable domestic crop advices from the Southwest and West. Dearth of moisture persisted, with no indications of an immediate breakup of drought.

A bullish factor was word from Beunos Aires that an official estimate placed the Argentine exportable surplus of new crop corn at only 196,786,000 bushels, compared with last year's surplus of 354,214,000.

Paramount-Publix Credit Arranged

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP)—The Paramount-Publix Corporation has arranged with a group of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago banks for a fixed credit amounting to between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000, it was learned today.

The funds were obtained on six months' notes which are renewable for an additional six months at the option of the company.

Proceeds will be used to pay off the company's bank loans, amounting to $9,500,000, and for current working capital, it was said.

Germany Extends Budget to July 1

BERLIN, March 31.—President Hindenburg has issued an emergency decree extending by three months the budget expiring April 1, so that the end of the German financial year will coincide with the expiration of the Hoover moratorium.

The decree orders all expenditures lowered by 20 per cent under 1931 appropriations. Government salaries, however, will continue on the basis of the 1931 budget.

Kelly Tire Capital Adjustment Planned

NEW YORK, March 31.—Stockholders of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company will be asked to approve changes in the capital structure to eliminate a deficit of $9,676,761 and patent and good will items totaling more than $7,000,000. The plan provides for the exchange of new 10-year 6 per cent notes and two shares of new common stock for each share of present 6 per cent preferred stock. Each share of 8 per cent preferred will be exchangeable for one share of new 6 per cent preference stock and three shares of new common. Common stockholders will be offered one new share for each two held.

Litchfield Explains Goodyear Omission

AKRON, O., March 31.—(AP)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company directors have deferred dividend action on the common stock because "present economic conditions do not warrant continued disbursements to common share holders," President Paul W. Litchfield announced today. The announcement said the question of payments on the company's junior shares may be taken up later in the year or as soon as earnings may warrant.

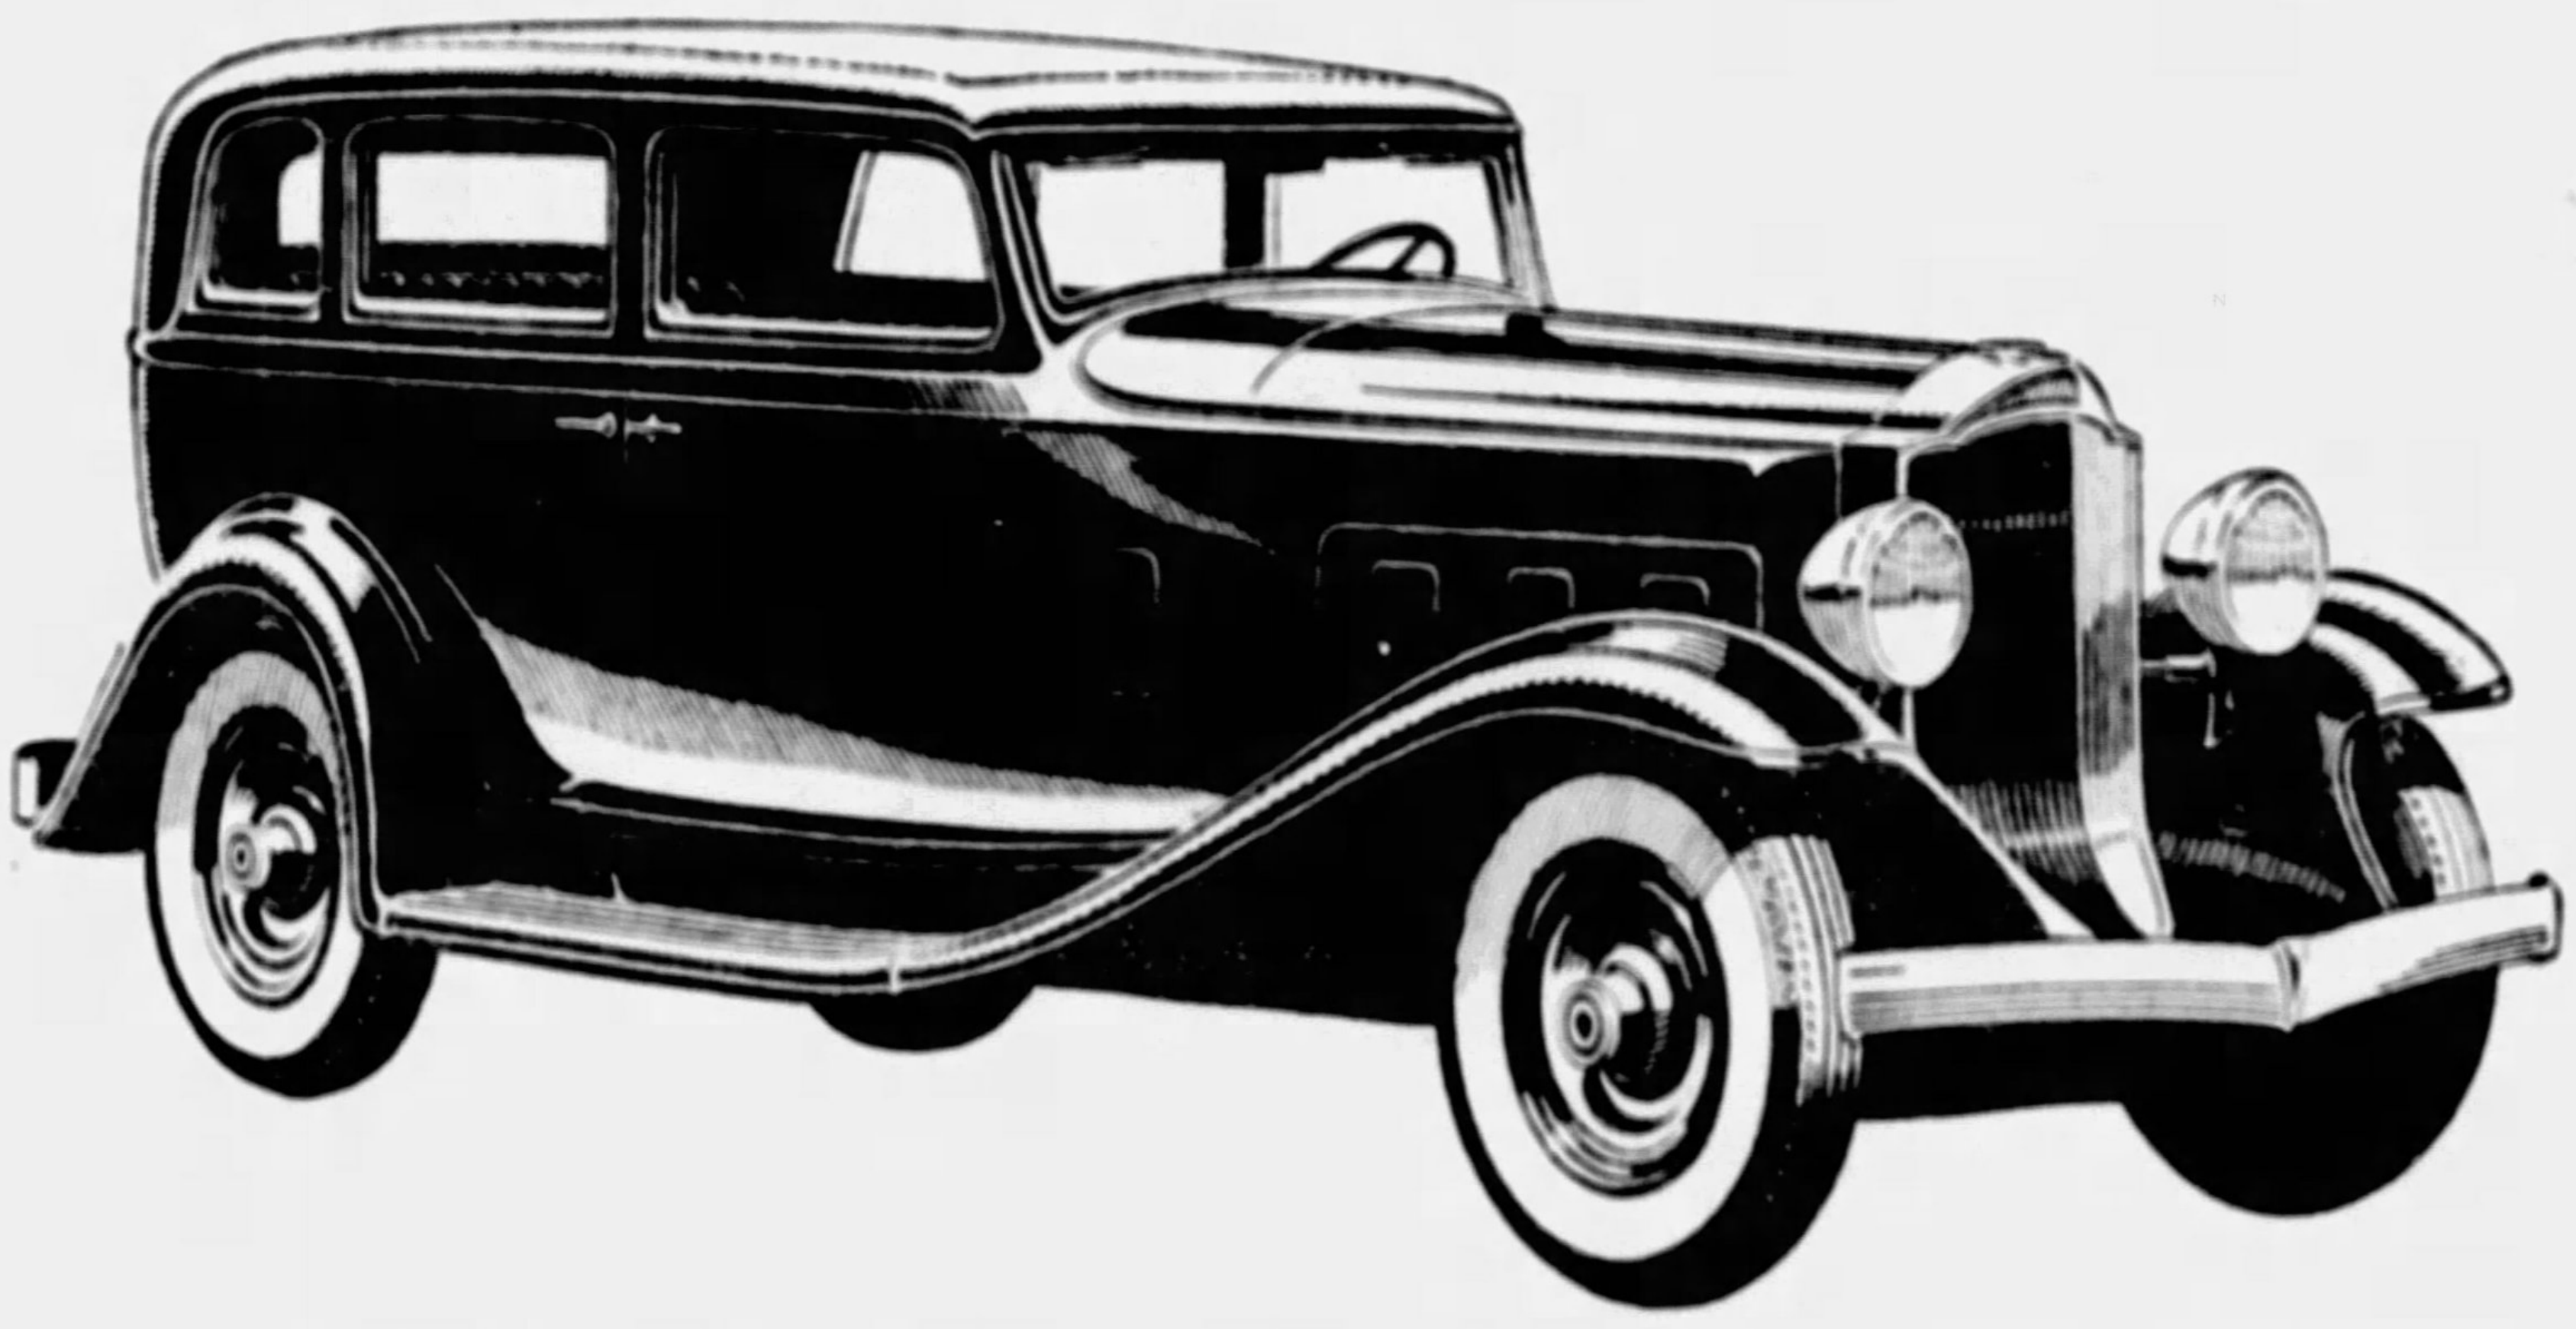
PACKARD!



The new LIGHT EIGHT five-passenger sedan is factory-priced at $1750

HAVE you ever longed for the day when you could become the proud owner of a Packard car? That day is here. You can become the owner of a Packard—the smart, new Packard Light Eight which is available at a price but little greater than you are asked to pay for cars offering far less in appearance, performance and prestige.

The new Packard Light Eight is a strikingly handsome car. In appearance it belongs unmistakably to the distinguished Packard family—it is modern and original in its youthful grace of line and proportion. You will find it a big, roomy and substantial car, too, for it is built on a chassis of 128 inch wheelbase and is "light" only in comparison with the other, larger cars of the Packard line—the Standard Eight, the Eight DeLuxe and the new Twin Six.

Before buying any car this spring be sure to see and drive the Packard Light Eight. You will thrill to the performance of its 110 horsepower, straight-eight engine—its Silent Synchro-mesh Transmission, quiet in all three speeds—its simple, safe Finger Control Free-Wheeling and Ride Control. You will be delighted that such important features as shatter-proof glass in windshield and all windows, bumpers front and rear and six-ply tires are provided as standard equipment at no extra cost.

The factory price of the Five-Passenger Sedan is but $1750—that of other models only $1795. Bring in your old car today. We will tell you to the last dollar what it is worth, and show you how you can buy your Packard Light Eight out of income, if you so desire, with payments that are surprisingly small.

Patriotic Spending

Remember, when you buy any new car you are making your dollars help in the most effective way to end unemployment and stimulate business everywhere!

GIMBEL CASH INCREASED

Gimbel Brothers, Inc., and subsidiary companies report for the year ended January 31, 1932, net loss of $1,791,351 after expenses, depreciation, interest and special adjustments. This compared with net profit of $379,844 or $2.20 a share on the preferred stock in the preceding year. Net sales for the year were $97,982,882 compared with $113,222,650 in the previous year.

Bernard F. Gimbel, president of the company, in connection with the annual statement issued today, declared the corporation to be in a strong financial position with considerably lower inventories and a much improved cash position as compared with the previous year.

The balance sheet shows no bank indebtedness. Cash on hand of $6,420,735 compared with $5,673,661 a year ago, and for the first time in history of company exceeded all current liabilities.

Although the number of transactions was the largest in the company's history, the total volume of sales showed a decrease as compared with last year largely due to the general decline in price levels.

The company continued through the year to initiate and extend many economies which resulted in a further saving of over $4,000,000 in operations and over $7,000,000 as compared with two years ago.

Cotton Acreage Cut of 10% Seen

NEW YORK, March 31.—E. J. Schwabach & Co. forecast the cotton acreage based on reports of intentions of farmers as of March 25 at 36,762,000 acres. This would be a reduction of 10 per cent from the 40,954,000 acres in cultivation on July 1, 1931.

The Fairchild Service reports farmers' intention to plant cotton at 37,541,000 acres, a reduction of 8 per cent from last year's planted area.

South Penn Oil Shows Better Results for Second Half of Year

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SOUTH PENN OIL Company showed improved operating results in the second half of 1931 as compared with the first half in spite of continued unsatisfactory conditions in Pennsylvania oil fields and in the petroleum industry in general.

The annual report makes an unfavorable comparison with 1930, but a study of the statement for the first six months of the year along with that for the full 12 months shows that definite progress was made.

South Penn reported a net loss of $820,191 for 1931 after deducting all charges, including depreciation, depletion, taxes and charge offs for market fluctuations on the inventory of oil. This compared with net profits of $1,378,073 or $1.15 a share in 1930 and $5,139,296 or $4.28 a share in 1929.

Before deducting the loss from market fluctuations of $1,118,200 for 1931 and certain non-recurring losses, the company showed a net profit of $330,428 for the year. Practically all the inventory loss occurred in the first half of the year and most of the operating profit was shown in the second half.

Loss Reported for First Half of Year

FOR THE FIRST half of 1931 the company reported a net loss of $1,133,588 after deducting inventory adjustments of $1,124,531. Before providing for market fluctuations in inventories the organization showed a profit of $9,057 for the first six months of the year.

Not only has South Penn been free from costly declines in oil prices during the second half, but it actually has been able to show a sizeable operating profit. This was largely due to economies.

South Penn purchases all the oil run from various pipe lines serving the Pennsylvania fields. It resells this oil to refiners. As a result of this phase of the business, about half of the inventory usually represents oil in transit and the price at which this oil is carried is marked up or down to conform to changing market conditions. South Penn also is one of the principal producers of Pennsylvania crude oil and through an interest in the Pennzoil Company, is a leading refiner and marketer of the products of Pennsylvania crude. For years this oil has been noted as a base for lubricants of exceptionally high quality and for this reason usually commands a higher price for the crude oils from other fields.

Subsidiary Companies Consolidated in 1931

IN COMMENTING ON the developments of the year, L. W. Young, president, said:

"During the past year the South Penn Oil Company took over the assets of the Hazelwood Oil Company and the New Domain Oil and Gas Company (wholly owned subsidiaries) deducting from the item "Stock in Other Companies" $1,355,304.05, the price at which the stocks of these companies were carried on our books, and increasing the item "Property Accounts—Producing and Non-Producing" by the present value of the assets of these companies."

Kreuger Moratorium Extended 1 Month

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 31.—(AP)—The government today granted an application by officials of the Kreuger & Toll companies for a one-month extension of the moratorium granted immediately after the death of Ivar Kreuger.

Auditors examining the company's affairs said the extension was desirable if their investigation were to continue unhampered.

COTTON SELLS AT DECLINE

NEW YORK, March 31.—Cotton opened steady today, unchanged to 2 points off on realizing and scattered selling in response to easy cables. May sold at 6.30.

Orders were pretty evenly divided at the start with very little southern selling in evidence. There seemed to be some buying through houses with Liverpool and continental connections. The demand was supplied at about yesterday's closing quotations, however, and offerings increased slightly with May easing off to 6.28 and October to 6.69 or about 3 to 4 points net lower by the end of the first half hour.

The market worked gradually lower later in the morning. Offerings were not heavy, but there was only a moderate demand the trade and prices yielded under a little local and commission house selling encouraged by reactions in the stock market. May sold off to 6.22 and October to 6.61 or about 8 to 11 points net lower, and the market at midday was quiet within 3 or 4 points of these figures.

Ask Receiver for Insull Investment

GENERAL WELFARE . . . .
. . . GENERAL MOTORS

WHEN history of the present situation is written, the vision and courage of the automobile industry will be recorded as an outstanding contribution to the public welfare.

It sees clearly that anything approaching normal production of automobiles and trucks will create an immediate demand for men and material, not only in its own business but also in a wide circle of the industries.

The willingness of the industry to forego its legitimate profit, by offering to the public unheard of values in the hope of creating an impetus for American business in general, is nothing short of magnificent leadership.

The national spot light will be focused between April 2nd and 9th upon this new conception of public service when the General Motors Corporation opens its National Exhibits in fifty-five American cities, apparently in its own behalf but actually as a contribution to the cause of American labor and general business.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 31.—Spasmodic flurries of profit taking brought some irregularity in the bond market today, but the continued strength of the United States government list made for a firm undertone throughout the majority of high grade issues.

For the third consecutive day the federals pushed forward. Foreign loans generally improved in somewhat dull trading.

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

FRENCH IMPORT QUOTAS CUT

PARIS, March 31.—(AP.)—The French government renewed today for another three months its quota system of limiting imports, which has been criticized by American businessmen on the contention that it seriously affects their interests.

The quota on radios and equipment from the United States was reduced one ton per month from the previous schedule. The amount of patent leathers which may be imported from the United States in the next three months was cut 4,000 kilograms (about 8,800 pounds). The new quotas run until June 30.

The American Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution yesterday asking Ambassador Walter E. Edge to appeal to President Hoover for "action deemed proper to obtain relief for American trade," some of the members declaring that the French quota system was ruining business.

Street Ponders Source of Selling in U. S. Steel Preferred

Persistent liquidation in steel preferred is among the things which are perplexing to Wall street. This selling has been relentless through the last two weeks or more, and while the source of the offerings remains a mystery, the speculative fraternity is disposed to place much significance in the liquidation since March 12. It is interesting to note, steel preferred taken at yesterday's low of 88¼ showed a net depreciation of around 17¼ points, while the common stock in the same interval yielded but about 6 points. Hope for continuance of steel common dividends is fading rapidly with the approach of next month's meeting.

Statisticians in the financial district who delight in throwing figures around are busily engaged most of the day trying to figure out how backers of the proposed taxes on security trading, etc., calculated these imposts would bring a total of $70,000,000 revenue. In the first place, it was argued that the effect of added cost in reducing yields on high grade bonds would tend to kill interest in that direction. And it was calculated after much figuring that a year would have to produce a daily trading average of better than 3,000,000 shares on the stock exchange to come within striking distance of realizing the indicated return, a condition which is not now in immediate prospect.

If wheat, corn and cotton prices stay where they are until fall, International Harvester Company's offer to accept payment from this year's purchasers of crop-producing or harvesting machinery on the basis of 70-cent Chicago wheat, 50-cent Chicago corn and 8½-cent New Orleans cotton, means that the biggest factor in the farm equipment industry has cut prices by approximately 10 per cent. Deere & Co. already has announced it is following the Harvester plan in all details.

It is said that leading stock exchange member firms were obtaining "satisfactory" responses from customers to requests for consent to lend the customers' securities. The new regulations of the stock exchange, prohibiting the lending of securities without the customer's consent, will become effective tomorrow.

Congressional wrangling over the tax program and the unpromising action of the stock market have combined to throw Wall street into a somewhat lower state of spirits, but there are not a few brokers who believe, wishfully more than logically perhaps, that before the market is compelled to stand much more of a test, some "good news" will develop to stimulate recovery.

The gain in freight car loadings for the week ended March 19 to the largest total for the year and the substantial improvement in February earnings of the carriers are the best bits of news on the rail situation for some time. The fact that nearly all classes of freight contributed to the rise in loadings suggests a mild seasonal improvement in business in certain sections.

Morgans Not Heavy Owners of U. S. Steel

By B. C. FORBES

J. P. MORGAN'S withdrawal from high official position in the U. S. Steel Corporation is more logical than was his acceptance of the position.

Mr. Morgan has devoted relatively little time to the affairs of the corporation. He has never been regarded as in any sense one of its executive officers. The real burden bearer has been Myron C. Taylor.

Mr. Forbes

Mr. Morgan—"Jack" to his friends—is extremely sentimental. He accepted the chairmanship of the steel board solely out of sentiment. His father's closest crony, George F. Baker, largest steel stockholder, pressed the second generation Morgan into service. Then, too, the Steel trust was the most monumental of the original J. P.'s industrial creations.

I understand that Mr. Morgan has no considerable part of his fortune invested in steel shares. Nor, I understand, have any members of his family. Yet Wall street always figures that the Steel Corporation is under Morgan domination. While Morgan stock ownership, in relation to the total capital, is negligible, it is true that the other directors pay heed to the counsel of Mr. Morgan and his foremost partner, Thomas W. Lamont.

From now on Mr. Taylor will exercise as untrammeled power as did Judge Gary. He has completely won the confidence of the leading figures in the financial world.

BEER RUMORS in Wall street are not bear rumors. One recent expression which Wall street disliked was:

"The nation can't drink itself into prosperity."

How badly new sources of governmental revenue are needed is reflected by the drop in income tax collections during March from $330,000,000 last year to $190,000,000 this year. Receipts for the fiscal year have tumbled from $1,500,000,000 to below $850,000,000.

NEVER WAS a proposed law more widely condemned than the revamped Glass bank bill. In its original form it was so objectionable that it was instantly withdrawn. The Glass-Steagall constructive measure appeared and was promptly passed, doing more than anything else, with the possible exception of the organization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to improve sentiment.

Bankers declare the latest version of the Glass bill has been toned down little. Witness after witness has come forward and shot the measure full of holes. It has been condemned by southern bankers, western bankers, eastern bankers, by large-city, town and country bankers, by the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Meanwhile, its champions have failed to challenge effectively the objections presented. The mystery grows as to the extent of the influence behind the drastic deflationary bill.

The conclusion is rapidly being reached that the whole thing will be shelved. Were it to become law as is, wow!

ONE READER perpetrates:

"Garner will get 'em to garner taxes."

Instead of a sales tax spread thick, it now looks like a series of special sales taxes spread so thick as to cripple victims.

Balancing a budget by unbalancing business isn't farsighted statesmanship.

PRESIDENT H. D. IVEY, of the Citizens National Trust and Savings Bank, Los Angeles, tells the writer:

"The outlook here is a bit more cheerful than it has been for a long time."

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

House Locked Up for First Time After Burial of Lily Lou's Mother

CHAPTER XLIX.

The Lansings, as a family, were forever afterward to date all events as before or after mother died.

For years certain scenes were to be written on Lily Lou's heart, to flash on and off in her memory, like isolated stills from a moving picture.

She had never realized that her mother was beautiful. She had just been mother, a little tired, a little shabby, altogether beloved.

Synopsis

Lily Lou Lansing has ambitions to become an opera singer. She meets Kentfield Sargent, son of a wealthy shipper. Ken is also interested in Peggy Sage, prominent society girl. Ken admits his love for Lily Lou and they go away and are married. When Lily Lou first sees Ken's mother she is told that Ken was not old enough to get married. Anxious days follow. Then Lily Lou is told by Ken's father that the marriage has been annulled. He gives her $500 and a ticket to New York. In New York she has a hard time getting a job and her money runs low. From a home town paper she reads that Ken has become engaged to Peggy. She learns that she is to become a mother. She gets a job as accompanist with Dwight Gwin, voice teacher. Nita Nahlman, famous opera singer, hears Lily Lou sing and offers to take her to Europe to study. In Vienna Lily Lou becomes the mother of a baby boy. When Lily Lou recuperates they return to Paris, where, through an injury to one of the singers, Lily Lou gets her first chance to sing in opera. She sings well and wins much praise. Lily Lou and her baby are sent back to New York by Nahlman. Maxine asks that they live with her. Lily Lou's mother dies. After borrowing train fare, Lily Lou gets home in time to attend the funeral.

Now Go On

Now she was to remember her, wrapped in the majesty of her isolation. Her hands serene on her breast, her dark, silver-streaked hair brushed back from her beautiful white forehead in an unfamiliar manner. Her lovely mouth, too often tightened into a worried line in life, younger and infinitely more gentle now. All the tired wrinkles gone. All the absorbed interest in her children gone. The soul, the motherly soul of her, fled away. Just the clay of her body, the body that for years nobody had noticed was beautiful, left.

Certain other things impressed themselves almost as poignantly in Lily Lou's memory.

MOTHER BURIED

The round eyes of Bess' three children sitting in a row on the table that somebody had pushed in at the last moment, their fat legs straight out before them.

The drone of the minister's voice. The heavy fragrance of florists' flowers, just a little past their prime.

The little procession of cars, one limousine, half a dozen flivvers, winding down the unpaving road, past willow trees and the dry creek-bed to the Protestant cemetery.

Two workers who waited, blue-shirted, shovels at their feet, in the shade of a magnolia tree near the Lansing's family plot, for the last words to be over so they could pile back the earth.

And when it was decently over, and they were driving back to the house, the women's voices becoming more natural again, not so whispery and solemn.

The children becoming less good.

The soft fleshy smack of Bess' hand cuffing Regina, who was asking if there would be ice cream and lemonade, both, "at the party."

And then everyone coming in to the house for "coffee." Bess hospitably urging everyone, even Rufe Fletcher's wife whom she hated.

The heat of the kitchen. The sweaty, shiny face of the Schultz girl, so-called because she had never married, though she was nearly as old as mother had been, bending over the five-gallon coffee pot Bess had borrowed from the Ladies' Aid.

DAD TAKES TO DRINKING

Bess bringing in the baked ham from the cooler, whispering to the Schultz girl to see that everybody had potato salad and a hot biscuit.

The minister's wife crooking her little finger elegantly, as she lifted her coffee cup, balancing her loaded plate on one bony knee.

And the knowledge that she ought to be worrying, as May and Bess and Earl and John and even Raymond were worrying, because after all these years father had "fallen off the wagon again" and had been drinking corn whisky.

Not that it mattered to her, what the minister's wife said, and the Ladies' Aid discussed at the next meeting.

"Dad makes me sick!" Bess whispered fiercely. "Just as if we didn't have enough to worry about without him adding to it. How mother would have hated it!"

BLACK SHEEP

But after a while she went and slipped her hand inside dad's horny one, the way she used to when she was a little girl. He was a little stiff and pompous, because he was trying so hard to pretend that he had not been drinking. Ashamed of himself, already.

A little tremor of sympathy shook Lily Lou's hand. She felt that in this they were together . . . the sinners, the black sheep. She was concealing her secret, just as dad was concealing, or trying to conceal, his, and oh, how mother would have hated it!

He hastily looked around, stretching his red, deeply wrinkled neck inside the unaccustomed white collar. When he saw that no one was looking their way he patted her dark head awkwardly, mussing her hair.

"The others," he said, "were like her. I always said you were more my side of the family, Dolly."

She said nothing, reflecting, because he had called her "Dolly." It was years since he had. He had called her that often when she was little, and she could still remember her mother's displeasure—because of Aunt Dolly, of course.

"Your mother was a good woman. She hadn't ought to have married me," he said. "It would have been better if she'd took Sam Hervey, like she set out to do."

NO QUESTIONS

Sam Hervey! The town's boss—if a town the size of Woodlake can be said to have a boss—Sam Hervey, making the graduation speeches at the school, being toastmaster at church suppers . . . and mother . . . long ago, when she was young, thinking of marrying him.

Lily Lou squeezed dad's hand tighter.

And somehow that memory of dad, calling her Dolly, stayed with her, to comfort her, long after the other memories were faded and sweetened with time.

Her dad was the only one who asked no questions.

It had been dad that she had been most afraid of . . . His talk about a shotgun, how he'd just as lief take a shot at this one or that one who had done some dastardly thing . . . For months she had dreamed of dad finding out how the Sargents had treated her, and going out to shoot somebody.

And now he was the only one who asked no questions. Just held her hand, said: "I always thought you were more my side of the family, Dolly—"

They—Raymond, May and she—stayed at Bess' that night. Dad guessed he'd go on up to Uncle Eph's cabin for a spell. Some things he had to take care of. After that he might take up a fellow's proposition and go away.

"What proposition—what fellow?" May asked sharply.

"Oh, just a proposition a fellow made me."

"Umph!" said May.

So dad limped out to the back yard, where Uncle Eph's mare was tied to the picket fence. Lily Lou wanted to run after him . . . .

Mother gone. Uncle Eph even old Shep dead, and now dad on his way up to Lone Mountain.

The wives of John and Ernest kissed everybody, thanked Bess for the lovely supper.

"Well, let's get along," Bess' husband said. "I got four cows to milk, besides the regular chores."

They were all a little reluctant to leave the old house. It seemed so funny to lock it up. It had never been locked while mother lived.

"I hope the cat stays with Mrs. Burpee all right, and don't come running back here," Bess worried. "I'll have to get somebody to keep the garden watered till the rains start. You can't depend on dad any more."

"May the Lord bless you and keep you," said the minister, and then, forsaking the pulpit manner: "Come on, mama, these folks want to leave!"

"Now if there's anything I can do for any of you, just call on me!" said the minister's wife, with a last, lingering look at Lily Lou.

"Well, get in, girls," Raymond said.

Lillian was sitting in the hall outside the library as I came down the stairs.

"Second floor made safe for democracy?" she asked with a lightness that I felt was purposely forced.

"Yes, not one of them will come downstairs this afternoon, at least. Is there any news?" I gestured toward the library door.

"Katherine took some instruments to the kitchen to be sterilized a few minutes ago, indeed, just after you left," she answered. "I went with her to guard against Katie's making an altitude flight through the roof. She—I mean Katie, not Katherine," she grinned, and again I had the sensation of a forced lightness of mood—"was almost hysterical with excitement at first, but she's calmed down, and when I left the kitchen just now she was watching the sterilizing pan with the fascination she'd bestow upon a brand new kind of pie or pudding."

"They've decided to operate, then?" I asked.

"If you can call it that, and if he doesn't die before they get him on the table," she answered. "I imagine they are. Nobody has said so in so many words—the only thing I have to go on is the fact that they're sterilizing the surgeon's instruments."

"They probably would do that on the possibility that they might need them," I commented.

DOCTOR ANNOYED

"That's true," she assented. "It's really no sign that they've finally made the decision to operate."

"But this looks like it," she added as the door of the library opened and Harry Underwood, followed by the surgeon, came into the hall. The surgeon's shirt-sleeves were rolled to the elbow, and he had the air of a man nerved to some particular task which he dislikes and over which he is nervous.

"You can wash up right in here," Harry Underwood said, leading the way to a little lavatory at the end of the hall. He did not look at either of us as he passed, but I noticed that he stood in the open doorway of the lavatory while the surgeon was giving his hands the thorough washing preliminary to the care Katherine would have to take of them before they went into action, and that their conversation was distinctly audible to us. I guess that this was a ruse of the big man to give us the news we craved and to which we were entitled, without disturbing the delicate balance of the surgeon's nerves, patiently at high tension.

"I don't like it." These were the first words we heard. They were spoken by the surgeon, and his voice was pettish, annoyed.

"It's distinctly irregular," he went on. "He should have been taken to the hospital in the first place. Operating on a kitchen table, forsooth!"

"Haven't you ever done it, Doctor?"

"Of course I've done it," he snapped. "I've operated by candle-light when the electric failed and I've had many an emergency appendectomy on a kitchen table. I've had one on shipboard. But those were necessities. Where it's a possible thing to get to a hospital, as in this case, I don't like it."

LITTLE HOPE FOR MAN

"I thought we'd gone over that." The big man's voice was patient. "You told us yourself the man would probably die in the ambulance before getting to the hospital."

"He'll probably die on the operating table before we begin work."

There was stubborness in the surgeon's voice.

"I know," Mr. Underwood's voice was placating, "but I thought you understood how vital it is that he be able to tell us what is behind this injury, even if it he dies immediately afterwards."

"You ought to know that the chances are 50 to 1 against his ever regaining consciousness."

"I know you're right," Mr. Underwood said, "but I've known them to come back at a 1,000 to 1 shot, over there"—he gestured toward the east.

"Oh!" the surgeon's voice held a note of comradeship, "you were in this branch across?"

"Ambulance service," Mr. Underwood replied briefly. "Where do you want that table? The man's been scrubbing it for the last 10 minutes."

"In the room we just left," the surgeon said. "If we've got to do this job here, we'd better get at it."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

"'Fritz,' tell the children how old you are." "Woof! Woof! Woof," was the answer from Fritz, the wonder dog who entertained the boys and girls, members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, last Saturday at the Etna-Harris Theater. Meaning that he's three years old and would like a dog biscuit.

Not only will Fritz tell you his age but he will also tell you how much 5 and 6 amounts too, or what 5 from 6 leaves and how much 3 times 4 will make.

Fritz was the star attraction at the Etna-Harris and did the children fall in love with him? After the meeting was over all the little folks crowded around the dog, and he was the perfect gentleman of dogdom, giving his paw to the little girls and a "woof" to the boys. Many of the youngsters spent the rest of the day telling their mothers all about "Fritz" and wondering if daddy wouldn't get them a dog like him.

Besides "Fritz," the children from the Mamy Barth studios entertained with songs and dances. Manager Henderson announced that this Saturday the feature entertainment will be "The Man With a Million Laffs."

PRESENT DANCES

More than 800 boys and girls from the Squirrel Hill district attended the meeting at the Manor Theater. These children were entertained by students from Vera Lievan's School of Dancing with Russell Hoeltze acting as master of ceremonies. The Boy Scouts performed the usual ceremonies in closing the meeting.

Next Saturday the members of the Rowland (Wilkinsburg) Chapter will each receive a photograph of some prominent and favorite movie star.

Boys and girls, how many of you like to go to the circus? How many of you would like to have a complete "circus zoo?" Starting next Sunday the Sun-Telegraph will publish a "scissor circus" elephant. You can cut this out and color it, paste it on light card board and you [illegible] have the start of your "[illegible] zoo." Every Sunday u[illegible] ther notice the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will publish one "scissor circus" animal. Cut them out, save them and in a short time you'll have the complete set of animals. Start this Sunday with the elephant.

Remember, Uncle Bob and Betty, honorary members of the Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club, will read you the Sun-Telegraph comics tonight over Radio Station WCAE at 6 o'clock. Be sure to have your Sun-Telegraph comic section ready.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, date of your birth, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you, or, go to any of the theaters listed in this column from time to time and enroll and you will receive your membership card and button from the manager of the theater.

THE HOUR HAS STRUCK

At the request of thousands of indignant Americans who have stormed our office (and why must they bring a lunch and carelessly throw banana skins all over the place?) we are publishing the above picture. It is a warning to mothers and fathers who permit their children to play a game called "tennis," which breaks down natural barriers, arouses class prejudice and congests the courts, causing endless delays. Statistics show that parents must be doubly alert in springtime. Act now. Send a contribution to the League for Promotion of Legislation that will abolish all forms of sport, along with the automobile, fancy hatbands, perfume, springtime, and the birds and the bees and the flowers.

Bus Competition

The Monopoly Enjoyed by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company Is Again Challenged.

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company makes a poor mouth. It enjoys a monopoly of the bus business within the city limits and charges 25 cents for a ride that would cost only a dime in other places. Yet it asserts its profits are nothing to brag about, and indeed endeavors to create the impression that its business is worth nobody's envy.

To judge from the number of concerns that would like a share of the business, that view of the matter is not generally held. There are companies that would be glad to enter into competition with the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

These things are brought to mind by the application of an independent company for permission to operate busses between the downtown section and Brentwood.

If the Public Service Commission adheres to the policy it has followed for some years the application is doomed to rejection; but hope springs eternal in the human breast.

There is consolation for the city's bus riders in the increasing number of candidates for the Legislature who are pledging themselves to protect the people from unfair utilities.

The Call of the Farm

The Varied Resources of Pennsylvania Agriculture Are Likely to Attract Many Urban Dwellers.

A Department of Agriculture report on buckwheat production in 1931 mentions that Pennsylvania produces on the average more than one-third of all the buckwheat raised in the United States.

The report calls attention to the variety of our agricultural resources. Pennsylvania is not a one-crop state like some of the states in the cotton belt and some in the wheat belt, but produces large quantities of wheat, corn, oats, hay, tobacco, apples, peaches, grapes, potatoes, dairy and poultry products.

Because of the variety of their resources Pennsylvania farmers are faring comparatively well. No cry for "farm relief" goes up from Pennsylvania. At the special session of the Legislature a few months ago some of the representatives from the rural districts were skeptical about the urgency of the need for relief, saying economic depression was not much in evidence in their home communities.

A generation ago Pennsylvania witnessed a heavy exodus of rural folk to the cities.

We are likely to witness this year a return to many of the abandoned farms.

Growth of the Legion

As It Increases in Strength the Veterans' Organization Is Also Increasing in Usefulness.

A new American Legion post, with a charter membership of about 100, is to be installed on the South Side tonight. There is to be a parade with six drum corps and impressive ceremonies, as is fitting in connection with the inauguration of an organization that means so much to the community as an American Legion post.

The Grand Army of the Republic did not reach the peak of its strength until some 30 years after the Civil War, and it looks as though the American Legion might have a similar history.

The increase in the Legion's strength is of public interest because along with its growth in numbers it is growing in usefulness. Its campaign to find permanent jobs for the unemployed is one of the finest services that has been rendered by any organization.

Things to Do Today

Uninspected Autos and Unpaid City Taxes Will Bring Penalties Tomorrow.

As so often happens with respect to civic duties, many citizens have let the prescribed period for having their automobiles inspected, and for paying city taxes, draw towards a close with the obligations unfulfilled.

This is the last day for attending to these matters. Uninspected autos and unpaid taxes will bring penalties tomorrow.

Not a few of the taxpayers who are slow to pay are remiss, not from carelessness but from inability to raise the money. It is all the more important that those who can pay do so promptly, for the city is sorely pressed for funds.

Little excuse can be offered for not having one's car inspected. It may be that in some cases the repairs required before the O. K. sticker will be given are beyond the owner's means; but we suspect that the habit of procrastinating is to blame so far as most are concerned.

'Who's Who' Among the Jackasses of Jackassdom?

Congressman Rainey, of Illinois, is going to demand a roll call vote by the House on the Swing amendment to the revenue bill.

This is the amendment adopted in committee of the whole by the votes of Democratic insurgents who deserted the leadership of their own party to support confiscatory taxes on incomes.

Certainly the country has a right to know the names of representatives in Congress who favor forcing income taxpayers to invest in tax-exempt securities in order to escape the payment of confiscatory surtax rates.

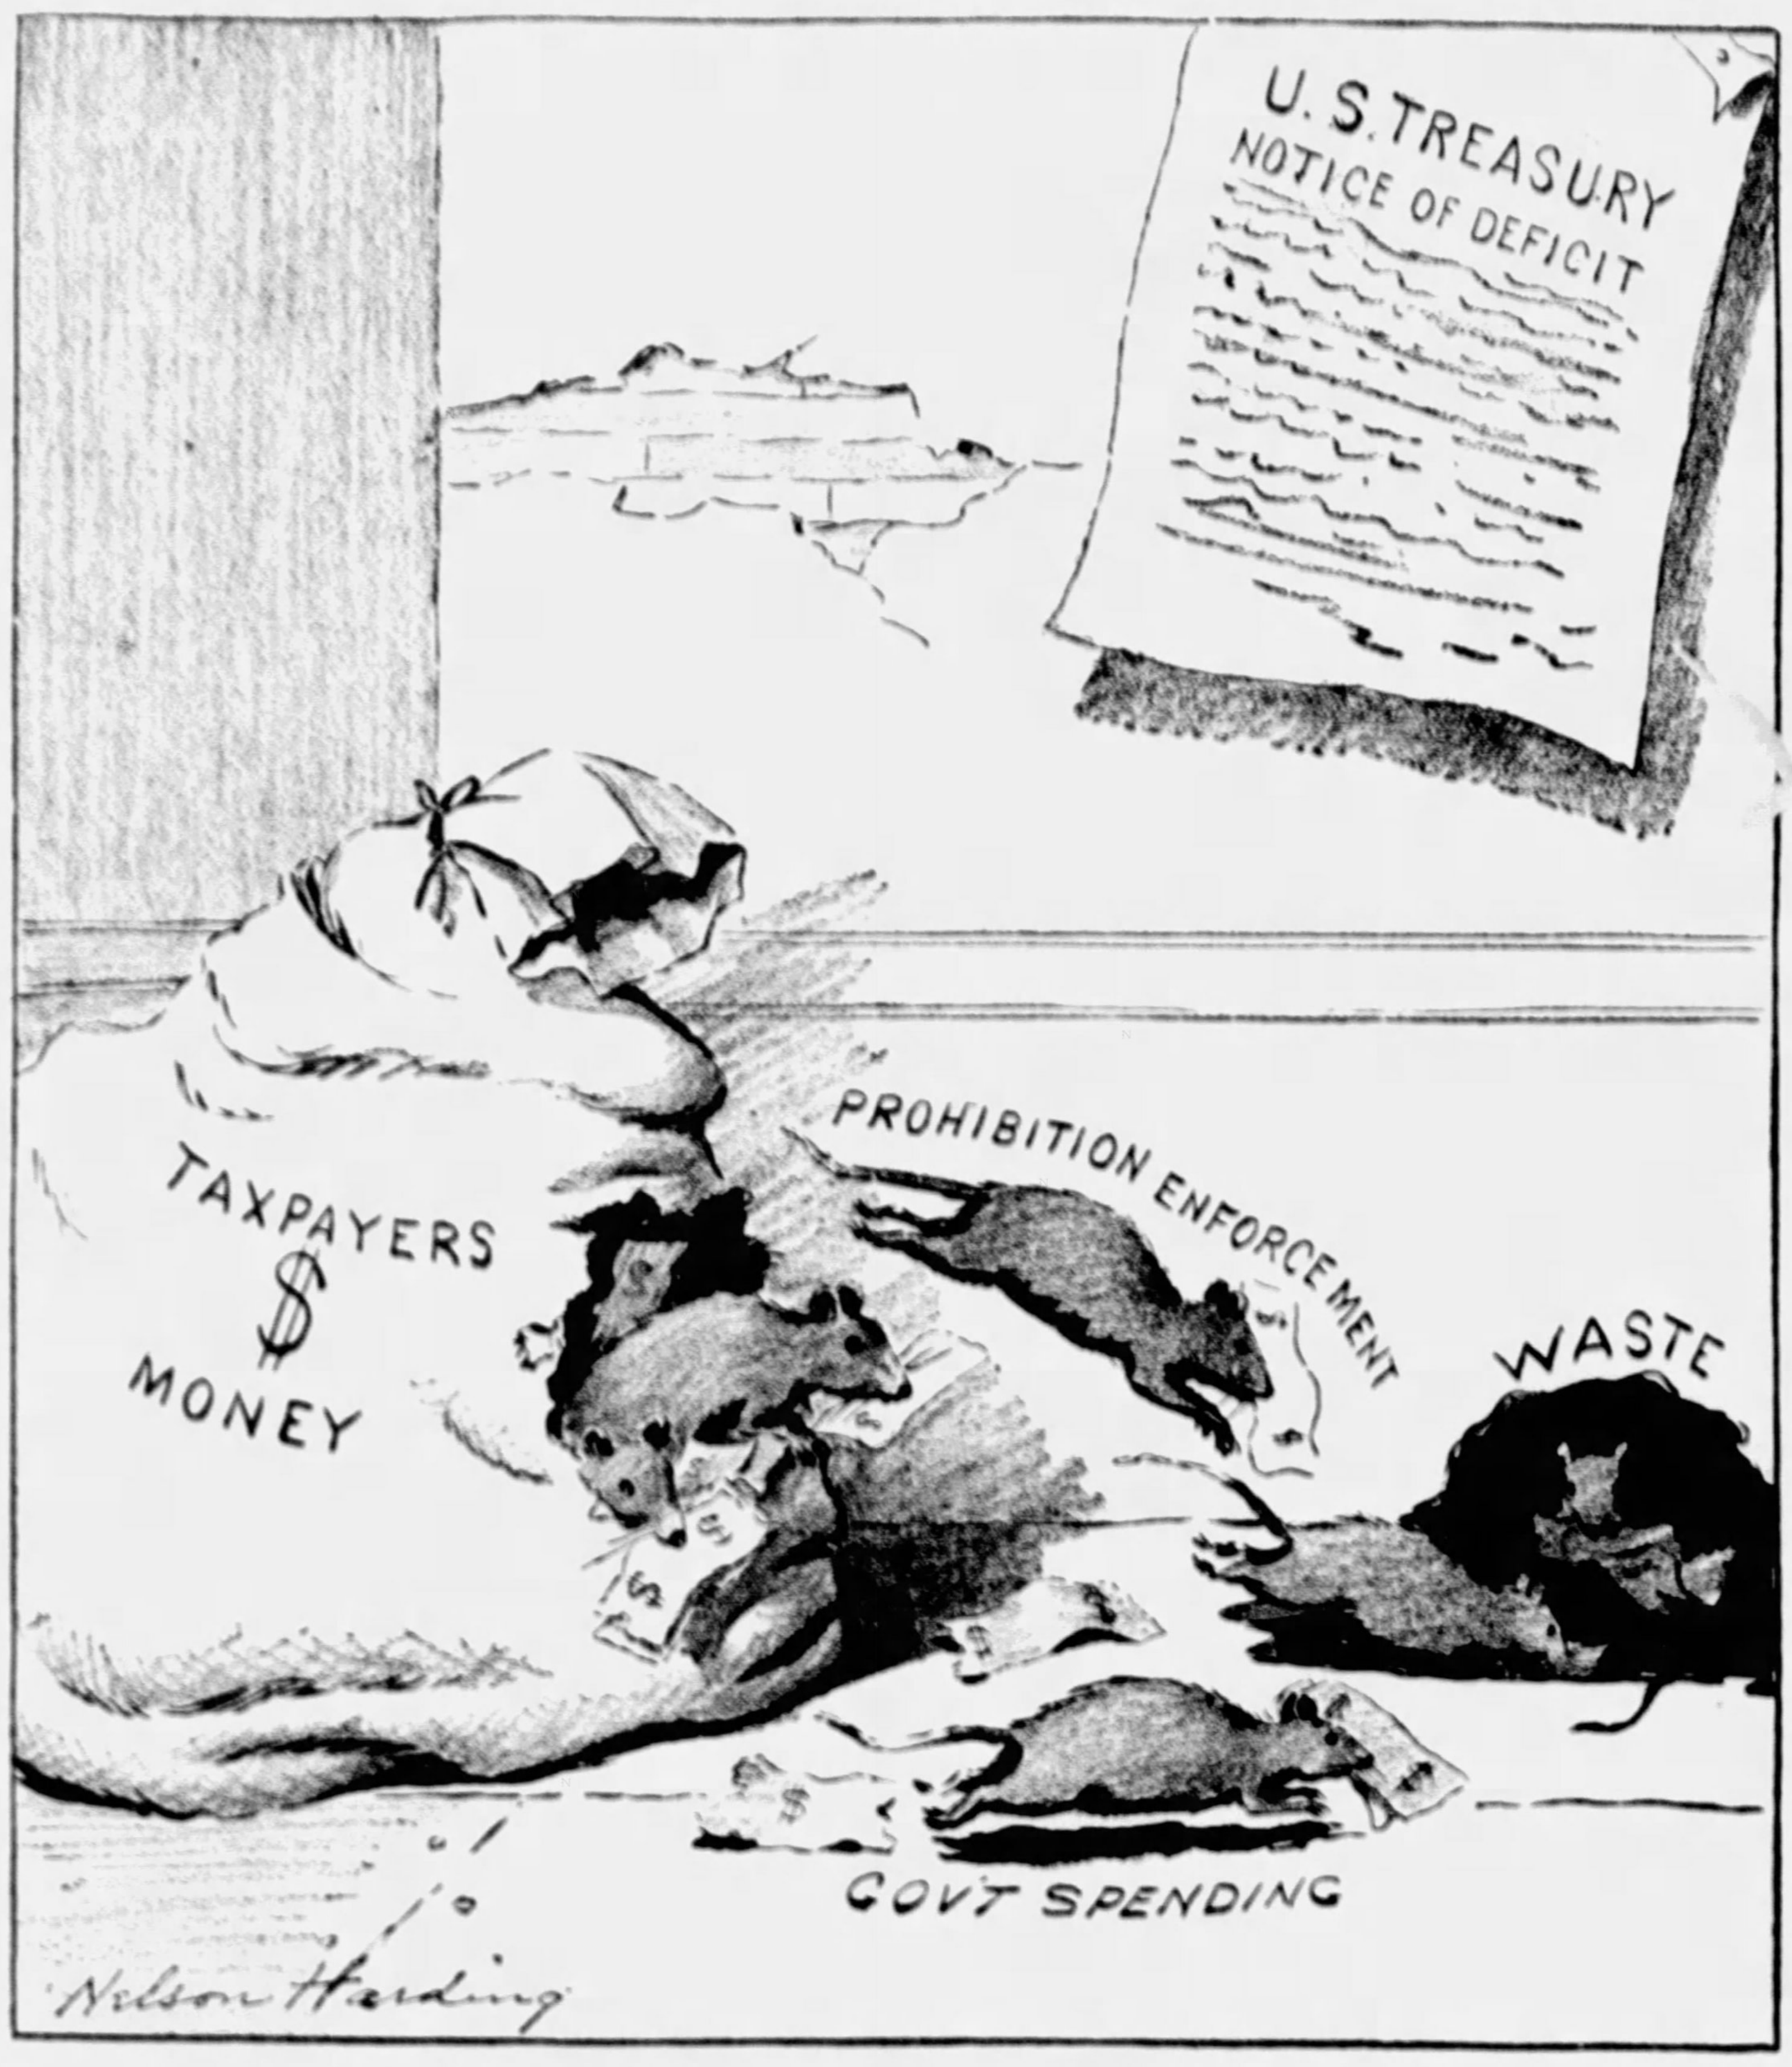
Certainly Democratic voters in every state in the Union have a right to know the names of the Democratic Congressmen who deserted the leadership of Speaker Garner, Majority Leader Rainey and Chairman Crisp, of the Ways and Means Committee, in order to aid and abet an organized minority of Republicans to discredit the Democratic party on the eve of a national campaign.

Certainly the national House of Representatives has the right to know who among its own membership are the jackass rabbits who are responsible for this jackassinine amendment.

And the way to give the country, the Democratic voters and Congress itself this useful information is by the roll call vote of the House which Congressman Rainey has so courageously and justly demanded.

'Down the Rat Hole'

By Nelson Harding



A storehouse overrun with rats,
Depleted day by day
Of treasures that the rodent swarm
Are carrying away.

The precious stores therein that down
The rat hole disappear
Are wasted by a pillage that
Will cost the owner dear.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Bachelors—and Others

What a bachelor regards as a bore, a widower looks upon as a temptation, and a married man welcomes as an opportunity. It's all in the point of view!

* * *

To a man, the end of a spring romance is just an episode—to a woman, it is an epitaph.

* * *

In an argument with a man, first be sure you're right—then, go ahead and tell him that his "judgment" is better than yours.

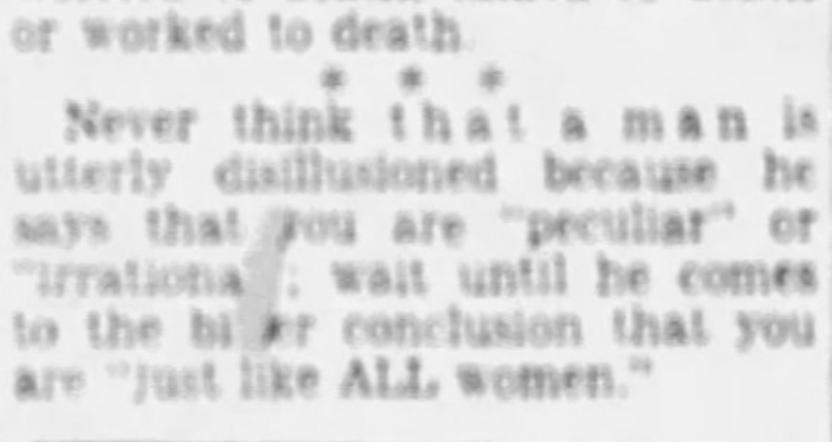
Some modern girls go into business just in order to make the money to buy the frills that will make them look like "ladies of leisure.

* * *

There are four fearful reasons why a bachelor is afraid to marry; the fear of being loved to death, worried to death, talked to death or worked to death.

* * *

Never think that a man is utterly disillusioned because he says that you are "peculiar" or "irrational"; wait until he comes to the bitter conclusion that you are "just like ALL women."



YOUR ALL ALIKE!

"Nagging, extravagance and mother-in-law" are offered as "the chief reasons why men leave home." Still, we've noticed that they seldom leave permanently unless there is a more attractive reason somewhere around the corner.

* * *

Most of the joy and excitement in life consists in keeping your beautiful human faith that the next venture, the next love or the next marriage will "click."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 31.—Because of the engaging frankness of this letter and its authenticity, I am printing it instead of the usual column today. In the fashionable boarding school hand of 20 years ago, it bears a remote foreign postmark. Deleting personal preliminaries, it reads without change:

"Mother sends me clippings from your column. One relates the whereabouts of several stage beauties when you came out of the sticks to New York. You will note by the signature I was one of them. Perhaps I should say I was so pressagented.

"You once wrote my hair was 'like a twirl of phosphorous.' That was a dye. The other month you inquired: 'What ever became of ———?' I intended to drop you a line then, but thought better of it. I have no fear you will reveal my identity or whereabouts.

"I have done nothing criminal, but my past is so completely behind me I want it to remain that way. I do not believe anyone has ever more successfully wiped out their past. My biography would be called incredible should I ever write it, and I shall not.

"In my third year on the stage I decided it not to my liking although exciting. In the Broadway style I remained 'a good girl,' although I attended wild parties, drank entirely too much, smoked and permitted certain liberties to say the least unladylike.

"Suddenly tiring of it all, I married. My husband was from a western city and had admired me from the front row. To him I was that overworked word—glamorous. Then he told me the line so familiar to every stage girl. He wanted to get me 'away from it all.'

"He was not exactly my 'dream man,' but I liked his exuberance. We went to his city, after a honeymoon on his cousin's ranch, and lived with his parents, really charming elderly people trying to hide their shock over the son 'marrying a stage girl.'

* * *

"In a few months I was quite unhappy. The tinsel, powder and paint wore off and out of the spotlight I was not so attractive to my husband. He drank, gambled, cheated, and his parents looked upon me as so much extra baggage. I asked to go on a visit to friends in New York. Once there, I never returned, wrote or saw him again. I was notified of his divorce through the newspapers.

"After several years a show girl without talent, and I had none, is completely out of the running. After trying everything almost and failing I had about decided to take the easiest way. But instead I made one final effort and became a manicure girl in a lower Broadway office building. I worked at this and was able to support myself in a cheap room on Amsterdam avenue.

* * *

"I met a few customers 'after hours,' but I could not be a gold digger. Then one day I was transferred to the barber shop of an ocean liner, my boss having secured the concession. On this boat I was thrown in contact with the ship's help and a chief cabin steward seemed in love with me. He wanted to quit the sea and go into business in his birthplace. We married in Liverpool and, without knowing a word of his tongue, we journeyed to his village, far away.

* * *

"Today I live among 3,000 people. I speak the language perfectly, as do my three children. I have never been back to America and do not expect to. So long have I been away I speak English with a slight accent. I admire my husband. He is honest, loyal and devoted, but I cannot say I love him. Time deadens a lot of the old longings, and I am fairly content as a middle-class housewife. My only diversion is going to the movies, seeing such lovely actresses as Norma Shearer and imagining I might have been a star too had I not botched up my life. That is, however, only a pleasant fantasy. I have little talent.

* * *

"Class distinction is strong here, and my ch[illegible] likely grow up to be [illegible]. Yet I wonder, after all, if they [illegible] not be happier. When I finish this [illegible] going to milk the cow [illegible] prepare the evening meal. Broadway seems very far away. [illegible] obvious reasons, please do not answer this letter."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Dizzy days, these! How are you going to dope things out? How are you going to find and keep your place in this sad, bad, mad, upside-down world?

You're asking those questions, aren't you? Doesn't matter who you are—big, worried boss down at the office, or little, weary mother in the home, or penniless drifter in the bread line—you're asking those questions. And you're getting more bewildered and frightened every day because you can't find an answer.

Your world and you—how are you going to work together?

You're not going to work together at all until you realize just what "your world" is.

Your world isn't that combination of men and machines, laws, policies, prejudices, institutions and organizations which you contact every day.

Your world is INSIDE you, not outside you.

Your world is not what you meet in life. It is your own, secret attitude toward life. It isn't a material thing. IT IS A THING WHICH YOU BUILD OUT OF YOUR OWN THOUGHTS AND EMOTIONS.

What makes life a success or failure for any man?

Not outward circumstances, but his own attitude toward those circumstances.

Take any 20 penniless men, of the same age, the same degree of health and experience. Turn them loose on a street. They will all see the same street. They will all feel the same cold, the same weariness, the same bewilderment, anger, fear and discouragement. They will meet the same indifferent or downright brutality.

But, by the end of the day, some of those men will have found work and friends. Some won't. Some will be full of hope. Some won't. Why? Weren't they facing the same world with the same equipment.

No, they weren't.

Actually each man was facing a different world—THE WORLD WITHIN HIM. And those se[illegible] inner world's were as far apart as the stars.

One man through the years had built a world of cherished resentments, of bitter memories, of hate, rebellion and spite—the world of a mad dog.

Another man, with much the same lot, had built a world of fear and shame and stealth—the world of a hunted rat.

And still another man, battling with the same outward conditions, had built a world of hope and courage and fighting confidence within himself.

Physically, those men inhabited the same house, the same city. Spiritually, they moved through different worlds; and as they moved each man gathered [illegible] himself the things that suit[illegible] HIS world.

The man who feared found that which he feared.

The man who hated found cause for hate.

The man who hoped found an answer to his hope.

You can't control the world outside you, but you can control your attitude to that world; and by controlling that attitude, you can shape your life according to your pattern.

That does not mean that you can have everything you wish, that your prayers will be answered literally. Unpleasant, heart breaking things may happen to you, in spite of your courage and confidence. You may lose your job, your health, your home. Your friends may betray you. Your dear ones may die.

YET YOU MAY SURVIVE ALL THESE THINGS, AND FEEL PEACE WITHIN YOU, AND STRENGTH, AND FAITH, AND EVEN JOY—IF YOUR INNER WORLD IS HEALTHY AND HOPEFUL.

Hold on to that thought during these difficult days. Grip it with all your spirit, and pass it on. It is the one thing upon which you can build. Everything else may fail you, but YOUR WORLD will not fail you if you have built it truly, bravely.

Let in Light on These Public Treasury Raids!

By JULIUS G. BERENS

Financial Editor, New York American.

CONGRESS at last has awakened to the dangers inherent in the false use of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds.

The storm in the Senate this week over the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's grant of a $12,800,000 loan to the Missouri Pacific Railroad developed from Senator Borah this thought-provoking assertion:

"I am informed that every form of pressure within reason and PERHAPS INDECENCY was used to bring about this decision by the Interstate Commerce Commission."

He referred to the Commission's "RELUCTANT APPROVAL" of the Missouri Pacific application for the loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Under the law which created the corporation, railroad applications for funds must receive Interstate Commerce Commission sanction.

The "reluctant approval" by the Commission served public notice of an insidious pressure exerted to open wide the purse of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—in favor of PRIVATE BANKING INTERESTS.

OUT of the PUBLIC FUNDS which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is advancing to the Missouri Pacific the railroad will utilize $5,850,000 for repayment of half an EXISTING loan from one public banking institution and TWO PRIVATE banking houses.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation was created for the purpose of alleviating WORTHY enterprises which find themselves in temporary financial straits. It was NOT ORGANIZED TO BAIL OUT any PRIVATE bankers who were ANXIOUS to be RELIEVED of loans which they no longer deemed attractive.

Nor for that matter was the corporation created to bail out any banking institution from loans which they are desirous of DUMPING into the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

THE Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a PUBLIC enterprise, created by the PUBLIC'S representatives, and financed by PUBLIC funds. A loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is a loan from the PUBLIC TREASURY.

If private bankers plan through "PERHAPS INDECENT PRESSURE," raids on the public purse to save themselves from the folly of their own indiscretions, then the public is entitled to the truth and the whole truth about the entire transaction.

THE WORD 'CORRECT'

By Winifred Black

"Correct." How I hate, despise, loathe and abominate that word. Nobody should ever use it but Teacher, and Teacher never should use it except in comment on a sum in arithmetic.

Two and two make four. That's correct—maybe. I've sometimes known two and two to make somewhere near five; and oh, the fateful times when two and two appear to make three!

Anyhow, your addition or subtraction or multiplication or division can be "correct;" but a dress or a hat, or the way a house is furnished—out with that word.

What is a "correct" hat, anyhow? A hat should be pretty and becoming. It should make the person who wears it look not like somebody else, but like herself.

And as for "correct" gowns—I'd like to put them all in a mammoth bag and sink them, with a large pile of rocks, right straight to the bottom of the sea.

Of course you don't want to see your best friend looking like a freak, or like somebody out of the comic section; but oh, these "correct" women, who would rather die than wear a frock that has not the mark of the sacred edict on every seam and gusset and band!

Likewise, the "correct" house—what a bore it is!

I went to see a friend the other day—a nice, kindly friend—a generous, whole-souled, impulsive, good-humored creature. Her life is full of laughter and music, full of friends and big baskets of flowers, bowls of luscious fruit and friendly letters and compliments, singing birds in gay little cages and pet kittens with silver bell tied around their necks on ribbons of scarlet. She's the sort o woman who looks well in a hostes gown. They used to call then negligees, but they're hostes gowns now, you know.

She is a woman who is neve without a rose in her coat or he fur, and always has just a dro of just the right perfume somewhere about her.

Well, one of these "correct" decorators had caught her in hi clutches, and there was her ne house—colonial, if you please, ar depressingly "correct" from ce lar to garret.

It looks exactly as if my dea friend's maiden aunt had move in and thrown the chill of he austere and rigid personality a over the poor, pinched-in, impoverished, gaunt, hollow-cheste tight-lipped house.

"Correct," was it? I wanted take an axe and break eve piece of furniture in the place.

When my friend came down s told me that she was enjoyi the new house, or she would enjoy it, as soon as she was w again. No, she wasn't ill exactl She was just sort of blue and o of sorts. It would soon pass, course—and how did I like th colonial draperies?

Ill? She wasn't ill at all. Th "correct" house was on her nerve that's all.

For goodness sake, let's wea what we like and live as we lik and allow the poor little imitatin nobodies to be "correct."

They deserve what will happ to them, just for being imitato

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You say you would never be contented on a farm because it is so lonely.

That might have been said with truth in the olden times.

Transportation was difficult.

People did not have cars or trucks driven by motor power.

The horse was the beast of burden and its endurance was limited.

The men of the farm realized that and took better care of their horses sometimes than they did of their families.

However, men of today have studied enough of health and hygiene in modern schools to know that proper care is needed to bring up healthy humans.

But there is every reason why farm life should be interesting and far from lonely with rad and daily paper delivery withi the reach of all.

Farm talks are helpful ar teach the unskilled in farm li how and when to plant and whe to get the best seed for the loc ity.

Topics of interest to all are d cussed by some of the very be students and thinkers of the mo ern world.

And if the farmer's family wa to dance as they did at some the famous restaurants when th thought they were on easy stre the radio gives all kinds of go music for that.

Farmers can get enough to e and a bed and plenty of ente tainment.
